FIREMEN TRIUMPH WITH ARBITRATORS

Uniform Wages, Chief Demand, Granted—Also Increases of 10 or 12 Per Cent.

MODIFY TWO-FIREMEN RULE

Men Lose Contention That Award Should Take Effect from Last July, When Negotiations Fell Through.

The award of the Board of Arbitration in the dispute between the 54 eastern railroads and their 31,000 firemen over wages and working conditions was filed last night with the clerk of the United States Circuit Court, in accordance with the terms of the Erdman Act.

The full increases asked by the firemen were not granted, but the rates fixed constitute an average advance throughout the territory that was estimated at from 10 to 12 per cent. They constitute a compromise between the average of wages in force and those demanded and the award was unanimous on the part of the three arbitrators, Judge W. L. Chambers, Vice President W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Vice President Albert Phillips of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

In several respects, aside from increased wages, the award is a victory for the firemen. The most important and far-reaching of these is the acceptance of the principle of uniform wages for the same class of service on all the roads concerned. This principle was contended for vigorously in the arbitration of the engineers' scale last summer, but the board in that case, after a long discussion of economic theories, decided that it would not go beyond fixing a minimum wage for any kind of service.

In the firemen's arbitration the same arguments were used by the railroads,—that some of them could afford to pay higher wages than others, and that it was impossible to fix a basis of classification that would be equitable to all the roads. The firemen contended that the laborer was worthy of his hire, regardless of the financial success or failure of the employer. That condition, they argued, depended on the efficiency of the management. Firemen's wages, they said, should not be governed by the improvidence of a road in watering its stock or making an unfavorable lease to a larger system.

The report of the board, in marked contrast with that of the Van Hise Commission in the engineers' case, contained no discussion of this or any other point.

Another point on which the firemen won was the classification of engines for the purpose of fixing wages, according to their weight on drivers. This has been the general practice in the past, but in this arbitration the railroads contended that it was not a scientific basis, and that wages should be fixed according to the actual work performed by each fireman, taking into consideration all the circumstances of coal consumption, grades and size and style of engine. The firemen showed that weight on drivers had been accepted as the test in other arbitrations, both East and West, and had been advocated by the railroads' representatives. It was adopted without modification in the award filed last night.

No Reductions for Uniformity.

A substantial victory was won by the firemen on their contention that where wages were higher or working conditions better than those granted in the award they should not be reduced or modified to meet its terms. This, the railroads declared, made a farce of the demand for uniformity, as it meant uniformity up, but not down. The board adopted the principle, but with a proviso that the retention of such wages or conditions should not operate to still further increase them through the application of any features of the award. The provision of the award is this:

> The earnings of firemen in any class of service shall not be diminished by the provisions of this award; and if the rates that were higher or the conditions that were better antecedent to this award are necessary to guarantee this requirement they shall be maintained. Neither shall the earnings of the firemen, in any class of service, be increased above what the higher rates of pay and the conditions that were better antecedent hereto guaranteed him, by a combination of the rates herein established with the conditions of service antecedent hereto, or vice versa.
> It is not intended that any of the terms or provisions of this award shall debar committees from taking up for adjustment with the management of the respective railroads any questions or matters not specifically covered herein.

An important point on which the firemen lost was the demand that on freight engines weighing 200,000 pounds or more on drivers two firemen should be employed. W. S. Carter, President of the Brotherhood, argued that on the big modern engines it was almost beyond human endurance for one man to shovel all the coal. The railroads introduced much evidence to show that they were introducing mechanical stokers, which greatly reduced the work of the firemen. The men testified that mechanical stokers had not been perfected, and no type of them was a success.

During the closing argument by Elisha Lee, Chairman of the Conference Committee of Managers, Judge Chambers interrupted to ask Mr. Carter whether, in case the mechanical stokers were perfected to a point where they did what was asserted of them, he would still contend for two firemen, and Mr. Carter frankly answered that he would not.

The board, in its award, does not grant the sweeping request of the men, but provides a method of arbitration by which it may be determined in any case whether two firemen are needed. On this point it rules:

Two-Firemen Rule Made Possible.

> When a second fireman is deemed necessary on any engine, or assistance is deemed necessary on any engine where one fireman is employed, the matter will be taken up with the proper officials by the Firemen's Committee. Failing to reach a settlement the matter shall be referred to an Adjustment Commission, to be composed of five persons, two of whom are to be chosen by the railroad company, two by the Firemen's Committee, and one to be selected by the four thus chosen who shall be the Chairman of the commission. Should the four men fail to agree upon the fifth, then, three days after the last of the four is selected, the fifth man shall be named by the Presiding Judge of the United States Commerce Court. If, for any reason, the selection of the fifth man cannot be made by the Presiding Judge of said court, he shall be named by the United States District Judge of the district in which the controversy may have arisen. All expenses incurred in connection with the settlement of such matters shall be borne equally by the two parties to the controversy.

The award is also against the men on the important point of when it shall take effect. Their demand was that it should apply back to July 1, 1912, at which time negotiations with the roads were suspended at their request until the engineers' award should have been made. When Mr. Lee filed his brief for the roads he raised the point for the first time that the Erdman act itself provided that an award should take effect ten days after it was filed

W. E. CONNOR TO WED.

Jay Gould's Former Partner, at 64, Engaged to Miss Jeannette Thurber.

Mrs. Francis Beattie Thurber announced yesterday the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jeannette Thurber, to Washington Everett Connor. The announcement will be of widespread interest, for Mr. Connor was the former partner of Jay Gould, and at one time one of the leading operators in Wall Street, and his family has been among the most prominent residents of New York for many years.

The Thurber family is also well known, and Mrs. Thurber and her daughter, who formerly resided at 61 East Eighty-sixth Street, are now staying at the Hotel Buckingham, where the engagement was announced to their relatives and friends.

Mr. Connor is sixty-four years old, and Miss Thurber is about eighteen years his junior. No date has been set for their wedding.

Mr. Connor, who is a widower, makes his home at the Union League Club.

It was only three years ago that he sold his seat on the New York Stock Exchange, of which he had been a member since 1871. While he figured largely in Wall Street affairs in the past, he has not been actively engaged in the brokerage business since 1886, when his brother's firm, Connor & Co., succeeded to Washington E. Connor & Co., in which Jay Gould, and later his son, George J. Gould, as well as the late C. P. Morosini, were partners. In March, 1912, the firm of Connor & Co. announced its suspension, owing principally to the infirmity of Mr. Connor's brother, Ezra Connor, who is over seventy years old. Russell Sage, as well as Jay Gould, was among those with whom Mr. Connor had close associations.

In his day Mr. Connor was perhaps the most prominent operator on the Exchange floor. He acted in all of the important Gould deals, and among the important Gould deals. His wife died more than a year ago.

Miss Thurber's father died in July, 1907, and their home was then at 49 West Twenty-fifth Street. Her mother was Miss Jeannette Myers before her marriage.

GERM OF PARALYSIS.

Further Light on Rockefeller Institute Identification and Pedigree.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Thursday, April 24.—This morning's Matin gives prominence to the recent discovery at the Rockefeller Institute by Drs. Noguchi and Moore that general paralysis is due to the presence in the brain of syphilis germs.

The discovery, says the Matin, which is of the highest importance from a medical point of view, is the result of the employment of the research methods of Dr. Levaditi of the Pasteur Institute. Dr. Levaditi says:

"For eighteen months I tried by the method of impregnating a fragment of the brain with silver to bring traces of this specific disease to light in cases of general paralysis. I experimented in a dozen cases without success. Three months ago Drs. Noguchi and Moore took up the experiments on a large scale and found traces of such germs in the convolutions of the brain. I checked their experiments with two other French doctors.

"The brains of twenty-four people who had suffered from general paralysis were examined, and the traces mentioned were found in two cases. A few weeks ago we found in the brain of a paralytic who died in April, 1910, whose body had been presenved, microbes still living. Yet it had not been suspected that the man was suffering from a specific disease. In a case in which paralysis was followed by death on April 16, 1912, we found germs in the gray matter of the brain.

"Now that we know that general paralysis is caused by microbes which penetrate the brain, we can endeavor to find a way of destroying them without injuring the fragile precious matter which these infinitely small germs slowly ruin."

MISS DODGE COMES HOME.

Tired of Society Life and Wants to Earn Her Own Living.

Among the passengers who arrived on the White Star liner Oceanic last night was Miss Lucy Dodge, daughter of Mrs. Lionel Guest, who, having tired of society life in London, has come back to live with her aunt, Miss Bigelow, at 21 Gramercy Park.

She was too nervous to be interviewed by the reporters at the pier last night, but the friends who met her said that there was no truth in the cabled report from London that Miss Dodge had left her mother's home to avoid marrying an English nobleman.

"Miss Dodge is an educated girl," said one of her friends on the pier, "and she wanted to earn her own living instead of leading an idle life in the home of her stepfather, Lionel Guest. For two years Miss Dodge was stenographer and secretary to her grandfather, the late John Bigelow, former Minister to France, and she left her mother's house to try and get a position of a similar nature in London.

"This was not so easy to obtain as she had expected, and after five days' absence Miss Dodge went back to Mr. Guest's house and sailed for home on the Oceanic with the object of putting into practice the ideas that she had in London. There never has been any question of marriage involved. Miss Dodge has been very much upset that such publicity should have been given to her temporary absence from Mrs. Guest's home in London.

On the voyage across Miss Dodge sat with Lord Hawke, H. D. G. Levenson-Gower, Vivian Nickalls, and A. V. Betington at Capt. H. Smith's table and appeared to have been benefited by the voyage. Miss Dodge is a tall and slenred blonde, with large blue eyes, and is about 21 years old.

MISS BORDEN FLEES WITH TWO WOMEN

Taken in Auto from a Pompton (N. J.) Sanitarium After Struggle with Her Nurse.

SENT THERE BY HER FATHER

Gail Borden Sought to Get Her Away from the Influence of Two Friends.

Romona Borden, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Gail Borden, son, namesake, and heir to the millionaire founder of the Borden Condensed Milk Company, was taken away by two women in an automobile yesterday afternoon from the W. C. Adams Sanitarium, in Pompton, N. J., where she was a patient and where she was taking exercise in the grounds under the guardianship of a paid companion. The girl apparently was acquiescent in the plan for her capture and flight. In fact, she fought with her companion when the latter tried to prevent her escape.

Immediately after the girl's disappearance and the sending out of alarms for her capture by the police of New York, Newark and Jersey City, Gail Borden departed from the Hotel Manhattan in this city, where he has been staying. He left no word as to his destination.

Mr. Borden and his wife, Mrs. Helen Valk Borden, live apart under a separation agreement, by the terms of which Mrs. Borden was to receive $60,000 a year for the support of herself and daughter. Until the Bordens took up their residence in Los Angeles several years ago, they were prominent in the society of New York and Newport. Prior to the separation there had been disagreements over the schooling and social life of their only daughter.

Mrs. Borden and Romona have spent much of their time in this city for the past year. Recently the girl was placed in a select school here. She quit her studies a fortnight or so ago on the advice of Dr. George M. Parker of 41 West Fifty-second Street, acting for her father, who arranged for her admission to the Adams Sanitarium. The girl did not take kindly to this plan, although the report that she was committed to the institution was denied emphatically last night. Miss Coagland, an English woman, was engaged as the girl's companion and accompanied her to the sanitarium.

Why She Was Sent Away.

One reason assigned for Romona's departure from New York was that she had come under the influence of two women while visiting in Washington, and that her guardians were anxious to take her out of the sphere of this influence, which was dominant even after the girl left Washington for this city. One of these women is described as the wife of a manufacturer of chewing gum.

Miss Borden and her companion were seated on the lawn in front of the sanitarium yesterday afternoon when Miss Coagland saw a black touring car approach along the highway and stop near the sanitarium entrance. Two women occupied the tonneau. Miss Borden gave a sign of recognition as she looked toward the car, sprang to her feet, and ran toward the automobile crying:

"Oh, there goes a rabbit!"

It is not unusual for wild rabbits to be seen on the grounds, and the girl's action did not arouse any suspicion in Miss Coagland's mind. Nevertheles, she followed swiftly, caught her gently by the arm, and detaining her, said:

"Never mind chasing the rabbit. If you want to run, I will run with you."

Romona pouted and resumed her seat on the lawn. The chauffeur obeyed the order of the women to drive on. Within five minutes or so the car returned and again stopped. This time the girl resorted to no subterfuge. She darted from her companion's side and ran toward the car with Miss Coagland in pursuit.

Nurse Tricked After Struggle.

Miss Coagland failed to overtake Miss Borden, who reached the car first and sprang upon the running board. The two women held the door open in readiness to receive her. Miss Coagland caught the girl's dress and prevented her from reaching a seat. Miss Borden turned on her companion and a spirited struggle ensued in which Miss Coagland's gown was badly torn. Both contestants were soon exhausted by the struggle and Miss Borden fell into the arms of one of the women, whom she embraced and kissed. She addressed the second woman as Helen and greeted her affectionately.

Miss Coagland was somewhat disarmed by the exchanges of affection between the girl and the two women and acceded to the suggestion of an automobile ride on condition that she accompany her charge. A nurse who had witnessed the scene and approached to investigate loaned Miss Coagland a rain coat to hide her torn gown, and then the chauffeur was ordered to drive to Newark, a distance of about six miles.

Arriving in Newark the party stopped at the Hotel Navarre at 882 Broad Street, and entered the reception room. Miss Coagland does not recall that the chauffeur was instructed to drive to the hotel, this part of the plan apparently having been pre-arranged. The two women, one elderly and the other of middle age, chatted gayly with Miss Borden for some time, when Miss Coagland, assuming there was no danger to her charge, left the room to telephone to the sanitarium that she would return with Miss Borden for dinner. When she returned to the room the two women and Miss Borden were gone.

"Now Is Your Chance. Get out."

She summoned attendants, who told her that Miss Borden had left the hotel by a side entrance, the two women by the front. A bellboy standing outside the door of the reception room said he had overheard one of the women say to the girl:

"Now is your chance. Get out quickly."

Miss Coagland called a taxicab, and ordered the chauffeur to make all speed to Police Headquarters, where she told the story of the girl's disappearance. Detectives were put on the chase, and they quickly found a taxi chauffeur who said he had been engaged by two women who entered his car near the Hotel Navarre, and told him to drive toward Jersey City. Reaching Fillmore and Market Streets, the women asked him what the fare would be to Jersey City. He named $6 as the price. The women demurred at the charge and alighted. After paying their toll they boarded a Plank Road trolley car for Jersey City.

No trace could be found of Miss Borden from the time she left the hotel.

As soon as Miss Coagland received the

TREASURY EXCLUDES CITY BANK COPYIST

She Had a Desk in Department and Compiled Bank Returns —Improper, Says McAdoo.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—William G. McAdoo, the Secretary of the Treasury, announced to-night that he had directed that no employe of any National bank should have desk room in the office of the Controller of the Currency for the purpose of compiling public information received by that office.

Mr. McAdoo's announcement had particular reference to a young woman, who was employed in behalf of the National City Bank of New York to copy statements filed by national banks in response to calls from the Controller of the Currency for information as to their condition on dates fixed in the calls.

In making known his action in the matter, Mr. McAdoo said that it was only fair to say that the information obtained in this way was made public by the individual banks or the Treasury Department.

This is the Secretary's statement:

> A few weeks ago suggestions were made to the Secretary that certain banks had long maintained private employes in the Treasury Department for the purpose of reporting to them on the transactions and business of the Treasury.
>
> As a result of an investigation, which was promptly begun, it develops that the National City Bank of New York, acting through Mr. Ailes, Vice President of the Riggs National Bank of Washington, has employed a clerk outside of the department, who has been given a desk in the office of the Controller of the Currency, and who has, for the past eight or ten years, made regular reports to the National City Bank on the condition of each National bank in the country promptly following every call of the Controller of the Currency.
>
> This is, of course, irregular and improper, and, immediately upon its discovery, it was stopped. It is only fair to say that the banks' claim that the information so obtained is only such as in due course is made public by the individual banks or the department, but the method employed of installing a private employe, with a desk in the Treasury Department, gives the bank so favored an undue advantage in the way of advance information, over all other banks in the country.
>
> At the same time it tends to establish intimate relationships with the employes of the Government and the acquirement of information of a confidential nature that ought not to be given to private individuals or corporations, and which, if given at all, should be published to the entire country. It is needless to point out that if any larger number of banks should claim the same privilege the Treasury Department would be overrun with private employes, in the serious injury and detriment of the service.
>
> Many of the transactions with the department are necessarily of a confidential nature, and no Government employe should, upon any inducement or consideration, supply information to any private interest beyond what is given out officially to all.
>
> It was for these rumors in mind, and for the purpose of developing the facts, that the Secretary issued the order, a few weeks ago, about giving out information by the heads of departments except through the Secretary's office. To have fully explained at that time the purpose of this order might have defeated the end in view. Some of the newspapers, unhappily, denounced this as "gag rule," and have thereby greatly impaired the usefulness of an order which was designed solely for the public good and to prevent the Treasury Department from being used for the benefit of any special interest.
>
> The policy of this Administration is "pitiless publicity." The Secretary is in full sympathy with that policy, but in executing it he is animated solely by a desire to prevent the improper giving out of information concerning the business of the department and to secure the publication only of such legitimate and authentic news as will conserve and protect the public interest.

Milton G. Ailes, Vice President of the Riggs National Bank, and representative of the National City Bank in Washington, said to-night that he had never seen any impropriety in the practice which Mr. McAdoo has stopped. Mr. Ailes was formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and is a close personal and business associate of Frank A. Vanderlip.

Mr. Ailes explained that Miss Lotta Taylor had compiled the National bank condition figures for several years, but neither the National City Bank nor himself knew that she had a desk in the department. Her sole employment, he said, was to compile statistics relative to the condition of National banks. Mr. Ailes's statement is as follows:

> The National City Bank of New York through its President, Mr. Vanderlip, authorized Mr. Ailes to say that for many years the bank has employed a clerk to compile statistics relating to the condition of all National banks after each call made by the Controller of the Currency. These calls are made according to law five times a year. The information compiled showed the capital, surplus, undivided profits, deposits, loans, cash on hand, and circulation of each bank. As such statistics were furnished to the National City Bank the figures were transcribed to card indexes so that the bank could, at a glance, note the growth or decline of any National bank.
>
> Miss Lotta Taylor has compiled these figures at each call for several years. If she has had regularly a desk in the department as stated by the Secretary, it has not been known to the National City Bank or to Mr. Ailes. It would of course be quite natural that she should use a desk or some similar convenience in doing this work.
>
> The information gathered is not confidential, but public, and open to everybody. It is published by the banks themselves in great detail in each community some three or four weeks before it is collected at the department.
>
> Miss Taylor's duties are wholly routine. She has never furnished any information other than these statistics, and has never been asked to furnish any other.

The practice, now ended by Secretary McAdoo, was begun when Leslie M. Shaw was Secretary of the Treasury and William Barrett Ridgely was Controller of the Currency. There had been complaints that the National City Bank was getting inside information from the Treasury Department, but it was generally known that the bank made a specialty of compiling reports from National banks and employed somebody for the purpose.

W. V. ROBBINS KILLS SON AND HIMSELF

Lawyer Shoots Nine-Year-Old Boy, Then Cuts His Own Throat with Razor.

Despondent over the estrangement from his wife, William Vincent Robbins, a graduate of the Yale Law School in the class of 1897, and wealthy lawyer, with offices at 55 Liberty Street, shot and fatally wounded his nine-year-old son, William Douglas Robbins, last night, and then committed suicide by severing his jugular vein with a razor. The double tragedy occurred in the apartments of his sister-in-law, Miss Minnie Levy, at 1,292 Madison Avenue, known as the Wellington Apartments. Miss Levy, with her sister, Mrs. Robbins, has been staying for the past week at Atlantic City, and the boy was entrusted by his mother to the care of Miss Mary Connors, her sister's maid, during her absence.

Robbins, who is associated in business with his brother-in-law, Clarence R. Levy, has a Summer home in the suburbs of Norfolk, Va., from which he returned on Tuesday after a few days' visit. He learned then for the first time that his wife had left the house at 80 and 82 East Ninety-second Street, where for two weeks she had been living apart from him with their little son. Inquiry revealed to the husband that the boy was staying in the apartments of his sister-in-law, and at noon yesterday he visited the Wellington Apartments for the avowed purpose of seeing his little son and treating him to a visit to the Wild West show at Madison Square Garden.

After some parley, Robbins was admitted by Miss Connors, and she superintended the dressing of the boy for the afternoon's pleasure.

Father and son left the house together, and, after witnessing the performance, dined in a restaurant downtown. They returned home together shortly after 7 o'clock last night, and Mr. Robbins went up with his son to the Levy apartments on the sixth floor. The boy, who is called Douglas, played with his father in the library for fifteen minutes, and then went into the bathroom to float a toy ship his father had given him in the bathtub. For several minutes the plash of water and the youngster's joyous laughter could be heard by the housekeeper in the kitchen where she was at work. Suddenly, Miss Connors heard the father's voice raised in tones of command.

Calls Son to Prayers.

"Come in and say your prayers, Douglas. It's time that you were going to bed," said Robbins, and shortly afterward the door of the boy's bedroom slammed upon the pair.

A few minutes later the housekeeper was startled by the muffled reports of five shots, fired in rapid succession, in the bedroom. In terror she rushed into the hall, where her screams attracted the attention of the negro elevator runner. He hastened to the ground floor in search of assistance, where he was confronted by Patrolman William H. McSweeney of the Thirty-fifth Precinct, who had heard the shots and entered the house to investigate.

McSweeney went up to the sixth floor and was admitted to the Levy apartments by the hysterical housekeeper. Entering the bedroom, he almost stumbled over the form of the boy, who was lying on the floor with several bullet wounds in his left temple, but still breathing faintly. On the bed, Robbins was stretched unconscious, a bloody razor beside him.

The policeman immediately telephoned from the apartment for an ambulance to Flower Hospital, and then dashed across the street to the office of Dr. Sohn, at 1,283 Madison Avenue. The physician seized an emergency kit and hurried to the Wellington, but before his arrival Robbins was dead. He turned his attention to the little boy, but a hasty examination showed that the case was hopeless. Nevertheless Dr. Keating of Flower Hospital, who made a record trip in eight minutes, hurried the youngster to that institution, where the lad's vitality astounded the surgeons.

On the trip back to the hospital Dr. Keating worked incessantly over the boy in a desperate effort to save his life. With the ambulance traveling at full speed, gong clanging, and the vehicle swaying, the surgeon labored to produce artificial respiration and administered stimulating drugs by hypodermic injection to keep awake the faint pulsation of the boy's heart. The return trip to the hospital was accomplished in nine minutes.

An examination proved that the father had placed a 32-calibre revolver to the boy's temple as he knelt at the bedside and fired five bullets into his brain. The little victim lingered until 11:30 o'clock, when the end came.

Robbins, on his arrival from Norfolk by steamship on Tuesday, registered at the Prince George Hotel, in West Twenty-eighth Street, where he has frequently resided before.

After Coroner's Physician Lehane had viewed the body of the suicide permission was given to remove it to an undertaking establishment.

At 80 East Ninety-second Street, a boarding house where Mrs. Robbins had been living before her departure for Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Bergida, the proprietors, stated that Mrs. Robbins came there with her son about two weeks ago. She informed them that she had lived in Porto Rico for fifteen years, had returned to this country several months ago, and had been living with friends at New Rochelle.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 23.—Mrs. Robbins is at the Hotel Dennis, where she has been staying for about a week. She said to-night that she had just received the news of her husband's killing of their son and his suicide. She said she did not know what had led him to do it. She refused to say anything of difficulties with her husband, and would answer no questions.

Mrs. Robbins said that as soon as she received the news she began to pack up her things. She expected to take the 11 o'clock train to Philadelphia, and from there will take the first train for New York to-morrow morning.

120 MINERS KILLED BY GAS EXPLOSION

Firedamp Follows Flames in Ancient Colliery, and Fleeing Victims Are Smothered.

TAPPING BY ENTOMBED MEN

This Gradually Dies Away as Trapped Miners Succumb—Seventy Men Make Way Out.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 23.—A terrific explosion of gas, with serious loss of life, occurred at 1 o'clock this afternoon, in the Cincinnati mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

William Carter, Superintendent of the mine, at 10:30 o'clock to-night, estimated the dead at about 120. He said that of the 200 men who were at work in the mine to-day 70 have been accounted for.

The mine is located at Courtney, three miles from Monongahela. This is not a shaft, but a drift, with three entrances —Courtney, Finleyville, and Mingo.

Two-thirds of the dead are foreigners. Elmer Boyle, George Vickers, Harry Parker, and Peter Mercer, fire bosses, are known to be among the dead.

Conditions in the mine, as far as it could be penetrated, indicate that most of the men were killed, not by the explosion, but by the afterdamp. None of the dead was found in the rooms where the men usually work. The bodies were found scattered in the entrances, where death by asphyxiation overtook the victims while they were attempting to reach safety.

Seventy bodies had been recovered up to 11 o'clock to-night. As the rescuers found a body it was carried to the entries. None of the bodies, however, were brought to the open.

Preparations have been begun to handle the dead. Box cars were ordered to a mine siding. It was planned to remove the bodies from the mine at daylight and convey them to Monongahela to be prepared for burial.

The explosion was so powerful that windows within several hundred yards of the mine were shattered. The explosion deranged the fan house and destroyed all ventilation facilities. Thus the perils of fire-damp were added to those of the flames following the explosion.

At a late hour the fire was said to be under control.

As the rescuers penetrated the mine tapping on iron pipes and on debris was heard, evidently made by men trapped behind masses of wreckage. These tappings became fainter as the night wore on, and finally ceased altogether.

From the time of the explosion the three mine entrances were surrounded by white-faced crowds—largely the wives and children of the entombed miners.

Seventy miners found their way out into the sunlight shortly after 5 o'clock. Some managed to totter out unassisted, others were carried out by their comrades.

One of the first men to emerge was Joseph Carter, 22, son of Supt. Carter. He gasped out to his father that in escaping he had crossed the dead body of his brother Thomas, 25. Supt. Carter, who had charge of the rescue work, heard his son's story, then went back to his task.

S. T. Holmes, a negro, 55, also was another of the first to reach safety. He was near the chamber in which the explosion occurred and was driving a train of mine cars. His two sons were working nearby. All three were hurled to the ground by the concussion. One of the sons was killed. The remaining son and the father tore and crawled their way more than 600 yards to a passage which led them to safety.

Joseph Green reported that he stepped over the body of his brother John when he rushed away from the burning chamber.

Many of the rescued who were only slightly burned, went back into the mine with the rescuers as guides. Three sections of the mine were found to be strewn with dead bodies, most of them so badly burned that they could not be recognized.

Robert Carten, a track layer, said: "I had been working at the head of No. 16 entry. After eating lunch I resumed work at 12:30, and had driven only two spikes when the explosion occurred. The concussion knocked me down, and I was unconscious for fifteen minutes. After recovering I met Assistant Foreman Brown, who told me to get out of the mine as quickly as possible.

"Other men quickly arrived at the point where I was. Followed by about twenty-five men, I started down No. 8 motor road, one of the main roads of the mine. We had not gone far before we found there was so much smoke we could go no farther. We tried No. 7 motor road and found this also choked with smoke and débris.

"I then told Assistant Foreman Brown I was going to try No. 16 entry. He told me I could not make it. Followed by the rest, I tried. After going less than 100 feet in No. 16 entry, we found our way blocked with débris. We turned back and had penetrated No. 15 entry some distance when we were again blocked by débris.

"I found a hole at the top of the débris. I crawled through this on my stomach 200 feet, and the others followed. I held a small safety lamp as high as I could, so that the light would fall behind me to guide the others. Finally I reached No. 4 motor road, which was clear. I stopped and a colored man came up beside me. We listened for the others, but could not hear them. After a time, accompanied by the colored man, I started for the surface. Before reaching there we met Tom Thompson, the night boss.

"Thompson started back into the mine to lead the others out, and we continued on up the slope to the open air, 3,000 feet from our starting point."

Later the other men reached the open. All were ill and dazed from the fumes in the mine.

It was said by officials of the company to-night that the mine was equipped according to the latest and best ideas of safety. Safety lamps were used by the miners.

The force of the explosion was terrific. Mine cars were splintered, and a fifteen-ton motor was turned over. Many feet of mine rails were twisted and ripped from the ties.

A special train was run from Pittsburgh to Courtney by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, bearing physicians, clergymen, undertakers, and supplies. All rescue facilities from a radius of fifty miles were rushed to the mine, including the Federal mine rescue car, stationed at Bruceton, Penn. This car was in charge of a chief mining engineer and had on board six assistants.

Many American-born miners were employed in the Cincinnati. Others were Slavs and negroes.

Among the dead are John Green, Thomas Carter, Robert Anderson, machine boss; Charles Hager, and John Lake.

The scene of this explosion is about ten miles from Marianna, where five years ago 250 miners were killed in an explosion.

It is said that an accumulation of gas in the mine is not uncommon at this time of the year, due to seasonal changes in the weather.

In the Cincinnati mine, thirty years ago, there was a gas explosion in which mine cars were blown through the tipple and half way across the Monongahela River. The mine is among the oldest in the Monongahela valley, having been in operation at least eighty years.

FEARS WORST CANAL SLIDE.

Panama Thinks the Rainy Season Will Add to Culebra Danger.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, April 23.—What is believed to be the worst slide in the history of the canal has started at Culebra. A nine-inch crack, which was discovered 1,500 feet back from the edge of the excavation, has moved forward two feet. The extent of the slide cannot be estimated, nor the time when it will enter the canal. It may not be for months; but nothing can stop it. The rainy season is about to start, which will make matters worse.

SAVED BY BABY CARRIAGE.

Woman Uses It and Her Belt to Pull Boy to Land.

Special to The New York Times.

HELMETTA, N. J., April 23.—Lifting a neighbor's baby from its carriage Mrs. Annie Petrosky used the vehicle as a life-saving apparatus this morning when she rescued five-year-old John Kiosky from drowning in a pond near here. Mrs. Patrosky heard the screams of a child and going to the bank of the pond saw a child struggling to keep his feet. She quickly took the baby out of a carriage nearby, and pushed it toward the drowning lad, holding the handle with a belt she took from her waist. The boy grabbed the front wheel of the carriage and was pulled back to safety.

For a while it was thought the lad would die, but a physician was summoned and resuscitated him.

FINDS FIRST WIFE ALIVE.

Mrs. Mary Lietz Obtains an Annulment of Her Marriage.

Mrs. Mary Lietz of Madison Avenue, Glendale, obtained yesterday the annulment of her marriage to Otto Lietz, known also as Adolph Lietz, before Justice Scudder in the Queens County Supreme Court, on the ground that she had been deceived at the time of her marriage into believing that Lietz's first wife was dead. The couple were married on April 21, 1909, and have two children—Margaret, 5 years old, and Bertha, 2.

In addition to granting the decree Justice Scudder also legitimatized the children. They will become heirs to any property their father may possess. Some time ago Mrs. Lietz asserted that she had discovered that her husband's first wife, who was a Miss Carolin Fuller, was living. Her husband, who held a high position in a matchmaking concern, had then disappeared, she said, and she was at present unaware of his whereabouts.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Whether President Wilson will send to the Senate to-morrow the nomination of Charles R. Crane of Illinois to be Ambassador to Russia in problematical to-night.

Mr. Crane had the offer of the position from the President, but he indicated that he did not care to accept it. The President, however, was unwilling to take Mr. Crane's answer as final, and there is some reason to believe that Mr. Crane may change his mind, if he has not already done so.

WILSON SENDS BRYAN TO COAX CALIFORNIA

Secretary Starts for Coast To-day to Urge Modification of Anti-Japanese Bill.

DEMOCRATS TALK OF INSULT

Faction in Sacramento Legislature Objects to Terms of Reply to President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—It was announced at the White House to-night, after a conference between President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, that Mr. Bryan would start to-morrow evening for Sacramento, Cal., where he will endeavor to persuade the State Legislature to so modify the pending alien land legislation as to give no offense to Japan. Col. Bryan should reach Sacramento next Monday.

The visit of the Secretary of State to Sacramento will be by invitation of the State Legislature, but the invitation was sent at the suggestion of President Wilson. Quoting the language of the President's telegrams to the Governor, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives of California, the exact purpose of Col. Bryan's journey to the Pacific Coast will be to co-operate with the legislators "in the framing of a law which would meet the views of the people of the State and yet leave untouched the international obligations of the United States." The President inquired in these telegrams whether it would be agreeable to have Secretary Bryan go to Sacramento for the object indicated.

There was no effort to-day to conceal the fact that the Administration was greatly concerned over the international situation created by the apparent determination of the California Government to enact legislation aimed at the Japanese. The prompt affirmative response to the President's suggestion that action in the pending land measure be deferred until Secretary Bryan could reach Sacramento brought a feeling of relief to-night, but the danger of complications with Japan is still in the foreground, and the worry of the President and his advisers has not disappeared.

Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, had a long conference with Secretary Bryan after the latter had discussed the situation with President Wilson and the President had telegraphed Gov. Johnson. Neither Mr. Bryan nor the Ambassador would discuss what was said, except to admit that they were much concerned over the situation. The Ambassador was pleased that the Secretary of State was to go to Sacramento, and he did not undertake to conceal the fact.

Chinda Takes Hopeful View.

Secretary Bryan and Viscount Chinda had before them the text of a newly written alien law, which it was understood has been advanced to take the place of the measure already passed by the lower house of the California Legislature. This draft is on entirely new lines and omits all reference to persons ineligible to citizenship. Secretary Bryan took the view that there was reasonable ground for the hope that the California Legislature would consent to leave out this clause, which is so obnoxious to the Japanese, and that ultimately a law would be adopted as would avoid all difficulty between the two Governments.

After the interview with Mr. Bryan Viscount Chinda met the newspaper correspondents and spoke frankly of the situation as far as he could. He read sentence by sentence a statement appearing in an afternoon newspaper purporting to be an interview with himself. In this alleged interview he was quoted as having told President Wilson yesterday that Japan would not go to war with the United States whether California passed or did not pass an anti-alien land law. As he read each sentence in the article he denied it squarely, saying he not only had not made any such statement, but that he had not been interviewed and had not been at the White House yesterday.

The Ambassador denied that he had said anything about Japan going to war or not going to war, because the matter of war had not entered his mind in connection with the present controversy. He then brought up a statement made in a New York publication to the same effect, and said that it was entirely untrue.

Secretary Bryan made all arrangements this evening for his journey to California. He decided to take the 6:45 P. M. train over the Pennsylvania Railroad to-morrow evening in time to connect with the Chicago & Northwestern Overland at Chicago at 7:30 on Friday night, and reach Sacramento at 4:45 P. M. Monday. This itinerary was planned so that he could meet the Legislature on Monday evening and avoid an arrival in Sacramento on Sunday. The interval here to-morrow will enable the Secretary to attend to all pressing business at the State Department and give instructions to Assistant Secretary Osborne for the conduct of the department during his absence.

Col. Bryan will be accompanied by Robert F. Rose of Helena, Mont., who served with him through his political campaign as his personal secretary. He received to-day from Gov. Johnson a cordial invitation from the Governor and Mrs. Johnson to be their guest while in Sacramento. The invitation, also, was extended to Mrs. Bryan if she should accompany the Secretary. Col. Bryan telegraphed to Gov. Johnson accepting the invitation.

President Sends Thanks.

The visit of Col. Bryan to Sacramento found its inception in the telegrams sent this morning by President Wilson to Gov. Johnson and the presiding officers of the two houses of the Legislature. The message to Gov. Johnson differed from the others only in the inclusion of the sentence: "Thank you for your patriotic telegram." This was a reference to Gov. Johnson's message of last night indicating that California did not desire to do anything that would embarrass the United States Government in the observance of its treaty obligations. The Governor's message, however, did not make it clear where the intention of those behind the alien land legislation was to modify the pending measure so that it would be satisfactory to the Administration. It was to clear up the uncertainty and avoid the international danger threatened by proposed legislation that Mr. Wilson addressed his telegrams to Gov. Johnson and the two presiding officers. His message to Gov. Johnson follows:

> Gov. Hiram Johnson, Sacramento, Cal.:
>
> Thank you for your patriotic telegram. We find it so difficult from this distance to understand fully the situation with regard to the sentiments and circumstances lying back of the pending proposition concerning the ownership of land in the State, that I venture to inquire whether it would be agreeable to you and the Legislature to have the Secretary of State visit Sacramento for the purpose of counseling with you and the members of the Legislature and co-operating with you and them in the framing of a law which would meet the views of the people of the State and yet leave untouched the international obligations of the United States.

WOODROW WILSON.

Sacramento, Cal., April 23.

His Excellency, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Sir: I have the honor to hand you herewith a resolution just adopted by the Assembly. Respectfully,

L. B. MALLORY,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Whereas, The Speaker of the Assembly of the State of California has this day received from the President of the United States the following telegram: [Here follows the text of the President's telegram.]

Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Assembly of the State of California, That while this Assembly respectfully maintains the right of the Legislature of the State of California to legislate on the subject of land ownership within the State, it will be entirely agreeable to this Assembly to have the Secretary of State of the United States visit Sacramento for the purpose indicated in the President's telegram; and he it further

Resolved, That in view of the probable early adjournment of the Legislature, the Chief Clerk of the Assembly be, and he is hereby instructed to transmit forthwith these resolutions to the President.

The following telegram from Gov. Johnson came to the White House this evening:

Sacramento, Cal., April 23.

The President, Washington, D. C.:

I shall at all times be pleased to consult with the Secretary of State, and it will be agreeable to me to have the Secretary visit Sacramento as suggested in your telegram.

HIRAM W. JOHNSON.

CARNEGIE PRAISES MOVE.

Says the President Is Doing Right in Sending Bryan.

President Wilson's efforts to bring about a harmonious adjustment of the Japanese situation in California brought expressions of praise from Andrew Carnegie yesterday. He placed the President on the list of the world's great disciples of international peace, and commended Secretary Bryan for his active part in the Pacific Coast crisis.

Mr. Carnegie also said there was no danger of war with Japan because of anything that the Legislature of California might do. When he was reminded that some persons had criticised the President's action in sending Mr. Bryan to California to aid in a peaceful adjustment, he replied emphatically:

"Not a bit of it; nothing is undignified that attempts to harmonize the interests of a State and the Union. And I want to say that no better man than Mr. Bryan could be sent upon a mission so important. He is able, he has traveled, and he is deeply and sincerely interested in peace and the brotherhood of man.

"The situation, aside from the possibility of offending a friendly nation, is not at all serious," he continued. "Japan is in no position to wage war if she desired to do so. If Japan should make the mistake of starting war she would soon find herself impotent. Think of Japan making war on the United States, and having to transport men and supplies across the Pacific to carry on that war. It is absurd. But I happen to know, and have the assurance of leading Japanese, that war is not considered, and that, on the contrary, Japan is trying to do everything to continue pleasant relations with the United States."

Although Mr. Carnegie was busy yesterday in his home at Fifth Avenue and Ninety-first Street with matters pertaining to the fourth American Peace Congress, which assembles in St. Louis on May 1, and was required to greet many callers, he found time to discuss other matters of public interest.

"A just tax," he said. "My view on that subject has not changed since I wrote my book twenty years ago. The rich man who hoards his wealth in place of administering it for the benefit of others should meet the fate of Shylock, of whom Portia said:

It is enacted in the laws of Venice,
If it be proved against an alien
That by direct or indirect attempt
He seek the life of any citizen,
The party 'gainst the which he doth contrive,
Shall seize one-half his goods.
The other half shall come into the privy cofer of the State.

"And Adam Smith says the citizen should pay to the support of the State and Government according to his ability to pay. That is true, I hold, to-day."

Mr. Carnegie said he had no faith in the statements cabled from Europe to the effect that the war scare in Germany was being fostered by the Krupps and others to increase the demand for war material.

"No big business will do so foolish a thing as that," he said. "I have never known such a thing to be done anywhere. It would be playing into the hands of some irresponsible who could turn and ruin a great business by exposing such an act. It would lead to blackmail. Nor was anything ever done like that here. I do not believe any such lobby or influence exists here or abroad to-day. It could not exist without discovery and exposure."

CALL IT INSULT TO WILSON.

California Democrats Object to Message Sent to President.

Special to The New York Times.

SACRAMENTO, April 23.—The Legislature to-day, after a stormy debate, voted to accept the President's suggestion that Secretary Bryan come to Sacramento and confer with State officials in regard to proposed alien land legislation. The telegram which finally was sent to Mr. Wilson was objected to as being in the nature of an insult to the President because it reiterated the doctrine of State rights.

The Democrats were angry at Gov. Johnson, who called a caucus of members of both houses this morning, failing to invite any Democrats or old-line Republicans. For two hours the Progressive Party leaders, who had been summoned by the Governor, discussed the latest move of the Democratic Administration, and there was not a Democrat present.

No further action will be taken on the land bills until after the arrival of Secretary Bryan next Monday. This announcement was made to-night immediately upon the receipt of formal notification of the Secretary's purpose to start from Washington to-morrow. It also was announced that new amendments to be bill before the Senate were in preparation, but would not be made public until Mr. Bryan had viewed them.

All statements, interviews, and public utterances made to-day by members of the majority party held alike to the policy that the Legislature had full authority under the Constitution of the State and Nation to enact any alien land law not in violation of existing treaties or the constitutional guarantees that protect certain rights of all foreigners. Under this interpretation of powers Gov. Johnson and his Lieutenants in the Legislature previously agreed upon a bill that would draw the line upon aliens who were ineligible to citizenship, and it is generally asserted that this purpose remains unchanged.

The refusal of the majority to recede from its position called forth a sharp partisan debate in both houses to-day.

Democratic leaders who have been asserting at each session for the last six years that the State had full power to enact any kind of alien land law it desired, objected to the phrase in the telegrams to President Wilson in which the Legislature laid special claim to its right. They charged that it was unnecessary, and denounced the Progressives for "playing politics" at a critical time

Senator Boynton, who defended the resolution in the Upper House, denied that the phrase was included for any reason other than to notify President Wilson of the policy of the majority.

Eight Democratic Senators finally voted for the resolution in its original form after trying in vain to amend it.

Senator Caminetti, the Democratic leader, gave out a statement charging the State administration leaders with being insincere in their attitude toward the alien land law, and accusing them of using the opportunity to make political capital. The statement asserts that many of the Progressives in the Legislature "are really opposed to any law of this kind, and that with very few exceptions they are opposed to such action on this question."

Continuing the statement says that this was the situation until President Wilson sent his first telegram.

"Then," it continues, "these leaders at once changed front so as to produce a political condition that would seem to put the President in the same category that the people of California had heretofore placed Roosevelt and Taft with their big sticks. These leaders are forgetting all the time that the two former Presidents did not concede to us the right to legislate as a State, but practically denied it, and that one of them threatened even to send the army and navy to coerce us."

Gov. Johnson received the following message to-night in reply to his invitation to Mr. Bryan to be his guest during his stay in Sacramento:

Hon. Hiram W. Johnson, Sacramento, Cal., April 23:

Your kind invitation received and appreciated. It will give me pleasure to be your guest. Please convey to the Legislature my thanks for the resolutions adopted.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

DISPATCHES DEPRESS JAPAN.

Growing Fear That California Land Bill Will Be Passed.

TOKIO, April 23.—Dispatches reporting that Gov. Johnson of California has asserted his determination to force the anti-Japanese bill has caused depression here and upset the confidence that the California Legislature finally would decline to pass the alien land bills.

Delegates of forty-five Chambers of Commerce have decided to send a cablegram to Gov. Johnson directly on this subject. These delegates also adopted resolutions to be telegraphed to President Wilson, urging him to use his influence in the situation for the preservation of good feeling between the two nations.

ALIENS BARRED IN KOREA.

Land Ownership by Foreigners Wiped Out by Powers Agreement.

SEOUL, Korea, Thursday, April 24.—The last vestige of extra-territoriality in Korea disappeared to-day with the signing of an agreement by the Consuls of all the powers, whereby land ownership by foreigners in Korea is abolished and replaced by perpetual lease tenure.

LAND BILL FOR ARIZONA.

Present Law Directed at All Aliens May Be Amended.

PHOENIX, Arizona, April 23.—The Judiciary Committee of the Assembly was instructed to-day to draft amendments to Arizona's anti-alien ownership law, and a situation similar to that in California may follow. Those favoring an amendment directed specifically at aliens ineligible to citizenship are in the majority in the Legislature.

The present law prohibiting ownership of land in Arizona by any alien has aroused vigorous protest among wealthy Mexicans in the State. The matter was taken up in the lower house to-day, and those who desired the rigid enforcement of the present law were outvoted. The proposed amendment would exempt foreigners who have already established property rights in the State.

JAPAN SOCIETY PLEASED.

Head of Organization Congratulates Mr. Wilson on His Course.

Lindsay Russell, President of the Japan Society of New York, sent a telegram to President Wilson yesterday, congratulating him upon his course in the California situation, and urging him to send Secretary Bryan to California.

"Treaty obligations, commercial relations, and missionary endeavors in the entire Orient are involved in the proposed discriminatory legislation," said the telegram.

There will be a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Japan Society at the society's rooms on Friday. The committee will meet at luncheon and discuss the pending legislation in California as it applies to the Japanese.

THE LEDGER NOW 2 CENTS.

Philadelphia Newspaper Announces an Increase in Price.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 23.—The following editorial announcement will appear on the first page of The Public Ledger to-morrow morning:

> The Public Ledger weekday issue will be sold at two cents per copy on and after May 1, 1913, twelve cents a week delivered by carrier or agent; by mail, postpaid, the price will be fifty cents a month or $6 per year. The price of The Sunday Ledger will remain five cents a copy. All orders for a period exceeding a week that are received from the date of this announcement will be taken at the new price.
>
> The change restores the price of The Public Ledger to the same figure it was prior to August, 1901, which price prevailed for a generation preceding.
>
> The Public Ledger at the new price will be expanded in volume, in features, and in scope; it will be typographically as nearly perfect as the most improved mechanism can produce, printed on paper stock of superior substance and higher quality. Its agents and carriers are entitled to a larger compensation for handling the greater bulk and weight, but this simple justice to them was not possible except by increasing the price.
>
> The Public Ledger at all times in the past has equaled in quality any two-cent newspaper in America, but it is to be made even better, although its readers have doubtless observed the new features recently added. It will, however, be still further improved as rapidly as new mechanical facilities can be installed.
>
> By practically doubling its size and developing every department to a degree hardly attempted before by any other American newspaper, it is obvious that The Public Ledger could not be sold for less than two cents, except at material loss on each copy. There are newspaper readers in this country who desire and are entitled to the best in journalism. Therefore, by substantially increasing the size, applying the most skillful journalistic talent to preserve the best traditions of the craft and maintain unsurpassed the quality of news presentation, The Public Ledger confidently believes it will attract a clientele far vaster than it now enjoys, which will indorse the change in price and cheerfully co-operate to broaden its distribution and more widely diffuse its influence.

SENATORS CRITICISE BRYAN PEACE PLAN

Say That the Powers Won't Agree to Stop Arming While Dispute Is Investigated.

JAPAN TANGLE CROPS UP

Senator Foresees Machinations by Her If We Had Such a Treaty with Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—After discussing his plan for the peace of the world with the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations for over an hour this morning, Secretary of State Bryan left the committee room with encouraging expressions from Senators. They told him that his general purpose to prevent war, or at least to limit war only to the gravest causes, had their sympathy, and that such treaties as he might negotiate in furtherance of that purpose would receive their friendliest consideration. They made it plain, however, that they considered Mr. Bryan's plan vague in many respects, and, in one regard at least, altogether unfeasible.

Mr. Bryan's plan, besides providing a breathing spell of six months or a year so that the cause of the dispute could be investigated by a joint commission of the contending powers, provides that in that interval the military and naval programmes of the disputants shall not be increased. This provision, in the opinion of many Senators on the committee, will make the whole plan of doubtful acceptance to the great European powers. At the same time they suggest contingencies in which it might prove disastrous even to so isolated a nation as the United States.

In this connection it was pointed out that the United States might succeed in negotiating such a treaty, say with Mexico, and that a quarrel like the pending dispute over the California bills might make it impossible to negotiate a similar treaty with Japan.

Senators argued that, after ratifications had been exchanged between Mexico and the United States, Japan might induce Mexico to press certain differences with the United States and ask for an investigation by the proposed joint commission. The effect of these tactics, they said, would obviously be that the United States would be prevented for a period of many months from increasing her army and navy, while Japan, without any such restrictions, could purchase ships and guns and recruit her already powerful forces.

In the discussion of the proposed plan, however, the Japanese question was mentioned only once while Mr. Bryan was in the course of a general disquisition on the merits of his plan.

"That is very well in the abstract, Mr. Secretary," said one Senator, "but there may be a concrete case. There may be a question of the right of the United States or of an American State to say who shall and who shall not own land in the United States."

Mr. Bryan did not follow up the suggestion, and that phase of the subject was dropped.

He took occasion in his talk before the Senate Committee to advocate warmly the Bacon bill for the purchase and leasing of embassies and legations abroad for the use of American diplomats.

After Mr. Bryan left the committee took up the Chamberlain resolution calling for the abrogation of the Hay-Pauncefote and Clayton-Bulwer treaties with Great Britain. The subject was referred to a sub-committee.

TITANIC CLAIMANTS APPEAL.

Ask Court Not to Make Limitation Ruling Affect Their Suits.

A. Gordon Murray, the attorney for seven Titanic claimants, appeared yesterday before Judge Holt in the Federal District Court, and asked that the limitation proceedings should not be considered to have been dismissed in the case of those claimants who made no objection to them.

There were 133 death claimants, who protested against the limitation proceedings, and 148 who did not. Judge Holt informed Mr. Murray yesterday that he would hear him further upon the matter when the settlement of the terms of the order, which must follow his decision, comes before him. Among the clients of Mr. Murray are the relatives of Mme. Aubert, a society woman of Paris, who was drowned in the Titanic.

"Not Guilty," Mrs. Brennan's Plea.

BOSTON, April 23.—Mrs. Catherine A. Brennan of New York pleaded not guilty before Judge Morton in the United States District Court to-day to two Federal indictments charging her with smuggling and conspiracy. She asked permission to change the plea later if she so desired. Mrs. Brennan, who is 64 years old, is President of the Misses C. Donovan & Co., New York gown and lace importers. She is charged with eight counts of smuggling, extending over five years.

Swan Divorce Dropped.

The divorce action brought by Mrs. Mabel L. Swan against her husband, Kingsley Swan, both well known in Brooklyn and Newport society, was discontinued yesterday on an order signed by Justice Putnam of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn. The suit was dropped by consent of the plaintiff and defendant.

TERRIBLE BOY 3 YEARS OLD.

Spilled Dirt in Riverside Drive and Parents Had to Go to Court.

Mrs. Winter Russell, whose husband is a lawyer dwn at 2 Rector Street, had to go to the West Side Court yesterday afternoon to explain what she meant by having a deplorable character in the person of her son, David. At the age of 3 this desperado had destroyed the outward order and decency of Riverside Drive by upsetting his toy wagon and spilling the dirt on the sidewalk not far from his home at 203 West Eighty-seventh Street. Naturally Patrolman McKenna of the West 100th Street station charged forward.

McKenna said something about serving a summons on Mrs. Russell, who was with the child at the time, and she challenged him to do so. So he did serve her, but he restrained whatever sterner impulse he may have felt to call a patrol wagon and drag both offenders to a cell. Instead, Mr. and Mrs. Russell came unhandcuffed to court, where Magistrate Freschi was not deeply impressed with McKenna's account of how the Riverside Drive Park foreman had warned him it was his duty to see that the drive was kept clean. The Magistrate went so far as to call the case trivial, and he dismissed the complaint.

David was very still and solemn in court and seemed to be wondering what it was all about.

70-FOOT WALL FOR PRIVACY.

Owner Will Build It to Shut Herself Off from Apartment House.

To prevent the tenants of the twelve-story apartment house on the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street from peering into the rear windows of the two houses owned by Mrs. Thomas L. Barrett at 65 and 67 East Seventy-fifth Street, she has instructed her architect to file in the Building Bureau plans for erecting a brick fence seventy feet high directly in the rear of the dwelling at 67 East Seventy-fifth Street, which is on the corner of Park Avenue.

The seventy foot wall will be twelve inches thick. It will be securely buttressed and will have seven openings, but so arranged as to afford no possibility of the apartment house tenants having a view into the windows of the low dwelling in the rear. The wall will cost $400 and will be the highest of its kind in the city. The apartment house is owned by Frederick Johnson and C. K. G. Billings.

Republicans Carry Hudson by 13.

Special to The New York Times.

HUDSON, N. Y., April 23.—There was a political turnover to-day in this city, which last Fall gave Wilson more than 500 plurality. The Republicans elected Louis Van Hoesen Mayor by 13 votes. They lost the Recordership by 26, but they elected four out of six Aldermen, and will control the Common Council.

in court. Mr. Carter urged in reply that the parties to the arbitration had specifically agreed to arbitrate each point in the firemen's demands, of which this was one, and that the board consequently had power to make the award retroactive. The engineers' award was made retroactive, but that was rendered by an unofficial commission, not affected by the Erdman act. On this point the award filed last night says:

> This award shall take effect at the time and in the manner provided by the act of Congress. All parties to this arbitration having stipulated in writing, and incorporated in the record an agreement, extending the time within which the award may be made and filed, from the second day of April, 1913, to and including the twenty-third day of April, 1913, the arbitrators now, on this twenty-third day of April, 1913, signed this award without dissent in any particular to any of its provisions by any one of them, and have required the Secretary to attest the same.

Increase Hard to Figure.

It is impossible to compare the rates of wages fixed in the award with those now in force, for the very reason that there is now almost a complete lack of uniformity among the various roads. Not only are the rates of pay different, but the classifications of service are diverse, and in some instances not even based on the same factors. In many cases arbitrary wages are paid on some runs. It is not even possible to compare them satisfactorily with an average of the wages now paid, as the firemen arrived at one set of averages and the railroads at another.

The estimate made last night of a general increase of 10 to 12 per cent. was made by men familiar with the conditions, and is probably close to the results that will be shown when the application of the award to the various roads has been worked out.

Railroad representatives who were willing to concede some increase in pay said privately that they considered it a victory for them if the award did not exceed 12 per cent.

The men declared that if their full demands were granted, the increased cost to the roads would be about 15 per cent., while the roads said they would amount to 35½ per cent. In money the railroad estimate of the increased cost under the proposed scale was $10,000,000. On this basis the increase under the award would be between $3,000,000 and $4,000,00, but on the calculations of the firemen's side it would be much less.

In their estimates, for instance, the railroads figured that where two firemen were employed, the cost would be doubled, while the men contended that the use of two firemen would get the train over the road quicker and reduce overtime to more than offset the increase. Similar questions were in dispute between them throughout the arbitration.

The following table shows the wages asked by the men and those fixed by the award, the wages asked on the larger freight engines being for each of two firemen, while the award is for one, except when the employment of two is decided upon as provided for in the section quoted:

PASSENGER SERVICE.

Weights of locomotives in pounds on drivers.	Demand.	Award.
Less than 80,000 pounds	$2.55	$2.45
80,000 to 100,000 pounds	2.65	2.50
100,000 to 140,000 pounds	2.80	2.60
140,000 to 170,000 pounds	3.00	2.70
170,000 to 200,000 pounds	3.20	2.85
200,000 to 250,000 pounds	3.40	3.00
250,000 to 300,000 pounds	3.60	3.20
300,000 to 350,000 pounds	3.80	3.40
All engines over 350,000 pounds on drivers	4.00	3.60
Mallet engines regardless of weight on drivers	4.00	4.00

FREIGHT SERVICE.

	Demand.	Award.
Less than 80,000 pounds	$2.80	$2.75
80,000 to 100,000 pounds	3.00	2.85
100,000 to 140,000 pounds	3.20	3.00
140,000 to 170,000 pounds	3.35	3.10
170,000 to 200,000 pounds	3.50	3.20
200,000 to 250,000 pounds (2)	3.35	3.30
250,000 to 300,000 pounds (2)	3.50	3.55
All engines over 300,000 pounds on drivers (2)	3.50	4.00
Mallet engines regardless of weight on drivers (2)	3.50	4.00

Specific Wage Allowances.

The award provides that where two firemen are employed on an engine the rates shall be $2.75 and $3 a day, according to weight on drivers, as against $3.35 and $3.50 requested. In switching service the rates awarded are $2.50 and $2.60 as against $2.60 and $2.80 asked, although the board concedes $4 on Mallet engines—two engines coupled together—which would have come in on the $2.80 class in the demand.

Hostlers receive $2.40, $3.25 and $2.50, according to class service, as against $3.75 and $2.50 asked, the board having made a different classification of such service from that proposed by the firemen.

In electric service the term "fireman" for the second man on a locomotive, is changed by the board to "helper." "Helpers" in passenger service will receive $2.50, as against $3 asked; in freight service $2.80, as against $3.25 and in switching service $2.50, as against $2.80.

The contention of the railroads that men in electric service should cover more miles to constitute a day's work, was disregarded by the board, which makes no distinction from steam service in this respect. The board also adopted, without change, the firemen's proposal that "all working conditions applicable to locomotive firemen in steam service will apply to helpers in electric service." This, too, is a big gain for the men, since the engineers' arbitration, in which the board left the problems of electric service to be worked out later.

The board also granted the firemen's contention that men in pusher and helper service, mine runs, work, wreck, belt line, and transfer service should receive the same rates as in through freight service. Those in local freight service are to get 15 cents more than in through freight, instead of 25 cents, as requested. The board also adopted the firemen's demand that the roads should keep posted bulletins showing the weight on drivers of all locomotives in service, so the men could tell to what wages they were entitled.

The board fixed a day's work at ten hours or less, or 100 miles or less, which is the general practice, and was not contested. It also adopted the firemen's proposal that the time for which they should be paid should begin when required to report for duty and end when the engine was delivered at the point designated. The firemen had complained that they were frequently called to work a long time before the train was actually sent out. Increases were also granted in overtime in the various classes of service.

The award also relieves firemen of cleaning engines, which on some of the roads is now done by round house employes. Lubricators are to be filled, headlights, markers, and other lamps cared for, and all supplies placed on engines at points where round house or shop forces are maintained, relieving firemen on some of the roads of duties of which they complained.

The railroads included in the award are the Baltimore & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern, Bessemer & Lake Erie, Boston & Albany, Boston & Maine, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, Central New England, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Chicago, Indiana & Southern, Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern, Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, Cincinnati, Lebanon & Northern, Cincinnati Northern, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, Dayton & Union, Delaware & Hudson, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee, Dunkirk, Allegheny Valley & Pittsburgh, Erie, Grand Rapids & Indiana, Hocking Valley, Indiana Harbor Belt, Indianapolis Union, Kanawha & Michigan, Lake Erie, Alliance & Wheeling, Lake Erie & Western, Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, Lehigh Valley, Long Island, Maine Central, Michigan Central, Monongahela, New Jersey & New York, New York Central & Hudson River, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, New York, New Haven & Hartford, New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk, New York, Susquehanna & Western, Pennsylvania Lines East, Pennsylvania Lines West, Philadelphia & Reading, Rutland, Toledo & Ohio Central, Toledo, Peoria & Western, Toledo, St. Louis & Western, Vandalia, Wabash Pittsburgh Terminal, Western Maryland, West Side Belt, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Wilkes-barre & Eastern, and Zanesville & Western.

The firemen's demands were presented about the middle of last year, while the demands of the engineers were under consideration. A meeting between the firemen and the Committee of Managers was held as early as July 1. After numerous conferences and much correspondence they were unable to agree, and jointly asked Martin A. Knapp, Presiding Judge of the Commerce Court, and G. W. W. Hangar, Acting Commissioner of Labor, to mediate under the Erdman act, but this also failed. The situation was put before the firemen and a strike vote was taken, in which 96½ per cent. of the men voted to strike.

"This," says the report of the board, "created a situation full of serious possibilities, not only to the parties immediately concerned, but in a much wider sense to the general public."

Messrs. Knapp and Hangar were again called in, and, though unable to settle the differences, they obtained an agreement to arbitrate under the Erdman act. Before this was reached, however, a strike became imminent because of a disagreement as to whether the arbitration should be under the law, as desired by the men, or by a board containing a larger number of laymen, such as decided the engineers' case. The men insisted that the Erdman Act be followed, because no other board would have power to swear the witnesses. At the last moment the railroads yielded and avoided a strike.

Messrs. Atterbury and Phillips were appointed by the two parties, but were unable to agree on the third arbitrator, and his selection was left to Messrs. Knapp and Hangar, as provided by the act. They chose W. L. Chambers, formerly a Judge of the International Court at Samoa, who had arbitrated the firemen's scale in the western territory, and some other railroad controversies.

The board, thus constituted, met at the Waldorf on March 10 and began the hearings, which continued daily, except for Sundays, until April 5. Since that time it has had under consideration the evidence and voluminous statistics filed by both sides. Under the provisions of the law the award was due on April 2, but the time was extended by agreement of both parties to April 23. The final revision of the award was not completed till late yesterday afternoon, and a few changes were made even in the printed copies.

The railroads involved include practically all east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers. The trackage of these railroads is approximately 70,000 miles of main line, being something more than one-fourth of the entire trackage of the United States.

"These railroads," says the report, "represent practically 40 per cent. of the total capitalization for all railroads in the United States; they carried about 47 per cent. of the ton miles and about 43 per cent. of the passenger miles of all railroads of the United States.

"The firemen employed on these railroads number in the neighborhood of 31,000 for the year 1912, and the wages for the year 1912 were approximately $29,000,000. These figures indicate, with some degree of certainty and emphasis, the magnitude of the problem and the far-reaching character of the controversies submitted for the arbitrament of this board. Reference must be had to the three printed and bound volumes of evidence taken on the stand, comprising more than 2,000 pages the four volumes of printed exhibits, comprising perhaps as many more pages in the aggregate, and the exhaustive briefs of counsel, in order to form a due estimate of the comprehensive and difficult task undertaken."

news of the route taken by the two women she followed in a taxi, but failed to overtake the trolley car before its arrival in Jersey City. When Miss Coagland arrived there she went to Police Headquarters and re-told her story, enlisting the aid of the police. She then telephoned to friends of the Bordens in this city.

Girl Hatless and Disheveled.

The chauffeur of the taxi in which the women rode after dismissing the touring car in which they arrived at the Hotel Navarre is Robert Kerber of 127 Charlton Street, Newark. He told the police he had not overheard anything said by the two women which would furnish a clue to their destination or to the whereabouts of Miss Borden. The license number on the touring car was 8631 N. J.

Miss Borden was without a hat when she disappeared, and she was somewhat disheveled by the struggle with Miss Coagland. She wore a blue serge suit. She has dark hair, dark complexion, and is of medium height and weight. From information furnished to the Jersey City police they believe that the identity of the two women is known to Miss Borden's guardians. The theory is accepted that Miss Borden had no knowledge of the plot to spirit her away.

The police are of the opinion that the two women, knowing that the pleasant day was an invitation to outdoor exercise, kept watch of the sanitarium grounds and waited until Miss Borden appeared. They were confident she would recognize them and come to the car.

Borden Divorce Suit Thrown Out.

That there was a disagreement over the rearing of the girl first became public when Mrs. Borden brought a suit for divorce on the technical ground of desertion. The case was called in the Los Angeles courts in August, 1911. Judge Hauser presided. Mr. Borden was willing that the suit should go by default, but Judge Hauser insisted that Mr. Borden submit himself for interrogation.

After taking the witness stand, Mr. Borden refused to answer questions which would reveal family secrets, but which were fundamental in the progress of the suit, unless the court excluded everybody save the witness.

"There are no secret divorce proceedings in my court," Judge Hauser said. "I want you to understand, Mr. Borden, that rich and poor are alike to me. It is optional with you whether you wish to tell all or have the case thrown out of court."

Mr. Borden declined to testify and Judge Hauser denied the application for divorce.

Visited Wife on Friday.

According to both of the Bergidas, Mrs. Robbins made no mention of her husband, and it was supposed that she was a widow until a week ago last Friday, when Robbins paid her a visit for the purpose of seeing his son. A few days later, Mrs. Robbins informed the Bergidas that one of her sisters had died suddenly and that a second sister, Miss Minnie Levy, in whose apartment the double tragedy of last night happened, was prostrated with grief.

A week ago Tuesday Mrs. Robbins informed her landlady that her sister had been ordered to go to Atlantic City to recuperate and that she was going to accompany her. She said that the reason she did not take her little son on the trip was because she was anxious that he should not lose any time at school. For this reason, she said, she was going to entrust him to the care of her sister's housekeeper.

Mrs. Borden and her daughter came to this city on a visit last June and took apartments at the Hotel St. Andrew at Broadway and Seventy-second Street. The management supplied Mrs. Borden with funds when she requested them, and when the bill amounted to $2,000 a settlement was sought. Suit was brought against Mr. Borden for the amount. The affidavit alleged that Mr. Borden had agreed to defray al lof the expenses of his wife and daughter.

In his answer to the suit made through his counsel, Mr. Borden alleged that "hotel accommodation and cash allowances already had been furnished to Mrs. Borden." The terms on which the suit was settled were not made public.

Does It Pay?

Two important business firms each made a full-page announcement in The New York Times this week. Cost per page, $960—2,400 agate lines, at 40 cents a line.

The New York Times distributed and sold 245,000 copies—an ordinary day's sale—containing each of these advertisements.

$960 for a page, and 245,000 copies of The Times, makes the cost less than two-fifths of one cent per page per subscriber—40 cents a hundred.

If an advertiser has something worthy of a page announcement, can there be any question that it is profitable to make it known in a newspaper read by intelligent, thoughtful persons, at an advertising cost of less than 40 cents to 100 persons?

This statement is not intended to urge advertisers to use full pages for their announcements, but to illustrate the small cost of an advertisement in a newspaper of the great circulation of The New York Times.

The Bauer Chemical Co.,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

I feel that I owe it to truth to state that I have made a thorough trial of the chemical preparation known as "Sanatogen," and that I found it most efficacious and beneficent. I was stricken down last September by a stubborn attack of Cystitis. The shock to my entire system during six weeks or more of torture involved little short of complete prostration. I do not believe I could have recovered my vitality, as I have done, without this "Sanatogen" operating equally upon the digestive organs and nerve centers.

According to direction I used it during the late fall and early winter, returning to it at intervals as I thought I required it with the best results. I join therefore the number of those grateful ones who have given voluntary testimony to its virtue, as an act equally of obligation to the Company which has produced it and a duty to the general public which may be profited by its uses.

Sincerely
Henry Watterson

SUCH is Colonel Watterson's happy experience with Sanatogen, which he records freely as "a duty to the public." And scores of other famous people join him in praising Sanatogen. They all found that Sanatogen brought help when help was most needed, that it gave sustaining strength and vitality, helped digestion, fortified the nerves and so cleared the way to renewed health and strength.

Persons of Col. Watterson's eminence and acknowledged leadership would not lend the dignity of their endorsement to Sanatogen if they had not really and truly felt its beneficent, health-promoting effect. And remember also that no less than eighteen thousand physicians have, over their own signatures, attested to the splendid upbuilding, vitalizing properties of Sanatogen.

Can you afford to leave Sanatogen untried?

SCUTARI'S FALL ALARMS EUROPE

Montenegrin Triumph After Six Months' Siege Raises Grave International Difficulties.

AUSTRIA WANTS COERCION

Threatens to Act Individually if the Powers Refuse to Land a Joint Force.

PERIL IN SLAV SENTIMENT

Russia May Not Be Able to Check It if Harsh Measures Against Montenegro Are Taken.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 24.—Now that Scutari has fallen and the powers' naval demonstration has proved ineffectual in checking King Nicholas's ambition, the question is being asked, What step will the powers now take to make their decision respected?

Fear is expressed that the fall of Scutari will upset the settlement which the powers so laboriously reached, and will bring the prospect of European complications again to the front, but among diplomatists, including competent judges, the opinion is held that Montenegro's victory, by strengthening King Nicholas's position among his people, will actually make it easier for him to abandon his claim to Scutari and to accept the terms of compensation proffered by the powers.

Another opinion, perhaps most common, is that the event changes nothing in the situation, at any rate as far as the policy of the powers is concerned. They agreed that upon the conclusion of peace Scutari should be incorporated in an autonomous Albania, still adhere to that view, and possess sufficient means to exert pressure without any need of recourse to violent or hasty action.

Mr. Asquith Hopeful.

The subject was discussed, but without any definite result, at the meeting of the Ambassadors yesterday afternoon to consider the reply of the allies to the powers' proposals for peace. Premier Asquith afterward referred to the question in a way which implied that he, at any rate, had little fear of international complications. Speaking at a banquet of the Foreign Press Association he declared that all the powers were working in unison, and said he had no doubt that, "rather sooner than later," an honorable and peaceful settlement would be reached.

Opposed to this favorable outlook is the opinion held by some that the Montenegrins, now that they are in possession of Scutari, will not leave it unless they are expelled by force, and that if Europe will not use force Austria will be compelled to do so.

This would be likely to endanger European peace.

The Daily Mail's Vienna correspondent says:

"Count Berchtold, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, to-night (Wednesday) addressed a note to the powers asking them to take measures to force Montenegro to evacuate Scutari within forty-eight hours. It is considered that the Montenegrins will not abandon it now except in return for territory already awarded by the powers to the future State of Albania. This Austria will not allow.

"Feeling is very strong here that the crisis must be terminated, and that if the powers cannot enforce their will on Montenegro they must give Austria a mandate to do so."

Dr. Dillon, in a dispatch from Vienna to The Daily Telegraph, points out that Austria has already unsuccessfully tried to induce the other powers to join in the disembarkation of bluejackets at Antivari and Dulcigno in order to put pressure on King Nicholas. He adds:

"The Dual Monarchy believes that the work of compelling Montenegro to evacuate Albanian territory can be done without bloodshed by an expeditionary force of 40,000, and that task she is prepared to undertake."

Russia's Position Vital.

Much depends upon the attitude which Russia adopts in connection with the new situation—whether she continues to work in harmony with the other powers, or is compelled to alter her policy, owing to the outburst of Pan-Slavist enthusiasm in St. Petersburg.

Dispatches describe the scenes of rejoicing with which the Montenegrin victory was received in the Russian capital. A "Te Deum" service was held in the Preobrazhensky Church in celebration of the event. Afterward a crowd of some thousands paraded the Nevsky Prospect, singing patriotic songs. It was ultimately dispersed by the police.

The Times's St. Petersburg correspondent, however, says that, while the triumph of the Slav arms finds a responsive echo in every Russian heart, the course to which Russian policy is committed will not permit the Government in any way to linger indefinitely over the reflections thus excited. It is recognized that a new situation has been created, with which it is necessary to deal firmly and in unbroken concert with the other powers.

Final Desperate Attack.

CETTINJE, April 23.—After a final desperate attack, lasting incessantly for almost twenty-four hours, during which they brought all their forces to bear to overcome the heroic Turkish resistance, the Montenegrin troops early this morning forced their way into the fortress of Scutari, which for just over six months, since the middle of last October, had offered such a stubborn defense. The Turks then capitulated. Their ammunition was almost exhausted.

Under the final conditions providing for the surrender the soldiers of the Turkish garrison were permitted to march out of the city with their small arms, retaining also some light guns.

The assault that gave the Montenegrins possession of the city, which has been the sole object of their war against Turkey, began on Monday night.

The Ottoman soldiers made a number of counter-attacks and tried with their utmost energy to drive the attacking forces out of their works, but they were finally compelled to fall back and leave their positions in the hands of the besiegers, who received constant reinforcements.

Although the Servian troops did not participate in the final attack, their artillery was used by the Montenegrin gunners, and it is said that to this fact the latter's success was largely due.

The act of capitulation was signed by the Turkish commander shortly after the Montenegrin troops had reached the middle of the city.

The first tidings of the fall of Scutari were received at 2 o'clock in the morning in a telegram from the Crown Prince to the King. The populace were immediately apprised of the glad news by the firing of salvos of artillery, and the ringing of church bells. Tumbling out of bed, the people assembled at the Palace, cheering enthusiastically.

From the balcony King Nicholas addressed his people, and in full view of the crowds embraced the representatives of the allies, who had called to congratulate him.

BELGRADE, April 23.—Not even the Servian victories during the war caused anything like the scenes of enthusiasm which were witnessed here to-day over the taking of Scutari by Montenegro.

Business was at a standstill while the whole population gave themselves over to rejoicing. Lawyers, merchants, soldiers, and workmen danced in the streets to the strains of music. Wine may almost be said to have been flowing in the gutters, for everywhere barrels were broached and all were free to drink to the victory of the Montenegrins and the glory of "Greater Servia."

Anxiety in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 23.—The capture of Scutari has caused great anxiety and activity in diplomatic circles here. Foreign Minister Sazonoff was busy all day conferring with Ambassadors and exchanging telegrams with the European chancelleries.

It is understood that Russian diplomacy prefers to leave the initiative to France and Great Britain, and it is believed that neither will countenance any form of coercion with respect to Montenegro. Russia herself cannot do so without straining to the breaking point the patience of her Slavophile ruling classes.

Austria Wants Coercion Used.

VIENNA, April 23.—The semi-official Fremdenblatt asserts that the Austro-Hungarian Government has submitted concrete proposals to the powers for the application of drastic measures to compel the Montenegrins to evacuate Scutari without delay.

BERLIN, April 23.—The fall of Scutari has caused the gravest anxiety in political circles here, which fear that it will ultimately involve the peace of Europe.

It is semi-officially announced to-day that the capture of the Turkish fortress cannot in the slightest degree alter the decision of the European powers to incorporate Scutari in the future State of Albania. There is, however, little expectation here either that the Montenegrins will withdraw peacefully from Scutari or that the unity of the powers will stand the test of an attempt to oust Montenegro forcibly either by means of an international expedition or by Austria and Italy acting as the mandatories of Europe.

Grave View in Rome.

ROME, April 23.—The belief is held in Rome that the success of the Montenegrins at Scutari has complicated the international situation, as it is thought that Montenegro will certainly refuse to evacuate the city, which will make coercive measures by the powers more difficult than they were when they only aimed at forcing Montenegro to abandon the siege.

The Montenegrin Minister here, M. Popovitch, declared to-day that King Nicholas would not renounce Scutari at any cost, its acquisition having been one of the strongest of Montenegro's aspirations for six centuries.

Powers' Blockade Extended.

LONDON, Thursday, April 24.—The news of the fall of Scutari has been received with extraordinary demonstrations of joy in all the Allies' capitals, notably Belgrade, and the Bulgarian Premier has sent effusive congratulations to the Montenegrin Premier.

The first effect of the fall of the fortress has been the extension of the international naval blockade to Durazzo, but what will be the next step of the Powers in facing the new situation it is difficult to foretell. According to the view prevailing in St. Petersburg, the coercion of Montenegro would not be an easy matter.

Austria-Hungary has already made definite proposals to the Powers with a view to compelling Montenegro to evacuate Scutari, but it is not certain that such proposals will be welcomed.

The press of the whole of Europe recognizes that the situation is extremely serious.

Scutari's Long Defense.

The long defense of Scutari under Essad Pasha was made by an army estimated at about 10,000 men, who also had to guard the outlying stronghold of Tarabosch and other connecting works surrounding the city. This they did so well that the Montenegrins, even when they were aided by the Servians, could not make any impression until a few weeks ago, when the Servians brought up a large number of heavy siege guns, which soon reduced the fire of the Turkish artillery.

The Montenegrins are said to have lost no fewer than 3,000 killed, and the Turks 5,000 killed during the siege of the city.

Armistice Extended to May 5.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 23.—The armistice between the Turks and the Bulgarians, which expired this evening, has been extended to noon on May 5.

Duchess of Connaught Better.

LONDON, April 23.—The Duchess of Connaught, wife of the Governor General of Canada, was not so well this morning, according to a bulletin issued by the surgeon in attendance, but she had a comfortable day and her condition has now improved. The Duchess underwent an operation for the removal of the vermiform appendix on April 10.

STRATFORD PLAYERS MAY VISIT AMERICA

Governors of Shakespeare Memorial Theatre Plan a Permanent Company.

SOUTH AFRICAN TOUR ALSO

Mme. de Navarro in Favor of the Plan—British Government Declines to Aid a National Theatre.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 23.—It is proposed to send a Shakespearean theatrical company to the United States and to South Africa under the auspices of the Governors of the Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon.

The Governors at the annual meeting to-day discussed the question of a permanent Shakespearean repertory company. The cost of getting together a first-class company solely for a three weeks' programme at the annual festival at Stratford-on-Avon is prohibitive.

F. R. Benson has been carrying on a repertory company in the last few years, but the Governors take the view that the time has come to place the whole concern on a permanent footing and agree that the best hope lies in sending companies to America and South Africa under the banner of Stratford-on-Avon.

Mr. Savory, manager of Mr. Benson's company, visited America as a preliminary to the projected tour and reports favorably on the prospects there. Mme. de Navarro, (Mary Anderson,) who is one of the Governors of the Memorial Theatre, also thinks highly of the possibilities of a tour of the United States.

Mr. Benson, basing his conclusion on observations during a recent visit to California, is strongly of the same opinion.

The chief points in favor of the enterprise are that unless something of the kind is done it may be impossible to keep together a company sufficiently strong to carry on the festivals on the same scale and same high artistic standard as before and that the tours would form an excellent advertisement for the Spring and Summer festivals.

To-night the House of Commons debated the question of the establishment of a National theatre in London, to be vested in trustees and assisted by the State, for the performance of plays by Shakespeare and other National dramatists.

Mr. MacKinder, in moving the resolution, said £500,000, ($2,500,000,) would be required to make the scheme a success. About £100,000 had already been collected, and one of the finest sites in London was now the subject of negotiation by the promoters of the undertaking.

The Government, however, was unsympathetic. Ellis Griffith, Under Secretary of the Home Office, was its spokesman, and treated the proposal with considerable levity, not unmixed with ridicule. The time, he said, for a National theatre had not yet come. When it did come it would be for the State to contribute, not a capital sum, but an annual subsidy.

APPLAUDED, BUT SHE LOSES

Verdict Against Englishwoman Who Spoke 330,000 Words in Court.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 23.—Miss Lind, the anti-vivisection leader who sued The Pall Mall Gazette and Dr. Saleeby for alleged libel, lost her case to-day, the jury returning a verdict in favor of the defendants.

Miss Lind during the sixteen days' hearing achieved a feat of eloquence probably unparalleled in the case of a woman. It is estimated that she spoke in fifty-six hours about 330,000 words.

She conducted her own case with remarkable forensic ability against some of the most skillful advocates at the bar. She will have to pay between $25,000 and $30,000 costs.

Miss Lind's last speech to-day was passionately eloquent, provoking loud applause, which the Judge did not suppress because, he said, he thought it "a laudable expression in the circumstances."

BERLIN, April 23.—A bill reducing the age limit at which a German workman is entitled to be pensioned from 70 years, as at present, to 65 years, was submitted to the Imperial Parliament to-day by the Budget Committee. The measure was proposed by the Socialist members.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 23.—The sale at Christie's of Sir Lionel Phillips's collections was continued to-day, when objects of vertu, porcelain, and French furniture were disposed of.

The highest price was £3,150 ($15,750) paid for a set of four Louis XV. fauteuils. The framework is of gilt wood, fluted, and carved with flowers, shells, foliage, and ribands. The seats, backs, and arms are covered with Beauvais tapestry, the seats with representations of Aesop's Fables, and the backs with swans, eagles, and other birds.

A very fine oblong panel of Gobelin tapestry, sold for £2,730, represents "Mercury Playing Argus to Sleep." On the left is a mountainous woody landscape. The border is of rosettes and ribands in shades of brown. The size of the panel is 10 feet 2 inches by 11 feet 8 inches.

Another notable item was a Louis XV. oval marqueterie table of tulipwood and hardwood inlaid with vases, flowers, and utensils. It brought £493.

A Louis XV. bonheur-du-jour table of oak veneered with tulipwood inlaid with a trellis design in harewood brought £504.

A Louis XV. marqueterie table with a folding top inclosing a mirror, inlaid with Chinese figures designed in the manner of David de Luneville, was sold for £840.

VOTES FOR ARMS INQUIRY.

Reichstag Passes Resolution as Result of Krupp Disclosures.

BERLIN, April 23.—The Reichstag to-day passed the resolution introduced by the Clerical Party on Monday, providing for the appointment of a commission composed of members of the Reichstag and experts to investigate all German armament contracts.

This is an outcome of the disclosures made by the Socialist leader, Dr. Carl Liebknecht, with regard to the relations between the Krupp firm and officials of the German War Office for the purpose of gaining information about armament contracts.

STRASSBURG, April 23.—The Government of the Provinces of Alsace-Lorraine was censured last night by the Second Chamber of the Provincial Diet for instructing its representatives in the Federal Council of the German Empire to vote for the Military bills increasing the German army, which the members of the Diet declared to be contrary to the views of the population of Alsace-Lorraine. The motion was adopted by 47 votes against 5.

An official statement by the Viceroy of the Provinces declaring that the military measures were of a purely defensive character in order to enable the German Empire, which had not the remotest aggressive intentions, to ward off any attack with the full force of the German nation, was read without producing any effect on the legislators.

POPE UP SEVERAL HOURS.

The Vatican Paper Says His Condition Continually Improves.

ROME, April 23.—The Osservatore Romano, the Vatican organ, says this evening:

"We are happy to be able to announce that the convalescence of the Holy Father proceeds regularly and that there is a progressive movement in his general condition. For the past three days his Holiness has been able to rise from his bed and to remain up several hours each day. Owing to the satisfactory condition in the health of the Holy Father from day to day, we have no new facts worthy of chronicling."

The Pope rose from bed at 10:30 this morning and was allowed by the physicians to walk a few steps in his bedroom. His temperature was 97.

He suffers less from prostration and his strength has improved, although his bronchial congestion still exists, with cough and abundant expectoration.

A bronze group of statuary, brought as a gift yesterday by a party of French pilgrims, was shown to the Pope in his bedroom this morning. He expressed his great admiration of the work and the religious feeling it showed, and uttered some words of praise in regard to the piety and loyalty of the French, in spite of what he described as the efforts of a small section of the people of that country to entice the faithful from the right path.

'PANURGE' PREMIER A GREAT SUCCESS

Massenet's Posthumous Opera, on a Rabelaisian Theme, Merry and Tuneful.

"GHOST" DOES NOT APPEAR

Melba, in Concert, Delights Another Great Parisian Audience.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 23.—Massenet's posthumous opera "Panurge," the libretto of which was adapted from Rabelais, was performed for the first time this afternoon at the Gaîété before a packed audience of the critics and the Paris artistic world generally.

The work is an entire departure from Massenet's well-known style. It is gay music practically throughout, and perfectly suited to the Gargantuan humor of the story. The third act may almost be called musical comedy. The only reminiscence of the late composer's style is found in the intermezzo before the last act. This reminds one of "Thaïs," is exceedingly catchy, and sure to become popular.

The opera was received most favorably. The baritone, Marcoux, achieved a great success as Panurge. The tenor, Martinelli, also gave a remarkable performance.

The "ghost" of the composer did not appear; it has not been seen since Monday, the date of the first private rehearsal.

Another notable musical event was this evening's concert at the Theatre Champs Elysées, where Melba sang for the first time in Paris in fifteen years. The announcement that she would sing filled the house to overflowing. No such enthusiasm has been witnessed in a Paris theatre since Caruso's last appearance.

Despite a slight dullness in a few of her notes, the singer appeared to be still possessed of the great freshness and purity of tone that made her famous. She was best in the mad scene from "Hamlet"; she also sang excerpts from "La Bohème" and "Otello." She had to respond to over a dozen calls before the audience consented to leave the house.

EUCHARIST CONGRESS.

Cardinal Ferrata, Pope's Legate, Speaks on Malta's Religious History

VALLETTA, April 23.—The fourteenth International Eucharistic Congress was inaugurated to-day in the celebrated Rotunda Church of Musta, where 10,000 persons assembled.

The Papal Legate, Cardinal Ferrata, delivered a stirring address, in which he reviewed the religious history of Malta.

The selection of the church at the village of Musta for the opening of the Eucharistic Congress caused some surprise, in view of the many splendid ancient churches in Valletta, not to speak of the cathedral there and the equally remarkable cathedral at Citta Vecchia, the ancient capital of the island.

The church at Musta, however, is a remarkable building. It was built by the inhabitants of the village between the years 1833 and 1864, its dome, 118 feet in diameter, being erected without the use of scaffolding.

Musta is two miles from the Palance of Sant' Antonio, once the Summer seat of the Grand Master of the Knights of Malta.

BELGIAN WORKERS REJOICE.

General Disposition to End the Strike on Compromise Terms.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 24.—The Brussels correspondent of The Times says that to all intents and purposes, unless the congress of workingmen convened for to-morrow should break away from the leaders, the great Belgian political strike is at an end. The Strike Committee in extraordinary meeting to-day accepted unanimously the result of yesterday's motion in Parliament, and "considering that the general strike has realized so far all the results of possible actual achievement and fully demonstrated its efficiency, the committee gladly places on record its achievement and promises all citizens the speedy success of universal suffrage as a condition indispensable to national tranquillity, and has decided to urge upon the congress of workingmen the immediate resumption of work."

BRUSSELS, April 23.—As the strikers so far have religiously obeyed all the directions of their leaders, there seems to be no likelihood that they will disregard the desire to return to work unanimously expressed by the General Strike Committee to-day.

This committee adopted a resolution proposed by MM. Vandervelde, Anseele, and Destrées affirming that the general strike had impressively evidenced the strength and solidarity of the laboring class; that it had brought the question of universal suffrage before the public in the clearest possible manner, and that it had raised a debate in the Chamber of Deputies, causing the Premier clearly to define his intentions, which had been placed on record by the vote of the Chamber. The general strike had thus produced all the results that could be expected, and for this reason the Socialist Congress should be asked to order an immediate resumption of work.

The Clerical press asserts that Deputy Masson's resolution adopted by the Chamber yesterday does not alter the status quo in the slightest, and the Socialists and Liberals realize that they have no definite pledge for a revision of the Constitution. Nevertheless they have confidence in the moral lien they have on the Government for the fulfilment of the long desired end.

The Clerical leader, M. Woeste, is quoted as saying bitterly to Liberals who questioned him: "Well, now you can chant your paean of victory."

MRS. DESPARD ARRESTED.

She and Other Suffragists Try to Hold Meeting in Trafalgar Square.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 23.—Mrs. Despard and two other suffragettes were arrested to-night while attempting to hold a meeting in Trafalgar Square in defiance of the new police regulations.

The women mounted the plinth of the Nelson Monument and rang bells to attract a crowd. Mrs. Despard proceeded to deliver a speech. The crowd threatened to duck the women in the fountain, and the police interfered.

The women refused to depart and were arrested. Later they were liberated.

MANCHESTER, April 23.—In sentencing two militant suffragettes, Mrs. Forrester and Miss Manesta, at the Manchester Assizes to-day, the Judge, Sir John Eldon Bankes, said: "I would send you round the world in a sailing ship if the law permitted me so to dispose of you."

The women were brought up at the Assizes for trial on the charge of raiding on April 3 the Manchester Art Gallery and smashing the glass of thirteen famous pictures, which, they said, they did as a protest against the sentence of three years' imprisonment passed on their leader, Mrs. Pankhurst.

The Judge declared that, failing the remedy he suggested as a cure for suffragette militancy, he would have to send them to jail for three months and a month, respectively, and they would have to serve additional terms of six months and four months, respectively, unless they found sureties for their good behavior on leaving jail.

LONDON, April 23.—The "Hunger-strike" bill, which has been called the "Cat and Mouse" bill by the suffragettes, passed its third reading in the House of Commons this evening by a vote of 294 to 56.

NEW CROY COMPLICATION.

Children of Marriage with Commoner Barred from Family Property.

BERLIN, April 23.—In connection with the betrothal of Miss Nancy Leishman, daughter of the American Ambassador to Germany, and the Duke of Croy, the Tageblatt cites a decision of the Prussian Court of Appeals in a similar case.

This was to the effect that the children of the marriage between the Duke's cousin, Prince Emanuel of Croy, and Miss Parnell, an Englishwoman, were not entitled to share the family fortune because the bride was not of noble birth.

The guardian of the present Duke of Croy, then a minor, lodged the complaint on behalf of the Duke as the head of the family. He also asked that the children be deprived of the Princely title, but the court ruled that it had no jurisdiction in this matter, as the children were French citizens.

TO AID SUDAN COTTON.

Lloyd George Introduces a Bill Guaranteeing a $15,000,000 Loan.

LONDON, April 23.—Protection for the cotton trade of Lancashire by fostering the supply of cotton independent of America was the gist of Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George's argument on introducing in the House of Commons this evening a resolution permitting the British Government to guarantee a Sudan loan of $15,000,000 for the development of cotton growing along the Nile.

The Chancellor remarked that owing to occasional difficulties with regard to the supplies of American cotton, arising from the market being cornered and thus causing a shortage here despite abundant crops, it was necessary to foster the growth of cotton where it would be under British control.

Egyptian cotton, he declared, was better from the point of view of the manufacturer, owing to the superior quality of the goods obtained from that product, and also better from the point of view of the workman, because it was cleaner and more healthful to work than was American cotton.

¶ Every man is anxious to cut a figure, socially and financially.

¶ And it is too sad that if a man cannot cut a figure financially, he is apt to be cut socially.

¶ We are still a long way from that ideal state of affairs when merit and not money shall be the law of social selection.

¶ Yet this much can be said of the world, that it can forgive a depleted exchequer far more readily than it can overlook a slovenly appearance.

¶ It is time for you to cut a figure—to cut a wide swath to distinction through the lane of witless, mediocre styles—and Saks' is the short cut to both.

¶ There isn't anything in the art of designing, of cutting or of tailoring that does not find its highest expression in Saks clothes.

¶ And the man who wears a Saks garment has the satisfaction of knowing that he has availed himself of the best tailoring talent that the world affords.

¶ We have been cutting figures so long, Gentlemen, that we would like to show you how to cut one, too.

MULRANEY READY TO DIE.

Tells Lawyer to Drop His Appeal—Hearing Will Go On.

Joseph A. Shay, counsel for John Mulraney, gave out a letter yesterday which the prisoner wrote to him immediately after his testimony last Friday, when he told Judge Rosalsky that William Beaule, known as Harry Clark, a prisoner in Clinton Prison, had instigated the murder of Patrick McBreen, for which Mulraney is under sentence.

In his letter Mulraney said that he wanted Mr. Shay to stop the hearing before Judge Rosalsky in his application for a new trial. Mulraney's letter was as follows:

354 Hunter Street, Ossining, N. Y.,
Saturday, April 19, 1913.

Joseph A. Shay, 25 Broad Street, New York City:

My Dear Sir: I did something yesterday that caused me a night of untold torture. Hell itself could be no worse. In fact, I went against my conscience in order to be loyal to you gentlemen. I wrecked and broke a spirit that has caused me more anguish than three lives like mine are worth. I did it for you men because I considered it my duty to you in return for what you did for me. I do not want to be known as a "squealer" even to you men. I feel ashamed because of what you and others have done for me. I thought it over all night and came to the conclusion that your name and those of the others that helped me would suffer, for no doubt the ones I spoke of yesterday will meet their end and it will come out in the end that what I told you yesterday is the truth, and hope that will be enough to prove that I was on the level.

I simply can't be a "squealer." I tried hard yesterday, but God knows it goes against my nature. What makes it doubly hard for me is to testify against Beaule. If he was a stoolpigeon or something it would be different, but he proved loyal. He told you I was innocent. The thing that hurts me most and causes me deep regret and makes me feel like a dog is even Judge Rosalsky told me how loyal Beaule was to me. Even when Judge Rosalsky threatened him with perjury and all that, still he couldn't make him squeal. If I could get out in a week I couldn't squeal. It's impossible. My nature rebels against the thought of it.

I have been crooked, but I do not want to be a cur in the bargain. If I must die I want to die like a man. I am not in a position to pay you, except in thanks, and those I give you from the bottom of my heart. I ask you to accept the gratitude of a doomed man, hoping God will bless you for your kindness. Now, tell Judge Rosalsky and the District Attorney not to go any further for me, but the day will come when my innocence will be proved. Tell them to drop everything. Yours in gratitude, JOHN MULRANEY.

I'm sorry I didn't open my breast to you at first.

Following the receipt of this letter Mr. Shay communicated with Assistant District Attorney J. Robert Rubin, who said that under no circumstances would the case be dropped. The hearing will go on Friday when Beaule will be called as a witness.

When first called as a witness for Mulraney, Beaule said that he had had a fight with McBreen and had been ordered from his place and that on the night of the murder he was passing when he saw John Dowling, who confessed to the murder of McBreen and implicated Mulraney, leaving with Martin Fay and a man named "Frank." Following Beaule came Mordecai Saltzman, an operative of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, who testified that Mulraney had told him that he murdered McBreen. Judge Rosalsky then decided to visit Mulraney in the Death House again. Mulraney told then still another story about the murder.

In all Mulraney has made five different statements about the murder.

PISTOL SHOTS STOP FLEEING TAXICAB

Three Men in It Charged with Having Taken Part in a Daylight Hold-up.

ONE A BECKER CASE WITNESS

Insists He Won Diamond Ring and $150 Which Victim Says Was Taken from Him in Street.

Policeman Hahn, who was on duty at the fixed post created on Sixth Avenue at Thirteenth Street after the hold-up and murder at Adolph Stern's jewelry store, heard cries for help at Fourteenth Street and Sixth Avenue at sunrise yesterday morning. He saw three men board a taxicab at that corner, leaving behind a prostrate man who was calling for help. The taxicab started to speed uptown along Sixth Avenue. Policeman Hahn fired five shots at it without bringing it to a halt.

The firing, however, attracted the attention of Policeman Florence Sullivan, who was on Sixth Avenue at Eighteenth Street. As the taxicab approached Sullivan ran out into its path and called to the chauffeur to stop. As the machine kept on Sullivan fired two shots at its tires. Scared by the shots at close range the chauffeur threw on the brakes and brought the taxicab to a halt so quickly that his companion on the front seat was thrown to the pavement fifteen feet in front of the machine, where he law stunned.

Policeman Sullivan jumped upon the machine and collared the chauffeur, who was clinging to the steering wheel to save himself from a fall. As the machine stopped one of the doors swung open and the third man, who had been riding inside, jumped to the sidewalk and started to run for he stairs of the Sixth Avenue elevated station. He was overtaken and arrested by Detective Kirke of the West Seventeenth Street Station, who had been drawn to the spot by the revolver shots.

Meantime the man who had called for help had come up from Fourteenth Street with Policeman Hahn. He said he was Isaac Swimer, an engineer, of 46 Seventh Street. He told the detectives that he had been attacked and robbed of a diamond ring worth $200 and $150 in cash by the three men.

Swimer's story was that he was on his way home after working all night when he stopped at the corner of Sixth Avenue and Fourteenth Street to light a pipe. As he did so the taxicab rolled up to the curb. Two of the men got out and one said to him:

"We're having a little trouble here, friend. Could you change a $20 bill for us?"

Swimer said he supposed the men wanted to make change for the chauffeur and he reached into his pocket for a roll of bills.

"Never mind counting it. Hand it over," commanded one of the men, according to Swimer.

At this the engineer hastily stuck his roll of bills back into his pocket, but the two men, he said, sprang upon him, overpowered him, and robbed him of his money and the diamond ring.

The three prisoners described themselves as Harry Ackerman, a chauffeur living at 222 East Eighteenth Street; Harry Cohen, a chauffeur, of 231 Eldridge Street, and Abraham Ambusch, a clerk, of 135 East Seventeenth Street.

At Police Headquarters Cohen said that he had been a witness in the Becker case, and was the chauffeur who had driven "Jack" Rose and others in the murder conspiracy to the home of Dora Gilbert on the night of the murder in order to obtain from her an affidavit attacking the character of Herman Rosenthal. Cohen was the spokesman for the three prisoners and he told this story:

"I was all night at a crap game in Fourteenth Street. I made one killing early in the evening and had Ackerman, who is a chauffeur for Samuel Lichtenstein at the Alhambra garage in East 115th Street, drive me to my home, where I gave $25 to my mother. Coming back I joined in the game again. Swimer was playing, and I cleaned him out of $100.

"He wanted more money to play with, and I gave him $100 on his ring, giving the ring to my friend Ambusch to hold. At daybreak we left the place together. Swimer began to call us names and to demand his ring back. This led to a fight, and when he started to call for help we jumped into the taxicab and started away to avoid trouble."

The three prisoners were held without bail for trial when they appeared in the afternoon in the Jefferson Market Court by Magistrate March. Cohen and Swimer each repeated their conflicting stories in court.

TWO TAXI BANDITS GUILTY.

One of Young's Gang Convicted, Another Takes a Plea.

Philip Forsythe, one of the members of Joseph A. Young's gang of taxicab bandits, was convicted of robbery in the first degree before Judge Foster in General Sessions yesterday and remanded one week for sentence.

Forsythe was one of four men who held up and robbed Bert Newman, a restaurant keeper in West 144th Street, on March 15 last.

John Quinn, known as "The Slugger," and the man who did all the actual blackjacking for the gang, was placed on trial then and pleaded guilty to robbery in the second degree. He corroborated the testimony given by Young and his partner, Charles Lober.

Quinn admitted that he assaulted the two bank messengers for the Silk Finishing Company and after knocking them unconscious with a piece of lead pipe stole a satchel containing $1,986, which Patrick Bolger, convicted of robbery, carried to a waiting automobile. He also admitted assaulting Newman.

With the pleading of Quinn Assistant District Attorney Bostwick has cleared up all but two of the cases on his list. So far five men have been convicted of robbery in the first degree, three have pleaded to robbery in the second degree, two have pleaded to attempted assault, and one has pleaded to assault. The case of Frank Ferar, who is alleged to have received the automobile used in the Newman holdup, will be tried next week, as will Simon Goldstein, a chauffeur, who drove the car which contained George and Robert McVetty, Patrick Bolger, and Charles Clark, all convicted of robbery and sentenced to prison. Goldstein says he simply acted as chauffeur for the men and is not a member of the gang.

MEANT TO ROB PAYMASTER.

Hold-up Men from Manhattan Had Timed His Visits to Bank.

Four hold-up men from Manhattan visited Williamsburg yesterday morning to hold up the paymaster of the American Sugar Refinery Company on his way from the bank to the factory. Because of precautions taken by the police they abandoned the attempt. The men then entered the junk shop of Philip Fogelman, at South Sixth Street and Wythe Avenue, held the proprietor up with revolvers and robbed him of $55.

Two of the men were captured after a chase of several blocks, during which the fugitives and police exchanged shots. The prisoners said they were Edward Swift, 24 years old, of 559 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, and Harry Fay, 23 years old, of 442 East Seventy-second Street, Manhattan.

Swift made a confession to Capt. Shaw of the Bedford Avenue Station in which he admitted the men had planned for several weeks to hold up the sugar company's paymaster. They had carefully timed his visits to the Manufacturers' Bank at Broadway and Berry Street, and knew at what time he returned. They planned to rob him at South Sixth Street and Kent Avenue, which is a busy section.

When the four hold-up men got to the scene at 9 A. M. yesterday they found policemen stationed on every corner, and seeing that it would be impossible to escape arrest if they attempted to rob the paymaster they left and went to the junk shop.

Sergt. Schilling of the Bedford Avenue Station saw the men leave the junk shop and suspecting trouble ran down into the place, and then with Fogelman behind him started in chase of the thieves. He followed them south to the Williamsburg Bridge, firing his revolver. The robbers returned the fire and at the bridge prepared to fight off the one policeman, but when half a dozen others were drawn to the scene by the pistol shots two of the men fled toward the river, while the other two surrendered.

Two revolvers the cartridges of which had been exploded were found a short distance away from where the men were captured. They were charged with assault and robbery and held without bail. The police have a good description of the men who escaped.

BLUFFED OFF THREE GUNMEN.

Bartender Put Cash in His Pocket and Told Them to "Beat It."

Three gunmen, who entered a saloon near the navy yard in Brooklyn early yesterday morning and held the bartender up at the point of their revolvers, lost their nerve when he refused to surrender the contents of his cash register and fled from the place without a cent of plunder. It is believed they made their escape in an automobile.

William S. Siemerring was behind the bar of the saloon, owned by Henry Paulsen, at 124 Park Avenue, when the hold-up men entered. There were three of them. About twenty of Paulsen's regular customers were in the saloon. The strangers ordered drinks and, as Siemerring turned to serve them, he found himself looking down the muzzles of three revolvers.

Two of the gunmen covered Siemerring with their weapons while the shortest of the three started behind the bar to rifle the register. Despite the threats to shoot which were shouted at him, the bartender beat the small bandit to the till and put the contents, amounting to more than $100, into his pockets.

"Come across," demanded the gunmen.

"Beat it," replied Siemerring.

Finding Siemerring showed no disposition to give up the plunder, the three backed toward the door, keeping Siemerring covered with their revolvers, and disappeared.

Policeman Mayer of the Flushing Avenue Station, who answered Siemerring's alarm, said that he had passed the saloon a few minutes before and saw an automobile with a green body and yellow stripes standing in front of it. It was gone when he returned. It is supposed the men made their escape in it. In a safe in the saloon was $600 in cash.

Paulsen makes a practice of cashing checks for the workmen of the navy yard, and, as yesterday was pay day for some of the men, the auto bandits probably thought it was a good time to make a haul.

HOTELS WILL FIGHT GAYNOR'S TAXI LAW

Will Ask Aldermen Not to Abolish Their Private Cab Stands.

COMPLAIN OF BAD SERVICE

Independent Taxis Often Dirty, Says Hotel Man—Roger Ervine Defends the Mayor's Plan.

Hotel and restaurant proprietors in the "lobster belt" were worried yesterday when they heard of the new cab ordinance planned by Mayor Gaynor to reduce the rates and abolish private taxicab stands in front of the large hostelries. The Hotel Men's Association will ask for a public hearing before the Board of Aldermen to present their objections to the measure and, if possible, prevent it from becoming a law. Failing in this, the association will endeavor to have the provisions of the proposed ordinance modified so as to meet existing conditions as the hotel proprietors see them.

The objections of the hotel men are that by granting the taxicab privilege to a single reputable taxicab company each hotel insures its patrons against imposition and theft as well as numerous petty annoyances.

"If a woman loses any jewelry in one of the cabs doing business in front of our hotel," said the assistant manager of the Waldorf-Astoria, "we are able to trace it for her. We know the number of the cab in which she rode and the identity of the driver. Frequently a patron leaves a purse or handbag in one of the cabs and there is never any difficulty about finding it. If every independent public chauffeur were permitted to take passengers from the hotel there would be no protection for strangers. These chauffeurs frequently take roundabout routes to show a large fare upon the clock meter.

"Another objection to the independent taxicab is that it is often dirty and ill kept. A woman wearing an expensive evening gown might hire a taxicab and ruin her dress. She would have no recourse. The cabs which are operated by the big companies are clean and upholstered in the best fashion."

Roger Ervine, Secretary of the Independent Taxicab Operators' League, said that the objections of the hotel men were selfish and that the attitude of Mayor Gaynor upon the private taxicab stand proposition was the only just and equitable one.

"It is foolish for the hotel men to declare that competition would place their patrons at the mercy of irresponsible, fare-grabbing, or dishonest chauffeurs," he said. "In the first place the starter or doorman at each hotel could take the number of every car which took a passenger from the hotel, and in this way responsibility could be fixed. As for dirty taxicabs, there would be little chance of such vehicles doing business or getting calls from the exclusive hotels or restaurants. The fact of the matter is that the hotels are raking in a revenue of more than $300,000 a year from the big taxicab companies for granting them exclusive privileges to do business in front of their houses. It is absolutely illegal for the hotels to rent space on the public streets to the exclusion of other vehicles, and this is exactly what the present private cab stand system amounts to.

"So far as the risk of extortion through chauffeurs taking roundabout routes is concerned, it is not nearly so bad as the certainty which now confronts the taxicab patrons that they will be obliged to contribute to the rake-off given by the companies to the hotel proprietors. As soon as monopoly has been done away with at the places where the greatest public hacking patronage exists, it will be possible for every taxicab operator, including the big companies, to make reasonable profits at the new legal scale of rates fixed in the proposed ordinance.

"Of course, there is no doubt that there are irresponsible and criminal chauffeurs doing business in this city, but the average independent operator is as anxious to put those fellows out of business as the hotel men can possibly be. They give the business a bad name, and have been the greatest asset which the big companies have had when it came to getting hold of private stands."

At the Hotel Knickerbocker James B. Regan, the proprietor, said that he did not believe the proposed ordinance would affect his hotel, as the hotel maintains its own taxicab service.

"I do not think that any law could be drawn which would forbid a business man from having his own vehicles in front of his place of business," said Mr. Regan. "That is the position of the Knickerbocker.

"The great argument, to my mind, against the independent taxicab for hotel service," continued Mr. Regan, "is that the operators disdain to take short fare calls in the small hours of the morning. For example, we frequently have patrons in the hotel who desire to board a steamship early in the morning. By having our own service we know that the patron will not be disappointed, and that a taxicab will be on hand when wanted. Another difficulty is with the theatre service rendered by the independents. A chauffeur may take a party of three to the theatre or opera, and have a return call. In the meantime he may secure a passenger who wants to go to Yonkers or Coney Island, and he is likely to throw away the return call in order to accept the long-distance fare, which promises to be much more profitable. When any of our patrons leave the hotel for the theatre they are assured that their taxicab will be on hand at the close of the performance to take them back again."

B. AND M. DIVIDENDS PAID FROM SURPLUS

4 and 5 Per Cent. Distributed to Make Bonds Legal Savings Bank Investments.

AN EXPENSIVE NEW LINE

Mellen Interests to Operate Hampden Branch at $12,000 a Mile—Others Cost $3,000.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 23.—Probably the most interesting testimony brought out to-day in the investigation of the Mellen railroad system before Inter-State Commerce Commerce Commissioner Prouty was that concerning the Maine Central.

It was shown that the indebtedness of the Maine Central had been increased $20,000,000 since Mr. Mellen became its President; that the Portland Terminal Company was organized out of whole cloth to control transportation in Maine; that the Portland Terminal Company was capitalized at $1,000,000; that it issued bonds of $4,750,000 at par value of $100; that these bonds were sold to J. P. Morgan at 88, allowing the bankers a profit of $570,000; that the New Haven, through the Maine Central, paid the Ricker Hotel Company approximately $1,400,000 for its hotel property and assumed an additional indebtedness of the company, amounting to about $1,000,000. Mr. Ricker of the company was a Director of the Boston & Maine at the time.

Vice President Hobbs of the Boston & Maine testified that his road earned only one-half of one per cent. in 1911, but paid a 5 per cent. dividend. It earned in 1912 only 2 8-10 per cent., yet paid a 4 per cent. dividend. To-day it is not earning enough to pay fixed charges.

The dividends were made up from a $2,000,000 surplus fund.

It was explained on behalf of the company that it was not considered improper for a public service corporation to pay dividends greater than the earnings, and that the surplus was maintained for that purpose. In order for bonds of a railroad to be legal investments for Massachusetts savings banks it is necessary for the railroad to pay a dividend of at least 4 per cent. on its stock.

Louis Brandeis, attorney for the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, took up the case of the Hampden Railroad Corporation, which is constructing a line from Bondsville to Springfield, a distance of fifteen miles. The new road parallels the Athol branch of the Boston & Albany Division of the New York Central. Freight and passenger traffic from Springfield to New Hampshire and Maine points and to Boston, over the Boston & Maine system, must either go by way of Northampton or pay trackage charges over the Athol branch, pending the completion of the Hampden Road. The road joins the Central Massachusetts Line of the Boston & Maine at Bondsville, and on the Springfield end must use the Boston & Albany terminal station.

Mr. Hobbs said that the line was expected to increase the business of the Boston & Maine by giving it a direct connection between New York and New Hampshire and Maine points. It was brought out by Commissioner Prouty that the net annual operating cost per mile of the Hampden road would be about $12,000, while for the rest of the Boston & Maine Line the cost was about $3,000 a mile. Mr. Prouty said that the new road was costing almost as much a mile as the Culebra Cut.

Mr. Hobbs was on the stand when an adjournment until to-morrow was taken.

SULZER INCREASES ASTONISH TAMMANY

Generosity, Which Involves Expenditures of About $400,000, Staggers Legislators.

BILL FRIGHTENS MURTAUGH

Proposed Addition of $200,000 a Year to Highway Department Which Leader Could Not Support.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 23.—Although Gov. Sulzer began his administration with pledges of retrenchment and economy that were most explicit, he has developed within the last week generosity in the matter of salaries in the State service which has staggered even the Tammany Legislature, which is very free in dispensing the people's money. The State budget will be increased approximately by $400,000 by increased salaries and expenditures in various departments.

It was only yesterday that there came from the Executive Chamber to Senator John F. Murtaugh of Chemung a bill providing for salary increases in the reorganized State Highway Department aggregating nearly $200,000 a year. First of all, the salary of the State Highway Commissioner was to be raised from $10,000 to $15,000 a year. The salary of the head of the Highway Department has been increased once since Mr. Sulzer became Governor. Under the highway law that was in force when Mr. Sulzer took hold at Albany the Commissioner was to be employed at a salary not to exceed $8,000 a year. In the Sulzer Highway bill the salary was jumped to $10,000. This was considered extravagant at the time, and there was some opposition on the part of the economists in the Legislature. When the proposal again to increase the Commissioner's salary reached the Senate chamber yesterday the lawmakers were stricken speechless.

But the proposed increase of the highway chief's salary was not all. The bill provided for an increase in the salary of the chief's secretary from $5,000 to $10,000 a year. This figure is supposed to hit to top-notch as secretarial salaries go in the service not only of the various States but of the Federal Government. It is understood that this place in the reorganized Highway Department is reserved for John A. Hennsey, who at the present time is executive auditor to Gov. Sulzer.

The bill sent to Senator Murtaugh contained more surprises. One was a provision for a consulting engineer in the Highway Department at a salary of $12,500 a year. Another clause provided for the expenditure of $175,000 a year by the State for fifty "confidential Inspectors" exempt from civil service examination at salaries of $3,500 a year each.

Senator Murtaugh, after glancing through the various amendments to the highway law contained in the new bill, sent word to the Executive Chamber that he would not dare to face his constituency in Chemung were he to stand sponsor for a measure providing such unwarranted expenditures for mere salary increases. Thereupon the bill was returned to Gov. Sulzer, who had it introduced by Senator White of Schenectady with the fifty Inspectorships eliminated.

Another bill was introduced in the Senate on Monday night providing for generous increases of the salaries in the State Architect's Department. At present the State Architect receives a salary of $7,500 a year. Men capable in executive work have consented to serve for that salary in the past, and it was not until Herman W. Hoefer was appointed by Gov. Dix and reappointed by Gov. Sulzer that there was any scandal in the department. But Gov. Sulzer, in order to place future State Architects above temptation and obtain men of distinction for this work, has determined that the salary of the office shall be $15,000 a year. Generous provision is also made for the State Architect's help.

At present the State Architect has two assistants. He will have three assistants if the Sulzer idea finds favor with the Senate Finance Committee and the Committee on Rules in the Assembly. The salaries of these assistants will be respectively $10,000, $7,500, and $5,000 a year. There will also be a secretary at $7,500 a year, an auditor with the same annual salary, and five Building Inspectors at $2,500 a year each.

Other increases in salaries are to be made by Gov. Sulzer's proposed reorganization of the State Health Department. The annual appropriation will be increased by about $100,000, but it may be a profitable investment for the State because of the better service which the department will render. The salary of the head of the department has been doubled. It is now $5,000 a year.

New Department Add $150,000.

The new Department of Efficiency and Economy, which will be in charge of John H. Delaney, will add, according to a conservative estimate, about $150,000 to the State budget. The head of the department will receive $12,000 a year, which is $2,000 more than the Governor himself receives from the State.

The reorganized Department of Labor will cost the State in net increase over the cost of conducting the present department some $200,000 a year. But here also provision has been made for more extensive machinery of supervision and regulation.

A bill not emanating from Gov. Sulzer provides for an annual increase in the salaries of the three Civil Service Commissioners of $2,000 each, and extends their term of office to six years from two. There are no added duties or responsibilities. The Commissioners now receive $3,000 a year each.

Two Republican members of the Senate, Senators Emerson of Warren and Ormrod of Monroe, made it possible for Gov. Sulzer to make another increase in salaries under the present administration. Their votes with those of the Democratic Senators passed the Bush bill giving Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commander of the National Guard, a salary of $8,000 a year. The bill was denounced as a measure which injected politics into the Guard. It was pointed out that Major Gen. Charles F. Roe held the office for many years without salary, and that as soon as Gen. O'Ryan took the place an effort was made to give him a salary. It was also said that Gen. O'Ryan took the office knowing that there was no salary attached to it, althought the office of Adjutant General, a paid office, had been offered to him.

Senator Herrick said that Gen. O'Ryan gave his entire time to his duties and was not in a position to maintain his family unless he received pay.

When the bill was enacted Senator Walters said Gen. O'Ryan was assured of a large salary for twenty-two years. It was predicted by the opponents of the bill that other men who were devoting nearly all of their time to service in the guard would ask the same favor from the Legislature.

Gov. Sulzer has complained a great deal about being unable to obtain men of proper calibre for State service at the salaries the State pays. His predecessors did not experience that difficulty, at least not to the same extent. Gov. Hughes was able to attract sizable men to the State service at the salaries paid. Even Gov. Dix was successful in enlisting the services of men like William Church Osborn, William H. Hotchkiss, and Thomas Mott Osborne, all men of the highest standing and all of whom worked for less money at the head of important departments than the salary Gov. Sulzer proposes to pay to the Secretary in the State Architect's office.

In view of the frugality displayed by the Governor's Commission of Inquiry —two members of which are now to receive jobs at high salaries—the Governor's recommendations during the last few days are looked upon with amusement. The Commission of Inquiry shaved departmental estimates wherever it was possible and recommended that improvements already decided upon, involving expenditures of $10,000,000 should be temporarily abandoned.

Several of the hundred or more charity workers who were before Gov. Sulzer this afternoon to urge the claims of these neglected institutions, asked this question:

"Was the famine of these institutions decreed in order to provide a feast for favored office holders who may help Gov. Sulzer to build up a political machine of his own?"

HOME RULE LAW AMENDED.

Senate Change Makes Clear the Limitations as to Franchises.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 23.—The first amendment to the new home rule law was introduced to-day by Senator Cullen, Chairman of the Senate Cities Committee. Its purpose is to make clear the intent of the Legislature in relation to the granting of franchises. The Home Rule bill signed last week was objected to by Chairman McCall of the Public Service Commission on the ground that it might interfere with the granting of franchises in New York City.

Gov. Sulzer took the ground that the new law did not supersede any general law, and the Court of Appeals held that the Rapid Transit act was a general law. The bill introduced to-day, which was advanced to the order of passage without reference to a committee, adds a provision that the home rule law shall not operate to supersede or in any manner affect any existing provision of law regulating or limiting the periods for which franchises may be granted, or "the terms and conditions of franchises or the streets or other spaces or districts over, above, through, across, or under which any franchise is operated."

ASSAIL DRAINING OF SINKING FUND

Sulzer's Right to Dip into Reserves to Meet Current Expenses Denied by Republicans.

"TO HIDE EXTRAVAGANCE"

Expedient to Avert Direct Tax Would Damage Credit of State, Joint Caucus Statement Declares.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 23.—In an address to the people of the State made public to-night, the joint Republican caucus of the Senate and the Assembly assails the proposal by Gov. Sulzer to draw upon the sinking fund created for the amortigation of the State's outstanding bonds for the payment of current State expenses. The Governor on the advice of his late Committee of Inquiry adopted this method to do away with the necessity for a direct tax in fulfilment of ante-election pledges.

The Governor, in a message sent to the Legislature some time ago, declared that investigation by the committee had shown a surplus of $18,000,000 in the State's sinking fund, and asserted that the State would be justified in withdrawing from these funds in round numbers $12,400,000.

"The Governor, and apparently the majority in the Legislature," says the Republican address, "are preparing to seize the sinking funds of the State for the current expenses of this Administration. These sinking funds have been created by special tax levies to meet the bonded indebtedness of the State under constitutional provisions declaring that they shall be used for no other purpose. The patent fact that these sinking funds have grown so fast that they will have provided for the payment of the several bonded debts for which they were created years before the debts mature is put forth by the Governor as a discovery, when it has in fact been carefully considered in several Controllers' reports and by all Governors since the debts were created.

"The State's good fortune in providing for the payment of its debts sooner than was expected and before the close of the fifty-year period is made a pretext for claiming that $18,000,000 have been unlawfully paid into these sinking funds and can now be withdrawn. These assumptions are unsound, and if acted on will seriously damage the faith and credit of the State. Legislatures and Governors cannot manipulate sinking funds and withdraw part whenever they need more money than they dare raise by direct tax.

The statement, after detailing the circumstances of the creation of the various canal and highway bond issues involved and the safeguards thrown around the sinking funds established for the redemption of the bonds, quotes a statement issued by the Committee of Inquiry in justification of the policy of dipping into those funds, and points out what are termed several "absurdities" in the reasoning, concluding:

"When the $18,000,000 has been seized and spent by this most unbusinesslike administration, every dollar of it will have to be raised over again and paid into these sinking funds. The sale of the securities in which the sinking funds are now invested will in the present depressed market cause a net loss of approximately $100,000 on each $1,000,000 of securities disposed of and the transaction will seriously affect the market price of upward of $150,000,000 of bonds to be issued in the next two years. It is to be seized, not in the interest of taxpayers, but to blind them to the wasteful and extravagant budget of this administration which will exceed by several millions the budget of Gov. Dix."

STATE'S EYES ON BAGGAGE.

Transfer Companies Placed Under Service Board's Jurisdiction.

ALBANY, April 23.—Jurisdiction over baggage and transfer companies is conferred on the Public Service Commission by the Foley bill which was signed by Gov. Sulzer to-day.

Gov. Sulzer also signed the Elsner bill, permitting delicatessen dealers to keep their stores open on Sundays until 10 A. M. and from 4 P. M. to 7 P. M; the Jackson bill, recommended by the State Factory Investigating Commission, designed to make effective the enforcement and administration of the newly enacted labor laws; the Frawley bill, appropriating the $250,000 more for the Panama-Pacific Exposition; the Cole bill, authorizing the State Commissioner of Agriculture to reorganize his department ;the Fitzgerald bill, authorinzing Justices of the Appellate Division, First Department, to appoint as many interpreters for the Supreme Court as they shall deem necessary.

Burglars Unable to Open Indestructo Trunk

Attempts At Violence Without Success.

Trunk Returned to Owner Intact.

In Montreal the other day, the rooms of a member of New York's society set were entered and an Indestructo trunk containing valuables was removed by burglars.

The trunk was removed through a window, let down the fire escape by the use of sheets and blankets, and was then dragged to an open lot some distance from the hotel.

"Indestructo Dreadnought"

From the appearance of the trunk, which was afterwards found by the assistants of the hotel, strenuous means were used in an attempt to rifle it.

The lock was badly hammered and bent; the hinges showed marks of hatchet and chisel, which were undoubtedly used in an attempt to split the protected hinge.

Apparently, not being able to force an opening through the natural fastenings, the intruder resorted to more strenuous means of violence.

The sides and corners were badly chipped and split, as though they had been repeatedly struck with some sharp instrument.

Dawn overtaking their efforts, the thieves abandoned their struggle and deserted the trunk, where it was found by the searching party.

This little incident only goes to prove that the Indestructo trunk will protect your belongings as safely and securely as if in your own home.

You will never regret the purchase of an Indestructo trunk.

$40,000 Worth of Perfect Diamonds for $32,000

Diamonds From the viewpoint of Investment

Pure white brilliant Gems such as these, are "gilt-edged" investments—their value increasing appreciably year by year.

In the proposed tariff it is suggested that the duty on cut Diamonds be advanced from 10% to 15%, and that 10% duty be the tax on the uncut stones.

The London "Financial News" of April 4th, 1913, predicts higher prices for Fall, on Diamonds of the quality offered in this sale.

Diamonds were never so good an investment as those offered NOW AT MACY'S.

A Saving of 1-5 on Macy's Usual Lowest-in-the-City Prices---therefore 1/4 to 1/3 Less Than Prices Elsewhere for Equal Quality.

Every Stone in This Sale Is Pure White and Flawless.

Diamonds From the standpoint of Sentiment

In the Spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love—and incidentally to a "Solitaire."

At Macy's,—Diamond Rings, in Solitaire, Two-Stone or Three-Stone Settings, for Engagement Rings are brilliantly beautiful, effectively mounted and absolutely flawless.

For June Wedding Gifts there are exquisite La Vallieres, Necklaces, Earrings and other handsome pieces—the very latest designs.

SEES GAIN TO NATION IN NEW TARIFF ERA

But Relief to Consumers Won't Be Immediate, Says Underwood, Opening Debate.

GARDNER WARNS DEMOCRATS

If They Fail the Country Will Turn to Progressives, Not to Republicans, He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The five-day debate over the tariff bill was opened in the House of Representatives to-day by Representative Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, who spoke for two hours, and received vigorous applause from his party colleagues.

The debate will continue from 11 in the morning until 11 o'clock at night daily, except Sunday, until Monday, when the Underwood bill will be taken up for consideration, paragraph by paragraph, under the five-minute rule. The time allotted for general debate will be equally divided between the Republicans and the Democrats, but the Republicans must share six hours of their time with the eighteen members of the Progressive Party.

Representative Augustus P. Gardner of Massachusetts continued the debate for the Republican side. Representative Sereno E. Payne, it is understood, will close the debate on Monday for the Republicans. Representative M. C. Kelly of Pennsylvania, a new member, spoke for the Progressive Party. Mr. Kelly is the successor of John Dalzell, who for many years represented the Pittsburgh district, and was the leading exponent of the theory of high protection in the House.

Mr. Underwood was loudly cheered by the Democratic side when he said that the enactment of the bill would mark the end of an era in the fiscal legislation of this country and the beginning of a new one. He predicted great relief to the Nation through the passage of the tariff bill.

"Before the war between the States," said Mr. Underwood, "this Government was administered for many years under low tariff conditions, beneficial to the citizenship of the country, and not detrimental to the growth of the industries of the United States. The high taxes that we now pay at the custom houses were the outcome of war conditions. They were levied to meet the expenses of a civil war.

"After that war was over the necessity of their retention on the statute books had passed, but interested parties who had been able to amass fortunes growing out of this indirect system of taxation have been able to control the Government, with one brief period intervening, for the last fifty years, and therefore have maintained on the statute books this unjust system of war taxation.

Apologetic for High Tariff.

"Four years ago this House faced the situation that it is facing to-day. The party that then came into power, the Administration that then controlled public affairs, had been elected to office on a distinct promise to the people that they would revise the custom taxes downward in the interest of the taxpayer."

Mr. Underwood told the House that the Payne law had hardly been enacted before its own advocates commenced apologizing for it, and "before they commenced proposing Tariff Commissions and other methods of revising their enactment, recognizing themselves that the American people were not satisfied with the bill they had passed, and that they must give some excuse for their failure to keep their pledged faith with the American people."

"One reason," he continued, "and the main reason, so far as the people were concerned, why a revision of these customs laws was demanded and expected was because of the increased cost of living since the enactment of the Dingley law in 1897."

Mr. Underwood did not contend that that increase in values was entirely due to the tariff.

"I want to say that, although we have reduced this tariff in the interests of the consumer, it would be unfair to say that the effect of that reduction is going to be immediate. We cannot promise that to the people. There are many reasons for this, but there is one which is sufficient. Under all laws of trade supply and demand we must regulate prices. The retail merchants of the country have fixed their prices today. Many of the goods on their shelves were bought under conditions fixed by Republican legislation. They will not reduce the prices of those goods on their shelves until they are compelled to do so.

"They will not begin to reduce the price to the consumer until competition from fellow-merchants forces them to do so, and that competition in most articles will naturally not arise until the merchant has disposed of the goods on his shelves that he has purchased under conditions of a high Republican tariff.

Foresees Relief to Consumers.

"But I do believe fully that in a short time, within a reasonable time, when present stocks of goods are sold out, that the American people will receive a real and reasonable reduction in the cost of living if this bill is enacted into law."

"Whenever it is proposed to reduce the taxes levied for privileged classes the cry is always made that it will impair industry. The greatest moving cause to the impairment of industry in the last fifty years has been the shackles that high protection has fastened to the ships of industry, like the barnacles at sea that drag them to the bottom."

Speaking of the two theories between the great contending parties on the tariff, Mr. Underwood said:

"The Republican Party stands for a protective tariff, and it has defined a protective tariff to be a tariff that equals the difference in cost at home and abroad, together with a reasonable profit to the home manufacturer. I have seen some Republicans that have attempted to abandon that platform, but so far as I know, the bell-wethers of the party, through their leaders, are standing to their position in defeat, as well as they stood to it in the days when they were in power."

Mr. Underwood contended that the theory of making the cost of production the basis of tariff making was not defensible, that it was impossible for any man to reach a conclusion upon the basis of the difference in the cost of production.

As to the Democratic position, Mr. Underwood said:

"The Democratic Party stands for a tariff for revenue only, with the emphasis on the word 'only.' We do not propose to tax one man for the benefit of the other man, except for the necessary revenue that we must raise to administer this Government economically. Then how do we arrive at a conclusion in writing a revenue tariff bill? We adopt the competitive theory.

"We say that no revenue can be produced at the Custom House unless there is some competition between the products of countries abroad and the products at home, that if you put the wall so high that you close the door to importation, no revenue can be raised, and that if you want to raise revenue at the Custom House you must admit some importations before the tax will fall upon them, and the revenue be derived."

Played No Favorites.

"I do not contend that in this bill we have been able at one fell swoop to wipe out all the iniquities, the injustices, and favoritism that you have engrafted on the body politic in five decades, but I say this: So far as this committee is concerned and so far as this party is concerned, we have played favorites with no man.

"No favored manufacturer has sat behind the closed doors of the Ways and Means Committee to dictate the taxes that he should be allowed to levy on the American people. We have given an honest, open, and fair hearing to every man who desired it, regardless of his politics, regardless of his business.

"It was not our commission to lower these tariff walls with an axe. So far as it was practicable to do so without working an absolute injustice to the American consumer, we have endeavored to lower the tariff with a jackscrew, not with an axe."

Representative Gardner for the Republicans admitted that the people of the Nation had repudiated the Payne tariff and that the Republican Party had been dislodged from power because it had been too slow to recognize growing evils and permitted a "far too powerful oligarchy" to run the Government its way instead of the people's way. He cautioned the Democrats to live up to their promises to the people. He believed that if they did not the people would turn to the new Progressive Party.

"Suppose that the Democrats fail to carry out their radical programme," said Mr. Gardiner, "will the country turn to our party? I doubt it. The people wish to try some of these new ideas and are willing to risk the consequences of their proving disastrous. The Republicans have not given them what they wish. If the Democrats follow our example it need surprise no one should the people turn to the Progressive Party. In fact, this is the only direction in which I can see a future for that party."

The head and front of his party's offending, he said, was that "we failed to move with the age." Republican generals, he asserted could not adjust their views to modern schools of thought.

"They persisted in governing the country their own way, and not the country's way," he said, "and so we all came to grief."

Country Must be Satisfied.

"The Nation will not have the Payne law. If necessary the Nation would rather elect a Congress of numbskulls and charlatans who would administer a new elixir rather than retain a Congress of aesculapians who insist on compounding the old formulas which the Nation refuses any longer to swallow. Perhapsthe old political physician may in the end prove right. Perhaps the new political physician may turn out to be only another Dr. Cook."

Radical legislation, he said, was expected from the new Congress, and he saw no reason to believe the Democrats were a gathering of rogues. Such they would be accounted, he asserted, if they did not satisfy the country.

Representative Mondell of Wyoming followed with an attack upon the bill, which he characterized as "an uncanny combination of every evil form of Democratic heresy." He assailed the Democratic caucus and President Wilson's activity in the framing of the bill.

Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania, for the new Progressive Party, opposed the Underwood bill, denouncing the present method of framing tariff legislation. He announced that the Progressive tariff programme was to "take the tariff out of politics and place it in the hands of an impartial tariff commission."

"The people of this country believe in protection," said Mr. Kelly, "as a principle, not as a privilege. They demand that the tariff shall be adjusted so that the benefits will be equally distributed upon all of the people of the Nation, and not upon a class."

Mr. Kelly contended that a tariff commission was "the only solution of a problem which has vexed the Nation from its foundation.

Germany, through its Ambassador here, has protested against two administrative features of the pending Tariff bill. One concerns the proposed examination of books of German exporting houses for the purpose of ascertaining domestic sales prices to guard against undervaluation of exports. The other protest is against the provision that German goods imported in American bottoms shall enjoy a deferential of 5 per cent. in duty. It is said to be in violation of treaties with Germany, which guarantee the vessels of that country equality of treatment with American vessels in the matter of duties and charges.

Most of the embassies an legations in Washington so far have refrained from making representations on the same point until the Tariff bill was formally before the House. The Austrian Government is about to follow the lead of the German Government, and other nations are preparing to do so, their objection being that the proposed legislation will destroy existing trade and commerce treaties with the United States.

Secretary Bryan, by direction of the President, has refrained from answering any of these arguments, but has promised to transmit the protests to Congress.

For three hours to-day six Senators from States west of the Missouri River argued with a majority of the Democrats of the Senate Finance Committee against free wool and free sugar. They were listened to attentively, and may be heard again. When they had completed their arguments, however, the committee had not changed its opinion that the bill, as agreed to by the House caucus, in so far as wool and sugar were concerned, would be presented, in the same form to the Senate. There was no talk of a bolt among the Senators who opposed putting these articles on the free list. They may see President Wilson within a few days and discuss the reasons for their opposition with him.

All twelve of the Democratic Senators from States west of the Missouri River were invited by Senator Newlands, who arranged the conference, to appear before the committee, but only Senators Newlands and Pittman of Nevada, Chamberlain and Lane of Oregon, Thompson of Kansas, and Walsh of Montana appeared.

Senator Can Name Home Postmaster

WASHINGTON, April 23.—President Wilson to-day sustained the contention that a United States Senator should have the right to name the Postmaster of his home town. He decided to name P. G. Henry, a brother of Representative Henry of Texas, as Postmaster at Texarkana. The Texas-Arkansas State line runs through Texarkana. Senator Sheppard lives on the Texas side, while the Post Office is on the Arkansas side. Representative Wingo of Arkansas fought vigorously to have a Postmaster from Arkansas, while Mr. Sheppard and others insisted that they had the right of selection.

Renews Effort for Panama Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Representative Rainey of Illinois to-day reintroduced his resolution to direct the House Committee on Foreign Affairs to inquire into the separation of Panama from the Republic of Colombia. A preamble set forth that "a former President of the United States has declared that he took Panama from Colombia without consulting Congress, but the United States Government has steadily refused to arbitrate the matter with Colombia."

POSTAL SHAKE-UP SOON.

Burleson Plans a General Overhauling of Railway Mail Service.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Postmaster General Burleson is said to contemplate making shortly a general shake-up in the railway mail service, directed at the heads of divisions, but the changes, it is intimated, will not affect the 17,500 railway postal clerks who travel over the various railroads throughout the country.

Members of the Congressional committees concerned with the department have recommended to the Postmaster General the appointment of James T. Canfield of New York as general Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service to succeed the present incumbent. Supt. Theordore Ingalls. Mr. Canfield was a working mail clerk for a quarter of a century, and was recently President of the Railway Mail Clerks Association.

While Mr. Burleson has made no promises, he is said to have intimated that he will undertake a sweeping change in the railway mail personnel "as soon as I can get around to it."

MEDALS FOR SCIENTISTS.

Four European Savants Rewarded by Academy for Research Work.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Four medals were awarded to-day by the National Academy of Sciences for distinguished research work, the presentations being made by President Wilson at a reception to the members of the Academy at the White House. Only one American was among those honored.

The Watson medal for astronomical research was awarded to Dr. J. C. Kapteyn, director of the astronomical laboratory at the University of Groningen; the Draper medal for astrophysical research and discovery to M. Henri Deslandres of France; the Agassiz medal for oceanography to Dr. Johan Hjort, Director of the Norwegian Fisheries, and the Comstock prize for research in electricity to Prof. Robert Andrews Millikan of the University of Chicago.

Neither M. Deslandres nor Dr. Hjort was present, and their medals were received for them by the French Ambassador and the Minister from Norway.

COURT HOUSE PLANS NOW ON EXHIBITION

Twenty-two Architects in Competition, and Public Has a Chance to Pass Opinion.

GUY LOWELL WON AWARD

Most of the Plans Follow the Colliseum at Rome, but Skyscraper Is Not Neglected.

Designs of twenty-two architects for the new County Court House will be placed on exhibition to-day at the Fine Arts Building in Fifty-seventh Street, between Broadway and Seventh Avenue. One of them, by Guy Lowell, has been selected by the jury of award as without question the most successful treatment of a problem of more than usual difficulty, and now the public has been invited to view the plans submitted to the Court House Board and express its own opinion.

Mr. Lowell submitted a design suggesting at once the Coliseum at Rome, and nearly all the other competitors have followed this ideal. One or two boldly adopted the skyscraper type of architecture, but even they have shown the classical influence. For instance, Charles C. Haight, A. M. Githens, and Aymar Embury, 2d, sent in a design which was on the order of a simple, straightforward Grecian temple. The familiar colonnade of pillars is there, and the purity of line and proportion, but it seemed to those who judged the design that he had underrated the size of the building which he was to erect.

The lines on which a temple could be built in a small Grecian city are not necessarily suited for a Hall of Justice which thousands will frequent in attending the New York law courts, and the very size of the pillars would be colossal.

Perhaps, to avoid this error, a number of other competitors went in for a heavy basement effect. Their colonnades round the building at some distance above the ground, and the lower stories have been designed without ornamentation. Thus, La Farge & Morris have suggested a Court House to which the entrance seems scarcely sufficient for the number which seek justice in this city and have crowned the structure with a quadriga silhouetted against the sky. Maynicke & Franke and Wilder & White have also followed much the same idea.

On the other hand McKim, Mead & White, who designed the Municipal building, which will be the near neighbor of the new Court House, have apparently had its architecture in mind. In their design at the base appears a massive order of pillars while toward the top of the building comes a smaller colonnade.

The site has evidently presented to the architects a varying problem. At its northern end it is rectangular, but towards the Hall of Records it narrows considerably. Perhaps a majority of the designs deliberately accepted its limitations with the result that many of the plans were hexagonal or pentagonal. This had the effect of producing in the interior arrangements a number of interminable corridors.

Arnold W. Brunner met this difficulty by proposing a building in the form of a cross. James Riely Gordon has also a heavy circular tower resting on four main shafts, in which he has contrived circular court rooms with admirable light. Charles Butler & Charles Morris, associated, have suggested four towers, surrounding a central court which on two sides is completed by the erection of entrance halls, and on the other two by mere passage ways.

Howell & Stone sent in a design in which the colonnade at the main entrance would be reached by traversing a fore-court between two wings, lined with engaged columns, but this was almost the only design in which the idea of projecting wings had been carried out to its full extent.

Rather unexpectedly, considering the character of the buildings surrounding the Court House site and the amount of accommodation to be provided in a very limited area, the skyscraper designs were few.

PAGE TO ST. GEORGE'S MEN.

His Old Heroes English Knights and Sailors—A Song of 1771.

St. George's Society revived an old song at its annual dinner last night. The society used to sing it in New York before the Revolutionary War.

The stanza next to the last runs:

> And here's to our King, and O Long May He reign,
> The Lord of those Men who are Lords of the Main;
> While all the contention among us shall be
> To make Him as happy as We are made free.

Henry M. Y. Bucknell, President of the society, thought so much of this song that he presented each guest with a photographic reproduction of the tattered and age-yellowed manuscript of the original, which was found recently among the papers of Winthrop Sargent, a friend of Washington and the first Territorial Governor of Mississippi. The manuscript was inscribed, "'A Song for St. George's Society,' sung at the second anniversary dinner of meeting of the Sons of St. George in New York, April 23rd, 1771."

Walter H. Page, the Ambassador to England, called the English our contemporary ancestors, and told how his heroes had been in youth and still remained the English knights, sailors, and warriors. He said that since his appointment the only people he had met seemed to be English-born or Americans who always went to England of a Summer, and assured him that they would be at the embassy on the coming Fourth of July. Other speakers were the Rev. W. T. Manning, who spoke on "Anglo-American Fellowship," and Andrew McLean, who spoke on "The Influence of English Literature."

WOMAN IS SHOT IN STRIKE BATTLE

Hit in Leg When Deputies Try to Scatter Mob at Perth Amboy.

3,000 MEN ARE NOW OUT

Dozen Big Brick Yards and Asphalt Works Affected — Sheriff Swears In Deputies.

A woman was shot in a battle between strikers and Deputy Sheriffs last night in Perth Amboy, N. J., where 3,000 men went on strike from the brick yards and asphalt works. A foreman of the Barber Asphalt Paving Company, where two Gattling guns and a searchlight had been installed on the roof to repulse an attack on the factory, was caught outside the works and beaten into unconsciousness by strikers. The woman, Mrs. Mary Zitka of 612 Charles Street, was hit in the leg by a stray bullet aimed at a crowd of strikers when Deputies were trying to clear the streets. John Bilka, the injured foreman, is in a critical condition in the City Hospital.

The strike affected a dozen big factories. As threats were made by leaders to call out 9,000 additional men and close all the plants in twenty-four hours an appeal was made to the county authorities for assistance, the Police Department being unable to control the strikers or their sympathizers. Rioting and clashes between the Deputies and strikers were frequent in the early part of the evening.

Sheriff Albert Bollschweiler of Middlesex County swore in fifty additional deputies, and spread his men around the factories. The factory owners sent hurried calls to Manhattan for special guards and private detectives. The Sheriff and Police Chief Patrick Burke will consult Gov. Fielder to-day.

Deputies routed a gang of strikers near the Barber oil tanks a few minutes before midnight. In flight the strikers dropped several sticks of dynamite. The guards were doubled around the tanks, each man armed with rifle and revolvers. Other places affected by the strike were the Didier-March Brick Company, Ballentine Brothers, brickmakers; the Perth Amboy Fireproof Brick Company, the Ostrander Fireproof Brick Company, and the L. H. McHose Mines Company. The strikers demanded an increase of 50 cents a day.

De Pauw's New Head Inaugurated.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., April 23.—The Rev. Dr. George R. Grose, formerly of Baltimore, to-day was installed as the eleventh President of De Pauw University, succeeding Dr. Francis J. McConnell, who was elected a Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church last year. The ceremonies, which were simple, were presided over by Charles W. Fairbanks, President of the Board of Trustees.

CONVICTS HEAR CARUSO.

Hawthorne Welcomes Singer's Visit to Atlanta Prison with a Poem.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 23.—Julian Hawthorne, convict No. 4,435, welcomed Enrico Caruso to the Federal Penitentiary this afternoon to sing to the hundreds of prisoners there. With Caruso was Ty Cobb, who afterward made a brief and sympathetic talk to the convicts.

The selections Caruso sang were "O Paradiso," from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine"; Tosti's ballad, "Idealle," and "Ridi Pagliacci."

One stanza of Hawthorne's welcoming poem to Caruso read thus:

> "Then in the hush of the great blank hall
> God wrought a wonderous miracle,
> For a voice, like a glorious trumpet call,
> Arose as a soul from the deeps of hell,
> And our souls rose with it on wondrous wings—
> Rose from their prison of iron and clay,
> Forgot the grime and shame of things.
> We were men once again in sunlit day;
> Sin and grief and punishment—all
> Were lost in that human trumpet call."

Caruso thanked Hawthorne and expressed the hope that he would soon be free.

MAY VETO POST ROAD GRAB.

Sulzer Likely to Disapprove Measure Which Favors Trolley Construction.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 23.—The Albany Post Road grab bill, which throws open to the Westchester trolley interests that historic thoroughfare, lined with private estates, for the entire thirteen miles between Hastings and Ossining, in all probability will not become a law, despite the fact that it has been passed by both the Senate and Assembly Gov. Sulzer indicated very strongly to-day that he would veto it when it came before him.

"I, of course, do not care to say in advance what I am going to do with the bill when it comes to me," said Gov. Sulzer this afternoon. "But I am not in sympathy with any plan which would militate against this project of an uninterrupted State highway from New York to Buffalo and Niagara Falls."

Laurel for Shakespeare.

In commemoration of the two hundred and ninety-seventh anniversary of the death of William Shakespeare, members of several Shakespeare societies in this city yesterday attended the exercises which preceded the placing of a laurel wreath on the statue of the poet in the Mall in Central Park.

MARLBOROUGH-BLENHEIM.

Owners of Atlantic City Hotel Object to Use of Name Here.

The owners and operators of the Mirlborough-Blenheim Hotel in Atlantic City started suit in the United States District Court here yesterday to enjoin the Marlborough-Blenheim Company, a recently organized New York corporation, from using the same name in the newly reconstructed hotel at Thirty-sixth Street and Broadway.

The New Jersey corporation charges that in order to get the benefit of the National prestige of the seaside hostelry, the new corporation has taken the name without warrant in the hope that some would think it a branch of the Atlantic City house under the same management. The plaintiffs charge unfair trade competition in the use of the self-same type in advertising and in the appearance on the stationary and china of the self-same device.

This device, which has been used by the original Marlborough-Blenheim since it was opened seven years ago, combines within a scroll the coat of arms of the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Marlborough.

Plan Decoration Day Parade.

Heads of almost all the city departments met in the reception room of the Mayor's office yesterday and discussed plans for the parade of municipal departments which is to be held on May 30. Fire Commissioner Johnson was elected Chairman and Supervisor David Ferguson of The City Record and Commissioners Whitney and Drummond were appointed a committee to consider decorations and the make-up of floats. Police Commissioner Waldo, who was present, said that "the finest" had been drilling for some time, and expected to make a picturesque showing.

The Saunterer

To paraphrase Pope—"True ease in dress comes from Art, not Chance, as those move lightest who have learned to dance." Style is an affair of delicate distinctions and subtle shadings. It doesn't shout—it whispers. It neither pats itself on the back, nor on the chest. It aims as much for repression, as for expression.

This spring and summer, deep-brown Russets are decreed by the "bigwig" London bootmakers. Not light yellow tan, nor dark red, nor a "dead," dark brown, but luminous mellow brown, which takes on a rich mahogany lustre when polished.

Alike in the plain Oxford and in the "Blucher" cut, Regal Russet Oxfords are luminous mellow brown. These carefully culled leathers are so pliable and full of "give-and-take," that they "chum" with the curves and angles of your foot and soften, ripen and "smarten" with wear, like a "thoroughbred" glove.

Regal Styles are custom modes, because they are derived from the same sources, but with greater resources at their back and beck than any "custom bootmaker" commands.

TWO COURTS TO TRY POLICE GRAFT CASES

Justices Goff and Seabury Will Preside in Them, According to Present Plans.

CONSPIRACY CASE READY

Whitman Confers with Rouss, Newell, and Fox and Completes It—Thompson Calls at His Office.

Police graft trials will be going on in two courts during the month of May if the present plans of District Attorney Whitman are carried out. One of these will be the criminal branch of the Supreme Court, presided over by Justice Seabury, and the other the extraordinary term of the Supreme Court, which will reconvene on May 5 and in which Justice Goff will sit.

Mr. Whitman will be in the court where the action is the hottest. This will probably be the court where ex-Inspector Dennis Sweeney will be tried for bribery. A number of Mr. Whitman's assistants, including Mr. Moss, Mr. Clark, Mr. Groehl, and Mr. Embrey, will be assigned to handle the other cases.

The trial of four former police Inspectors for conspiracy, which is set for next Tuesday, cannot possibly be finished before Justice Goff reconvenes his court, it is thought. Should the four Inspectors be convicted on the misdemeanor charge it is doubtful who will be tried next. Should they be acquitted Mr. Whitman intends to prosecute Sweeney first of all on a bribery charge, notwithstanding the fact that the trials of ex-Inspector Murtha and of Sergt. Peter J. Duffy already have been moved.

Fourteen Cases Against Sweeney.

"There are fourteen bribery cases against Sweeney," a member of District Attorney Whitman's staff said yesterday. "We could try Sweeney on any of the bribery indictments to-day if we wanted to. There is not the slightest doubt that the cases against Sweeney will be moved in rapid succession should he manage to escape conviction. There is enough material in the District Attorney's office to keep Sweeney on the rack until next Christmas."

Mr. Whitman, with Assistant District Attorneys Clark and Groehl, spent all yesterday afternoon at the Bar Association shaping the case against Sweeney, Hussey, Thompson, and Murtha, who are charged with conspiring to keep George A. Sipp, a witness against Patrolman Eugene Fox, out of the State. Co-operating with Mr. Whitman were Jacob Rouss, Edward J. Newell, and Patrolman Fox, all of whom had made confessions. Toward evening Mr. Whitman made a hurried trip to the home of Capt. Walsh, and there interviewed Mrs. Walsh and Miss Mischel, the nurse in the Walsh home. When the conferences were ended it was announced that the State's case would be ready by April 28, when the conspiracy trial will begin before Justice Seabury.

Capt. Walsh, Patrolman Fox, Lawyer Newell, Lawyer Rouss, and George A. Sipp will be used by the State to prove the conspiracy. Each of these witnesses will be attacked by the defense, it is expected, as an accomplice. To offset this, the prosecution will call on Mrs. Walsh, Miss Mischel, Mrs. Sipp, and Howard Sipp for corroborative evidence. In addition there will be a number of witnesses to tell of the movements of the conspirators.

Battle Outlines Defense.

The defense was briefly outlined yesterday by George Gordon Battle, counsel for Sweeney. Mr. Battle said it would be practically the same for all four defendants. First of all, the Inspectors will try to show that they paid no money to keep Sipp in New Jersey. If any money was passed, they will say, it was Capt. Walsh's money and went as counsel fees. This was the argument put forward in the Hartigan trial, and the jury in that case was not impressed. It will be contended also that the Inspectors, instead of trying to keep Sipp out of the State, really tried to bring him back. That some money was passed will not be denied. Mr. Battle will try to show, however, that the money went from Newell to Rouss and not from Rouss to Newell.

This last point is considered most significant in view of Rouss's statement to Mr. Whitman that he was retained by Sweeney to defend Fox.

"Yes, they tried to bring George A. Sipp back into the State," commented one of Mr. Whitman's staff when he heard of this line of defense. "How did they try? They got up affidavits designed to discredit Sipp as a witness. Those affidavits were fraudulent. They were proved so before the Grand Jury. If ex-Inspector Sweeney will have the nerve to admit he was the sponsor for those affidavits that will end the case right there. We can prove that he did arrange for those affidavits, but to have him admit it is more than we hoped for."

There still remains some doubt as to whether the four ex-Inspectors will hold together during the course of the conspiracy trial. This doubt was strengthened yesterday when Thompson was seen knocking on the door of Assistant District Attorney Clark's private office in the Criminal Court Building. When asked if he was there to make overtures, Thompson replied:

"No, I want to get the minutes of the Grand Jury."

When told that right to inspect these minutes had already been denied by Justice Seabury, the former Inspector faltered and said that he was really looking for a copy of the conspiracy indictment.

Thompson Knows the Terms.

This also seemed strange, in view of the fact that Thompson was in court when George Gordon Battle reviewed the indictment before Justice Seabury in connection with the motion to dismiss it. Any way, Mr. Clark was not in, and Thompson left without seeing either the Grand Jury minutes or a copy of the indictment.

Thompson, it was learned, knows District Attorney Whitman's terms of surrender. These terms are not very liberal, but he has been assured that it will be better for him to accept them than to stand trial. Mr. Whitman, it is known, isn't very much interested in having a confession from Thompson at this late hour. From what he learned from Rouss yesterday the case against Thompson has been much strengthened.

"I'll be in my office to-morrow. He knows the way there." That was all Mr. Whitman would say about Thompson's visit.

Rouss's information about Thompson is said to relate to two meetings Thompson had with Patrolman Fox just prior to Sipp's disappearance. One of these meetings was at Broadway and Ninety-sixth Street and the other at Riverside Drive and Ninety-fifth Street. Mr. Whitman expects to show that Thompson's connection with the Sipp bribery fund dates back to these meetings.

An interesting part of yesterday's session at the Bar Association was the meeting of Newell and Rouss. Had it not been for Newell's collapse Rouss probably would not have found himself in his present troubles. Consequently Rouss has not borne the kindliest feelings toward Newell. With the weakening of Rouss, however, mutual sympathies were aroused, and yesterday the two lawyers greeted each other like long-lost friends. Both agreed to help Mr. Whitman in every way possible.

FATHER RECLAIMS WHITE SLAVE VICTIM

While Girl Is Testifying He Rushes into Court and Tries to Reach Judge Holt.

SHE FALLS INTO HIS ARMS

Brought Here from Philadelphia and Deserted When Ill—Nine Months in Jail for Enslaver.

As Mary Stevens, a seventeen-year-old girl, was telling yesterday in the Federal District Court before Judge Holt and a jury in a White Slave case the story of how she had been betrayed, a man, haggard with excitement, rushed into the court. He glanced hurriedly at the witness chair, and before the officers could stop him had passed within the barrier and was half-way up to the bench.

Deputy Marshal Reid stepped forward and intercepted him, and he exclaimed: "That's my daughter, Mary, and I want to speak to the Judge. I want to take her back home with me. Her mother is waiting for her."

The man said he was Reuben P. Stevens, a farmer, from Denton, Md. He was dressed in a suit of country clothes, and carried a slouch hat in his hand. He was led out into the corridor and there told his story.

The girl, he said, was the only surviving child of a family of seven. His wife and he had determined to give her a good education, whatever it cost, and had toiled night and day to make her a teacher. They had sent her to the Westchester Normal School, in the suburbs of Philadelphia, but the girl did not like the life, and they found it too lonely at home without her.

"We kept her home after the Christmas vacation," Stevens went on, "but somehow she had got restless. She had friends in Philadelphia, and it seemed pretty dull on the farm with only me and her mother to talk to. So we let her have her way, and told her in January she might go back on a visit just for a few days. Then the next thing we heard was that she had gone to New York to marry some fellow or other, and we never heard another single word of or from her until she came into the hands of the Government agents."

As he finished his story the girl was allowed to leave the stand, and came running out into the corridor. A woman social worker was with her, and as she fell into her father's arms he kept saying, brokenly:

"Mary, your mother is waiting for you at home; your mother is waiting for you."

The story the girl had to tell was commonplace enough. One day she had gon to a restaurant and had happened to sit opposite a young traveling salesman called Louis Segal. She is good looking, and the young man had been attracted. He had followed her from the place and she, half in fun, half to relieve her boredom, had flirted with him. They had gone to a moving picture show together, and after that there was the usual dinner.

Then Segal had suggested that she come to New York and live with him as his wife. The girl thought that now she might as well assent, and they came to this city and took a furnished apartment. In a few days Segal brought in some young men and introduced them to her. She had objected to his proposals at first, but had finally fallen in with them. She became ill and Segal left her.

Friendless and sick in mind and body Mary Stevens went back to Philadelphia. She was afraid to go home and she picked up a living as best she could. She tried shop-lifting in an amateurish way, and was detected. She was not prosecuted, but while she was held in jail her story attracted the attention of a social worker. The Government agents were informed with the result that Segal was arrested.

The man put in no defense and the jury came in with a verdict of guilty, but recommended Segal, who is only 19, to mercy. An attempt was made to show that he bore a good character except for the affair with Miss Stevens.

But Assistant United States District Attorney Griffiths was prepared for this, and called to the stand Minnie Levit, a Philadelphia girl. She testified that she knew Segal as a salesman for his brother, who is in the raincoat business at Philadelphia. Two months ago she promised to marry the man, and he then obtained from her all her savings, which amounted to $200, and went off to this city.

Segal did not deny this charge, and Judge Holt, after questioning him closely, sentenced him to nine months' imprisonment on Blackwell's Island, informing him in doing so that he took account of his youth and the jury's recommendation.

The Federal authorities still have Mary Stevens in their charge and will send her back to-day under care of a special agent to Philadelphia. There they will hand her over to her father.

MAYOR PRAISES THE TIMES.

Writes Boy Publishers It Prints the News Fairly.

The following letter from Mayor Gaynor was published yesterday in the second issue of THE TIMES, JR., which is issued monthly by the office boys of THE TIMES:

To the Editor The New York Times Junior.

I have looked over your newspaper, The New York Times Junior. I like it exceedingly. That picture of Mr. Ochs on the front page is fine for novices in newspaper work. I would not wonder if he helped you a little. I send my compliments to your entire staff. I hope they will turn out to be good newspaper men. They will not unless they serve the cause of truth. Woe unto a community which is served by untruthful newspaper proprietors and editors. THE NEW YORK TIMES, after which you patern, is a very great newspaper. I have looked upon its growth in the last few years with admiration. I think its rapid growth is due to its news columns. They give the news fairly. They quote people correctly, and where a man will not be quoted they do not quote him. One great weakness of some of our good newspapers in this city is that they are too ready to take "inspired" matter nad publish it as news. That should never be done. There has been a lot of false stuff published in this city during the last year and more, all of it inspired and got up by a press agent, and all from the same source. It is reeled off every day and grabbed and published with avidity. Every one is beginning to see the continuous gross exaggeration of it. The news columns of newspapers should not be at the disposal of persons with axes to grind. If they suggest or give out any news, it ought to be traced to its source, if it has any source, and its foundation should be looked to, if it has any foundation. I wish you all success.

Sincerely yours,
W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

The letter from the Mayor headed a page devoted to congratulations to the editors of THE TIMES, JR., from Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President; James E. Sullivan, Secretary and Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Association; Horace A. Bonnel, Elbert Hubbard, James Melvin Lee, Director of the department of journalism at the New York University; John L. Sullivan, Gustavus T. Kirby, Helen F. Snow, Gertrude Bekes, and Charles Horton Watson.

GETS $30,000 FOR INJURY.

Miss Noar Wins Action Against Subway, Saying Door Struck Her.

Miss Mabel Noar, a hat designer, received a verdict of $30,000 yesterday in Justice Donnelly's part of the Supreme Court against the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for injuries received on Nov. 28, 1911, when she was hit by a side door in the Subway. Miss Noar, who is 24 years old, was boarding an uptown express at the Grand Central station, when the door closed, jamming her up against the steel partition which divides the passageway at the middle door.

As a result of the accident, it is asserted, she is suffering from a nervous disease, from which she will never recover and will be unable to work the rest of her life. The attorneys for the Interborough Company set up the defense that her ailment was not due to the accident, but had existed before.

Record in Naturalization Bureau.

County Clerk Schneider reports the breaking of all records of the local Naturalization Bureau on Tuesday. The number who took out first and second papers was 569. One hundred and seventy-three applied for their first papers and ninety-three made application for their second papers. The last day that aliens may file petitions for their second papers in order to vote in November is May 7.

MEN IN SUFFRAGE PARADE.

Their Division to be Headed by Couples on Horseback.

Misunderstanding of the position to be taken by the Men's League in the big suffrage parade of May 3 has led the Central Parade Committee, representing eight different suffrage organizations, to send out a statement saying that the Men's League will march in a body.

There will be a larger delegation of men marchers, it is expected, from the pledges received, than ever before. Some men will march with their wives, but the consensus of opinion is that the appearance of the parade will be better if the men sympathizers march together.

A general invitation is extended to all men interested to meet in East Twelfth Street, just off Fifth Avenue, at 2:30 P. M., on May 3. The division of men will be led by a group of mounted men and women riding in couples. Two handsome new silk banners recently presented to the Men's League will be carried by the same men who were banner bearers in the first suffrage parade, when only eighty-nine men were in line.

GOODRICH SAFETY TREAD

Goodrich Safety Treads

The tread that makes the brake effective

When your car starts to skid, and you know you are helpless, it is a mighty unpleasant feeling.

Also an unnecessary one.

Put Goodrich Safety Tread Tires on your car. Then you can steer it where you want it to go, and it will go there. And you can stop it where you want it to stop.

Whether the skid is caused by mud, water, slime, slush, snow, grease, the five fingers of the Goodrich Safety Tread—five thick, tough rubber fingers—stop it before it begins.

That's the only safe way to avoid a skid.

That's why Goodrich Safety Treads are best in the short stop.

These five thick, tough rubber fingers act just like your own five fingers would. They get a human handgrip on the roadway, and they push the mud and ooze away so that the path is safe for the wheel.

And they take hold of the road all the time.

They are there for constant service, not merely to come into play when there is a slip or a slide.

Goodrich Safety Tread Tires are unit molded just as all Goodrich Tires are. The thick, tough rubber tread and the layers of fine fabric and pure rubber in the body are literally molded into a unit in the Goodrich single vulcanization. All the life and durability and safety are secured for you in them.

*Batted for Paskert in ninth inning.

Two-base hits—Doyle, Merkle, Luderus. Home run—Merkle. Sacrifice hits—Mathewson, Herzog. Stolen base—Burns. Left on bases—New York, 8; Philadelphia, 2. Double plays—Mathewson, Shafer, and Merkle; Doolan, Knabe, and Luderus, 2. Struck out—By Mathewson, 4; by Chalmers, 2. Bases on balls—Off Brennan, 3; off Chalmers, 1. Wild pitch—Chalmers. Hits—Off Brennan, 5, in 2 1-3 innings, (at bat 10;) off Chalmers 5, in 6 2-3 innings, (at bat 19.) Umpires—Messrs. Rigler and Byron. Time of game—One hour and twenty-five minutes.

Christy Mathewson had an engagement last night to go to a show, so he hurriedly defeated the Phillies at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon by a score of 3 to 1. The quarrel consumed one hour and twenty-five minutes. Matty's fellow-Giants knew he wanted to get away quickly, so they helped him out all they could. The win boosted the Giants up to the head of the class. Larry Doyle, the bad boy, who scolded the umpire in Boston and was sentenced to three days' hard rest, was back in his violet suit and celebrated his return with a two-sack bang.

Among those present were 10,000 people and several others. They all guessed that Matty was pretty good, and that McGraw was a wise young citizen when he signed him a dozen years ago. He'll probably keep him. Christy was inclined to be careless yesterday and gave the Phillies five hits. He got a good call down for that, so after the fourth inning he didn't allow any hits at all.

Big Six retired three Philly sluggers in the sixth round with six pitched balls, and he faded the side in the ninth with five pitched balls. An ambitious player like that is apt to make good, do you know it? The famous fadeaway was working like a charm. Sherwood Nottingham Magee brushed his stick so hard at three fadeaways in the seventh inning that it will take an osteopath a week to rub the kinks out of his broad back.

The total damage to Matty was trifling. Paskert opened hostilities with a safe jolt to left, but died when he tried to stretch it into a double, George Burns tossing him out at second. Knabe then skied to Burns and Lobert beat out Shafer's peg to first. This close decision was made by Umpire Lord Byron. Magee rolled out, Doyle to Merkle, and ended the first inning.

Shafer tossed Cosy Dolan out in the second, and Luderus smashed a two-bagger against the right-field wall. He went to third when Dr. Mikey Doolin, the well-known dentist, was thrown out by Herzog. Charley Dooin, the great singer, ripped a single to right, scoring Luderus. The only other hit the Phillies got was in the fourth inning, when Dolan sent a hopping grounder through the box. Then Luderus hit into a double play. Nothing to that.

After that the Phillies batted about as well as a team of pitchers. In the last five innings Matty sent them limping back to the bench in one, two, three order. Not a Quaker got to first after the fourth.

Addie Brennan, the southpaw, started to shoot for the Phillies. His ammunition ran out early, and in the third inning he was strong for giving the Giants a piece of his philanthropy, when he was led gently off the field of battle to make way for George Chalmers.

Brennan was easy while he was in the going. Snodgrass, after hitting a perfectly harmless spectator on the bald head with a foul, strolled. Shafer rapped a single to centre, and Paskert, with a nice heave, threw Snodgrass out as he was jumping into third. Burns rolled to Doc Doolan, who extinguished Shafer at third. Burns stole second and scored when Bad Boy Doyle pummeled a two-station stinger to right field. Murray soared a rocket to Paskert.

Fred Merkle continued the worry on Brennan with a two-base drive to left in the second inning. Herzog sacrificed him to third, and the Toledo blade scored when Chief Meyers singled to left. Brennan got through the rest of the inning without further trouble, but cracked in the third.

Shafer singled to centre and Burns flied to Dolan. Brennan passed Doyle and Murray and filled the bases. Then came George Chalmers with plenty of good, cool nerve and a heap of pitching talent. Chalmers fanned Snodgrass and made Herzog fly to Lobert, leaving three Giants flat on the bases. Chalmers had the bases crowded again in the sixth inning, when Herzog and Meyers connected with singles and Matty walked. Chalmers pitched himself out of this deep excavation by making Snodgrass hit into a double play.

Merkle added a run to the Giants' share in the eighth when he savagely dashed a home run into the left field bleachers.

Pirates Erratic, Cardinals Win.

ST. LOUIS, April 23.—Hendrix to-day held St. Louis to two hits, a double and a triple by E Konetchy, but these, mixed with errors and passes, gave St. Louis a victory over Pittsburgh 3 to 1. St. Louis scored in the second on Konetchy's double, an infield out, and Oakes's sacrifice fly. A fast triple play in the third by Pittsburgh kept St. Louis down to one run in that inning. After Hendrix had forced in a run by walking Sheckard with the bases full, Mowrey hit to Hendrix, who threw to Kelley, forcing Steele home. Kelley then threw to Miller, completing a double play. Magee then tried to score, and Miller's throw to Kelley completed the triple play. St. Louis scored its third run in the fourth, when Konetchy tripled and stole home. Singles by Miller and Wilson and O'Leary's wide throw to first gave Pittsburgh its lone tally in the fifth. The score:

PLAYERS WOULD BE HIT HARD

Their Salaries Would Be Reduced if Baseball Was a Trust.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 23.—"If any Congressional Investigating Committee concludes that we are a trust, I firmly believe that before three years are over players will be drawing one-half of the salaries they are to-day—even less, in fact, than that. The player is the man who will be hit. It can't be the owners."

So declared Connie Mack, manager and half owner of the Athletics when the Gallagher resolution was placed before him, and he was asked for his opinion. Continuing, Mack said:

"There's no such thing as a baseball trust. If there was you wouldn't find some large cities having such poor teams as they have at the present time, while smaller cities, Detroit, for example, have organizations that are far better.

"All of us are out for ourselves only. That is absolute. We help each other no more than one shoemaker helps his competing neighbor shoemaker. If there's anything good about we want it for ourselves.

"I've always felt this way with regard to trusts. They pay their employes certain definite salaries. They always produce a certain definite quality of goods. It isn't so in baseball. Players get every penny they are worth, and almost always considerably more than they are worth, for the wise manager finds that to get the best work from a man he must continually encourage him in a salary way.

"In my opinion, there'll be no trouble at all in disproving to Congress or to any one else the existence of a baseball trust."

Cubs and Reds in a Tie.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 23.—Chicago and Cincinnati played to a tie to-day, the game being called at the end of the ninth inning with the score standing 5 to 5. It had been agreed that the game should be called at 5 o'clock to allow Cincinnati to catch a train, but play continued a few minutes after that hour to permit the last half of the ninth inning to be finished. Cincinnati tied the score in the ninth inning, when Bates knocked out a home run, bringing in a runner ahead of him. Chicago appeared to have the game won in the fifth inning, when five runs were scored on six hits. Cincinnati, however, scored one run in each of the seventh and eighth, and two in the ninth. Each team used three pitchers. The score:

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Ray Keating, the Yankees' moist ball pitcher, held the Athletics to three scratch hits to-day at Shibe Park, and administered the first shut-out of the season to the Mackmen by a score of 4 to 0. The young moundsman pitched the best ball that has been seen in this city this season, and looked to be worth all of the $9,000 which New York is reported to have paid for him.

In thet first inning, with one man out, Oldring bounced one at Midkiff which was too hot to handle, and Eddie Collins followed with a sharp bounder which Keating stopped but failed to hold. Oldring was nailed stealing, but Collins was more sucessful, making a clean steal of second. Then Keating fanned the great Baker. From this period on Keating was entire master of the situation and he went the full route, this being the first time this year that an opposing pitcher has lasted through a full game against the Mackmen.

Collins in the first, McInnis in the Fifth, Daley in the seventh, and Murphy in the eighth were the only runners to get as far as second base, and none succeeded in reaching third. Murphy's single in the eighth was a bounder through the infield which Keating and Hartzell just failed to touch.

At several stages, Keating grew wild, but each time Chance left his position and spoke a few words to the youngster, and the latter settled down immediately. In the fifth, he passed McInnis, and "Stuffy" reached second on Daley's sacrifice. Barry flied to Wolter, and Manager Chance ordered the pitcher to pass Thomas to first. It proved wise judgment on the part of the "P. L.," for Bush was an easy strike-out victim on three pitched balls.

With Keating twirling in such masterly fashion, the Yankees looked like a real ball club. They not only fielded perfectly but played a spectacular game, accepting several difficult chances which might have resulted in runs. In the fourth McKechnie ran into short right field and captured a fly from Collins which was a brilliant bit of fielding, and in the seventh Cree caught a liner from McInnis's bat which robbed the batsman of an extra base hit.

Joe Bush was Mack's selection for box duty, and he managed to keep the hits scattered until the sixth inning, when three singles were bunched off him. They earned one run, and the second was the result of a foolish throw by Thomas. With one out, singles by Cree, Chance, and Midkiff produced a run, and left Chance on third. McKechnie popped up a foul, which Thomas caught at the plate. Midkiff drew a throw to second, and Chance easily beat the return.

New York's first run came in the second inning on a pass to Cree, an out on which Collins made a pretty stop back of first base, and a single to centre by McKechnie. With two out in the seventh, Chase tripled to centre, but was left on third. With one out and a runner on first and second in the eighth, Barry made a fancy stop of McKechnie's rap which resulted in a double play.

Lapp batted for Bush in the eighth, and Cottrell pitched the last inning. With two out, Wolter smashed one to right and reached second by some speedy base running. Chase poled a single which scored the final run of the game.

Hard Hitting Wins for Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 23.—Hard hitting by the Cleveland team brought them a victory over St. Louis to-day, 6 to 2. Wellman and Falkenberg, the tallest pitchers in the American League, opposed each other. Wellman measures 6 feet 6 inches, Falkenberg one inch shorter. The batting of Jackson and Graney and the fielding of Lajoie brought cheers from the crowd. Chapman's errors were chiefly responsible for both of St. Louis's scores. The score:

Doc White Wins Pitchers' Battle.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Chicago defeated Detroit in the final game of the series to-day, 2 to 1, in a pitchers' battle between White and Hall. The locals bunched two doubles for their first run, while a pass, a sacrifice, an infield out, and a single netted the other. The visitors started a rally in the last inning after an error by Weaver, which, coupled with a sacrifice and a single, netted a lone run for Detroit. A lightning double play, however, Rath to Borton, checked the rally. Borton, in four times up, received a base on balls and made two doubles and a single, while Jones, in four times to the plate, drew as many passes. The score:

Johnson in Invincible Form.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Walter Johnson pitched wonderful ball against Boston to-day, blanking them, 6 to 0. He allowed only two hits, one of which, a "Texas leaguer," came in the ninth inning, and gave two bases on balls, one in the seventh inning and one in the final inning. This accounted for all the visitors who reached bases. Johnson has now pitched twenty-six consecutive innings without being scored on. Washington scored its runs by hitting Collins hard, among the hits being a double and four triples. The score:

Yale's Home Run Drives Defeat Columbia at New Haven, 6 to 4.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 23.—In the heaviest hitting game of the season Yale barely defeated Columbia by a score of 6 to 4. Three home runs, one each by Riddell, Blossom, and Moore, and a triple by Gile, were included in the heavy batting, Blossom's hit sending Middlebrook and Reilly across the plate ahead of him, which decided the game. Moore's home run drove O'Neill across the plate. Gile was relieved by Scott in the sixth, who was hit hard. Columbia outbatted the home team, but five passes to the Yale batsmen evened the argument. Running catches by Scofield and Middlebrook were the fielding features. To-day's victory was Yale's seventh straight. The score:

New Way to Get Sunday Baseball.

GIRARD, Kan., April 23.—Despite a "blue law" which went into effect here recently after being submitted to a popular vote at a city election, Girard "fans" may have their Sunday baseball. Upon their instigation and insistence the City Commissioners to-day voted to change the city limits, leaving the ball park outside and beyond the jurisdiction of city ordinances. A vigorous campaign against Sunday baseball was conducted here some months ago under the leadership of the churches.

RUCKER SHOOTS 'EM PAST BOSTON BATS

Brooklyn Southpaw Effective Until Last Inning, When He Eases Up a Bit.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 23.—Charley Ebbets's ever reliable fork-sider, "Nap" Rucker, toyed with the Boston Braves this afternoon, holding them down to one stray single for eight innings, after Left Fielder Connelly had started the game with a two-base hit for the locals. At the start of the ninth inning, the Superbas led 7 to 0, but at the very finish Rucker let down the bars too far, and four hits, following a base on balls, gave the Braves two runs. The 7 to 2 score registered against Boston was the third of the season on which the Braves have drawn the small end.

With Otto Ness, also a south paw in the box, Bill Dahlen shifted his team a little, sending Hummel to right field in place of Moran. Hummel changed place in the batting list with Stengel, and found Hess's delivery much to his liking. He pounded in the Superbas' first run, hitting into the right field bleachers and driving Cutshaw home ahead of him. Rucker did not exert himself a little bit, and always had command of his game.

In eight innings only two members of the home team reached second base, one of these advancing to third, only to be thrown out at the plate by Hummel, who made a fine catch of a liner from Myers, and then made a heave into Miller's hands that was a beauty.

Zach Wheat did a lot toward keeping the Boston score a blank until the finish, making two pretty running catches, one of which was of a low liner driven close to the foul line by Myers.

There was no scoring until the third inning, when Cutshaw's single and Hummel's home run were combined. Three innings later Sweeney and Maranville each made an error, which, with hits by Wheat and Fisher, made three runs easy. In the following session Stengel's triple, with hits by Cutshaw and Wheat, helped two runs across and completed the Superbas' total. Boston finished strong, a pass to Pinch Hitter Smith and consecutive singles by Connelly, Maranville, Myers, and Sweeney counting two runs. The score:

GIBSON'S ANKLE BROKEN.

Pittsburgh's Star Catcher Will Be Out of Game Two Months.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 23.—There is gloom in the Pirate camp to-night over the news that their star catcher, George Gibson, must be out of the game for two months. Gibson's right ankle is broken and he will not be able, from present indications, to take his place behind the bat until the latter part of June.

The discovery that the injury to Gibson's ankle was more serious than at first believed was made through an X-ray photograph, which revealed a broken bone. As soon as the swelling can be reduced the foot will be placed in a plaster cast.

FLOOR HOCKEY IN "GYM."

Noon Class Wins Annual Championship of Brooklyn Y. M. C. A.

With four teams in competition the annual hockey championship of the Central Branch, Y. M. C. A., Brooklyn, was decided last night in the association gymnasium, when in the final match of a series of three the noon class defeated the quintet of Class 5:30 by the score of 10 goals to 7 and won the title.

Floor hockey is played under similar rules as ice hockey. A leather puck is used, and the hockey sticks are somewhat smaller than those used by ice players. The necessarily small space made the play fast, but as the sides of the rink were unprotected the puck was frequently out of play.

A small net-covered box 9 inches high and 5 feet wide was used for the goal. Combination and team work play an important part in the game, as owing to the limited space the players were bunched, and long shots were almost impossible.

The Wednesday Class made an excellent start against the 4:30 team, but was unable to maintain the speed. During the early stages of the first half the Wednesday quintet led by the score of 3 goals to 1. Their opponents were slow in getting started, but once their combination play became effective the Wednesday players were kept busy on the defense, which weakened their attack, and the play was largely confined to their territory. The 5:30 class improved their position and play in the second half and drew away from their opponents, winning by the score of 12 to 3.

The final round furnished an interesting display, both teams showing good combination work.. Toward the latter stages the speed of the Noon players wore down the 5:30 players,, and the former won a closely contested match by the score of 10 goals to 7. The summary:

4:30 Class.	Position.	Noon Class.
Donnelly	Goal	Carey
Brady	Cover point	Volkemer
Edmonds, Chappell	Right wing	Hudson
H. Skidmore	Centre	Boyle

WRESTLING AT N. Y. A. C.

Professional Exponents of Game Give Several Exhibitions.

Professional wrestlers held the boards last night at the New York Athletic Club, with nine bouts staged, in which were shown various degrees of the grappling game. Catch-as-catch-can was the style announced in eight of the bouts, with the other showing jiu-jitsu at its best as demonstrated by Will Bingham, an English exponent of the Japanese method, and in which he defeated Anton Faust, to whom he was conceding at least twenty pounds.

What was expected to be a regular bout called out two "champions," George Lurich of "Europe" and Karl Pospisil of Bohemia. These men scaled well over 200 pounds, and made up in lack of knowledge of the game what they had in avoirdupois. Announced as a catch-as-catch-can bout the "contest" was everything else, and resembled jiu-jitsu more than anything else ever seen in the wrestling game.

This pair had two tussels, the first lasting 12 minutes 49 seconds and the second 14 minutes 35 seconds, with Lurich the winner, with a chancery hold and a double arm hold, respectively.

George Bothner gave his usual fine exhibition of offensive and defensive work against Bob Sinclair, the "champion" of Canada, and when he got ready he flopped Sinclair in each of his two bouts, the first with the aid of a scissors and the other with a further arm and body hold.

Jack Niflot, the former Olympic champion, found little trouble in disposing of Young Ajax in straight falls, the first being a scissors and the second and last a neck lock.

What had every appearance of a real contest was that between Gus Schoenlin (Americus) and Hjalmir Lundin, heavyweights, who gave the best interpretation of the sport seen during the evening. Although the former won in straight falls, both events had the semblance of a contest, the men showing knowledge of the game which had not been displayed by any of the big men in the series.

Time and time again each wriggled out of holds which seemed unbreakable, these feats being warranted by ability, as both showed themselves possessed of fine defensive as well as offensive tactics. The second and last bout between the pair made amends for the weird displays of the earlier part of the evening.

KENTUCKY HORSES SOLD.

$1,600 Paid for Peg o' My Heart, Top Price at Durland's.

Kentucky-bred saddle horses, the offerings of S. T. Harbinson & Co., of Lexington, Ky., brought gratifying prices last night under the hammer at Durland's Academy. The consignment numbered twenty-one horses, and the lowest price received was $340, while the high water mark reached four figures on two occasions when $1,600 and $1,125 were received for the pick of the lot.

James C. Ott of Philadelphia topped the list of buyers when he collected a bevy of five horses for an aggregate of $2,015. He was the second highest bidder, paying $1,125 for Polly Winslow, the second horse offered. Polly Winslow is a chestnut mare, 6 years, 15¼ hands, and presented an ideal type of saddle horse.

The top price of $1,600 was paid by H. B. Guthrie for the chestnut mare Peg 'O My Heart. The first offering of the lot was Peter Gentry, a son of the champion John R. Gentry. It was considered a splendid show prospect for combination and runabout classes and of the typical Morgan kind. He brought $600, being purchased by James C. Ott.

Dankelman Defeats Otis with Cue.

The third block of the John Dankelman and Charles Otis three-cushion billiard match for a prize valued at $100 at Keeney's Billiard Academy in Brooklyn last night resulted in a victory for Dankelman by the score of 50 to 45. This victory gives the New York player two games out of three.

SHUGRUE WINNER IN FAST BOUT WITH LORE

Phil Cross Whips Young Jack O'Brien and Young Ahearn Defeats Harry Price.

Joe Shugrue of Jersey City was the winner over Johnny Lore of West Side, Phil Cross of New York gained the honors over Young Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia, and Young Ahearn of Brooklyn defeated Harry Price of South Africa in the all-star boxing show last night at St. Nicholas A. C.

The Shugrue-Lore bout, a return affair between these rising lightweights, was one of the hardest fought battles that has been staged in a New York ring in many months. It was active all the way with not a dull minute to break in on the steady exhibition of speed and hard hitting, and several times it verged on the sensational. The last two rounds were especially active and it was due to his work in the ninth round that Shugrue managed to carry off the verdict. At the finish there was no questioning his victory, but with the ninth round subtracted from the proceedings, he woud barely have edged in with a draw, most likely getting a shade decision against him.

Of the first six rounds each boxer was entitled to two and the other two were even. In the seventh round Shugrue cut loose with some of the speed that he flashed in his recent bouts here, and won the round by a wide margin. In the eighth he appeared to tire, and Lore was the winner on points by as much of a margin as Shugrue had in the previous chapter. It was a case of the last two rounds to decide the battle, and early in the ninth Shugrue landed a terrific right swing to Lore's jaw. The west side boy went to the canvas, badly dazed, and he was satisfied to take the count of nine seconds before arising. Shugrue tore after his opponent and finally broke him from a clinch, sending him to the floor again, and just outside the ropes. Lore was up in three seconds this time and managed to remain on his feet during the remainder of the round, but he had to take all kinds of punches, which came from all angles during the remainder of the round. He was bleeding from his mouth and nose when he went to his corner at the close of the round.

Lore came out in the tenth and put up a wonderful exhibition, considering what he had experienced in the previous round. On points Lore was entitled to the final round by a narrow margin, but Shugrue's work in the ninth turned the victory in his favor. The Jersey boy showed only occasional flashes of the aggressive work which he has generally shown here. He has not figured in a bout in more than two months, and the long lay-off seemed to affect him. He tired easily, but managed to come back each time.

Phil Cross of the east side and young Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia came together in the final bout originally carded for the semi-final, and the aggressiveness of the east sider carried him to the front against the superior cleverness of the Quaker City boxer. Cross weighed 140½ pounds and O'Brien 141¼ pounds. Cross had the better of six of the ten rounds, O'Brien leading in the second, third, seventh, and tenth chapters. Cross carried the work to O'Brien from the opening to the closing bell, and it was by his superior work in the clinches that he weakened the Quaker. Phil, unable to land effectively on O'Brien's head, devoted his attention to O'Brien's stomach, and forced the latter to hold on continually. Cross carried a discolored right eye and a badly swollen nose when he left the ring, and O'Brien's lips were swollen. Neither scored a knockdown, but O'Brien fell in the last round when he tripped over Cross's feet.

In the opening bout young Ahearn's cleverness was too much for Harry Price of South Africa, but for four rounds Price gave no indication that he could not go the full route. In the fifth round Ahearn sent Price down for the count of nine, and when he arose showered him with punches and soon had him in such a condition that Referee Dan Tone stopped the bout. Ahearn weighed 145⅝ pounds and Price 145 pounds.

BOXING CLUB MUST PAY.

Forty-fourth Street Club Owes the State $200—License Suspended.

The license of the Forty-fourth Street Sporting Club, formerly the National Sporting Club, was again the subject for action by the State Athletic Commission at its weekly meeting yesterday, and the outlook for any more boxing there is not promising, unless someone experiences a change of heart. At yesterday's meeting, John Reisler, known as "John the Barber," who purchased the club from Dan McKetrick and Harry Pollok, a short time ago, had to answer to the charge of failure to pay the State's percentage of receipts to the State Controller for the last three shows at the club. The amount of money in question is $200, and at the conclusion of the hearing the Commissioners decided to suspend the club's license until the money is paid.

The disorder at the Irving A. C. of Brooklyn on Tuesday night, when a brother of Joe Coster jumped into the ring and punched Patsy Callahan after the latter had committed a foul, came up for discussion, and John Reischman, the referee, who disqualified Callahan, was questioned. He said that he considered Callahan's action deliberate, and the latter was suspended pending a hearing. Callahan and others connected with the bout will be summoned to next week's meeting.

The hearings on the complaint against the Atlantic Garden A. C., for failure to abide by contracts made by the club's matchmaker were completed. Jimmy Johnston, former matchmaker; William Kramer, Jr., President of the club, and the Fordon brothers, matchmakers, testified. The claims of the four boxers—Willie Gould, Eddie Powers, Mike Rosen, and Joe Mooney, total $385. The testimony was so conflicting that the Commission declined to render any decision on the matter, and notified the managers of the boxers that they should seek redress in the civil courts, if they cared to press the cases.

On receipt of word from the French Federation of Boxing, which has a working agreement with the Commission, the latter body voted to uphold the suspensions of George Gunther, suspended for non-appearance, and Tom Leary, for fouling, at the Wonderland Boxing Club in Paris. Gunther is a Philadelphian. Both drew suspensions of three months, beginning in March, and they will be ineligible to box here, if they so desire, until these suspensions have expired. The French Federation also notifies the Commission that Billy Papke had been suspended until Dec. 31, 1913, for his foul work in the bout with Frank Klaus. As Papke is now under indefinite suspension in this State no special action was taken in regard to him.

BAR BRITTON AND MOORE.

Philadelphia Police Charg Boxers with Faking in a Bout.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Director Porter of the Department of Public Safety to-day issued an order that "Jack" Britton, the Chicago lightweight pugilist, and "Pal" Moore, a local boxer, shall be barred from appearing in boxing matches in this city in the future.

The order was issued following a report from a police official that the bout in which these two boxers engaged at a fight club on Monday night was a fake, and that those who paid to witness the so-called contest were cheated out of their money.

Schenectady Loses Boxing Club.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 23.—Fire destroyed the Centre Street Opera House today, resulting in a loss of $40,000. The theatre was the headquarters of the Dorp Athletic Club, and was the scene of the most important boxing contests in the State outside of New York City. The President of the club had arranged several bouts, which will be postponed until the club decides whether to engage new quarters or discontinue giving boxing exhibitions.

CALIFORNIA AND THE TREATY.

President Wilson's use of his personal good offices and counsels of moderation in the matter of the proposed California laws excluding the Japanese from the right to own land are accepted by Japan as an evidence of our wish to maintain with that country relations of perfect good will and friendship. It is wiser to treat questions of difference between nations from that point of view. Already the quite unnecessary excitement over the matter in Japan is dying out. It was, indeed, largely a spurious excitement, inspired, as was stated in Tokio dispatches yesterday, "by small political groups seeking to embarrass the Japanese Government, and putting forward the American land question to rouse national feeling and hide their real purpose." We know the tribe of agitators here, men without conscience and reckless of consequences, who are always ready to promote "war talk" for their own selfish ends. Capt. Uyeno, the Japanese Attaché of the Legation at London, who was in this city on Tuesday, condemned the behavior of the demagogues in his own country, and said that the feeling of the "war element" was not shared by "people of temperate minds." He pointed out, too, that land holding by foreigners in Japan was restricted, and that the proposed California legislation might be looked upon as a fair offset.

So far as California herself is concerned, this anti-Japanese demonstration is a tempest in a rather small teapot. The number of Japanese in that State is small, their holding of land is small. There are fewer Japanese in the State than there were three years ago. Only a very excitable imagination would perceive any "menace" in these conditions. The spirit of the agitation, which is the spirit of the labor unions dominant in that State, is the worst thing about it. As Gov. Johnson pointed out, other States have laws similar to those now under consideration at Sacramento. In the State of Washington persons ineligible for naturalization cannot own land, and statutes of similar import have been enacted in half a dozen States. It is to be remembered, too, that there is a mutual agreement between Japan and the United States, in which Japan undertakes to discourage the immigration of laborers. Indeed, it is not upon the facts of the situation, but only upon misrepresentations and misunderstandings that any real and serious question can be raised.

Inasmuch as there is no reason at all why the matter should not be treated with entire calmness, it is well that we should not lose sight of the all-important fact that it has not yet been made clear that the California land laws would, if enacted, be a violation of the treaty. The ownership of land is not one of the rights specifically accorded in the treaty of 1911. Whether the spirit or the general phrases of the treaty might be held to include that right is a matter for the courts to decide, and it would be wiser to leave it to the courts than to attempt a premature and unauthoritative decision. There is a notable tendency to carry to extremes the theory of the supremacy of treaties over all State laws. It is true that treaties are the supreme law of the land, but it is important to keep in mind the exact language of Article VI. of the Constitution: "All treaties made or which shall be made under the authority of the United States shall be the supreme law of the land." The authority of the United States and of the treaty-making power is derived from the Constitution, according to one theory of interpretation, and therefore the exercise of the power would be limited by the grants of that instrument; according to another theory the treaty-making power is inherent in sovereignty and is without limitation. The court has inclined rather to the latter view, but manifestly there must be some limit. The Government could not make a treaty transferring the State of Maine to the Dominion of Canada for a sum of money. It has been contended, even in the face of many decisions of the Supreme Court, that a treaty, even though it be the supreme law of the land, cannot control matters within the reserved rights of the States, that is, cannot exercise authority never conferred upon the Government by the States. The late Senator Rayner held this view. To deny its validity is to set up the doctrine of legislation by treaty. If that doctrine be accepted without limitations, then it becomes evident that the States really have no reserved rights; any laws, land laws, school laws, laws in respect to suffrage, may at any time be annulled by the President and the Senate through the negotiation of a treaty. Secretary Bayard although acknowledging that the tendency of court decisions was in this direction, felt that there were grave doubts whether that view would obtain now if the question should come up for the first time. But in the California case it would be necessary to determine first of all whether the treaty would in fact be violated by the proposed laws.

"MONEY TALKS."

There is a deposit of $5,000 in the Chamberlain's office which possesses an eloquence all its own. It is the money which was put up as cash bail by Patrolman Eugene Fox in January last when he was indicted for collecting corruption money in Harlem. Later he pleaded guilty. Apparently no one wishes to claim the money because it would involve an investigation as to its original source. From the report in The Times yesterday morning it seems that such an investigation has already been started. The partner of Fox's lawyer, when asked where Fox got so large a sum of money so promptly, replied: "I gave it to him." "And where did you get it?" "Why, I found it on my desk. I don't know how it got there."

It is no wonder that those engaged in this transaction do not care to reveal their connection with it by claiming the money. But what must be the scope and activity of the System if a sum of this amount can be so readily provided for the bail of one of its agents. The fact that this agent was so securely entrapped in the net of the prosecuting attorney that he found it safer to confess and make such terms as he could only brings the situation of the System into more conspicuous relief. The men who furnished the money may have reckoned that at the worst it would be worth $5,000 to give one of their accomplices a chance to skip his bail. They have now found that he did not care, or dare, to take the chance. And there are still men in high places who venture to belittle the cumulative proof of deep-seated and widespread corruption in the police force and to sneer at the efforts making to detect, punish, and exterminate it.

SCUTARI AND ALBANIA.

The entrance of the Montenegrins into Scutari may complicate the final settlement of the Balkan question somewhat, but there are reasons why it is not likely to prevent or greatly to defer it. Chief of these is the fact that the European Powers have agreed that Albania shall be erected into an independent State, and that Scutari shall be included therein. Another is that among her Balkan allies Montenegro can find none that will give substantial support to her claim to Scutari. Servia at one time backed that claim with arms, but withdrew and will not risk losing what she can gain with the assent of the Powers by opposing their plans as to Albania.

An independent Albania is in some respects an absurdity. It is thinly populated; considerable portions are almost without population; its people are of varied nationalities and religions; most of them are semi-barbarous mountain tribes, often at war with each other; its roads are few and bad. It is difficult to conceive of any really autonomous organization in the country that could maintain order or develop the resources of the land. Provision will have to be made for some degree of European supervision and practical control, and this question will prove a knotty one. But we have the word of Sir Edward Grey that an independent Albania was actually the one plan that saved Europe from a general conflict. Apparently being unable to agree to whom Albania should go, the Powers concluded to erect it into a State, the management of which was left for future devising. In this way it will block the way of Servia to the Adriatic, check the aspirations of Russia as the head of the Slav races, and furnish a basis for future Austrian advance if opportunity offers. It is an offset to the general gains which the Triple Alliance has secured from the amazing victories of the Balkan allies.

Meanwhile the allies seem to be doing a little manoeuvring for position among themselves. That is probably the explanation of the movements, or reports of movements, of Greek and Bulgarian troops about Salonika. It is hardly thinkable that either of the two Governments would be mad enough to come to blows over the spoils of a triumph in which each nation has borne so creditable a part, and in which they have so abundantly proved the advantages of co-operation. Both Governments have acted with great courage, energy, skill, and loyalty in the hard struggle which has resulted so favorably. As the original alliance was largely the work of the Greek Premier, and as Greece has won rich fruits from it, it would be the height of folly to imperil these by a quarrel with Bulgaria. United the allies can settle the Balkan question almost to suit themselves. If they fall to fighting among themselves they will simply invite the Powers to come in and despoil them.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S FIRST VETO.

The President, we think, will veto the bill forbidding the prosecution of unions and farmers' societies under the anti-trust law, which is likely to be the first important bill sent to him by Congress. We make the prediction confidently because he himself has supplied the reasons for the expectation of such righteous action. As Governor-elect of New Jersey he said:

> It will be my pleasure and my privilege to serve the people of New Jersey, not as the head of a party, but as the servant of all classes and all interests. The man we need, the man we must develop, is he who will make the will to do right square with the standards the law sets up.

He is President because he was that sort of Governor. It would be an inexpressible misfortune if he is not to be that sort of President. If he should sign the class legislation presented to him in this bill he would give ground for believing that he lacks the will to do what he knows to be right. It is right—as he himself has said—that there should be one law for all men, and one President for all classes. It cannot be right that a President should allow his hands to be tied against the execution of the law according to his oath.

It may be conceded that there is a difference of opinion regarding the amendment of the law, or its repeal in whole or in part. This is not that case. The proposal is that the President should sign a bill admitting the application of the law to the classes seeking exemption, but should make it impossible to prosecute them. By that act he would not only shirk part of his duty. He never thereafter could claim to be President of the whole people, and would be false to his own ideals. If he should begin in this way there are good friends of his who will lament the readiness with which he serves the times, abandoning his principles when the occasion calls. Already it is said by some hypercritics that the United States has a President who would rather be President than be right. But being President he must be thought to have passed that crisis, and to be desirous of acting upon his own standards, lest a worse thing be said of him.

THE BRITISH BUDGET.

The budget speech of the British Chancellor puts it on the record that never was there such prosperity, or such taxation, in the Empire. The connection between the two facts may be accidental, and it may be that one is the cause and the other result. If the relation of cause and effect exists it would follow that there could be greater prosperity and happiness if there could be greater taxation, and not otherwise. The proposal to cease the military expenditures, which chiefly cause the increase of taxes, has caused remonstrance in both England and Germany. In both nations it was said that the checking of such expenditures would cause an economic crisis in the iron and armament trades through the decrease of wage disbursements.

But the optimism of the Chancellor indicates that the limit of happiness through taxation has not yet been reached. It is not even necessary to levy new taxes, since the income from the old taxes is still rising. The present disbursement of over $100,000,000 in old age pensions, health insurance, and other doles to the nation's dependents is not a maximum. The increase of over $40,000,000 in the army and navy budget is not yet a maximum, although a total of over $370,000,000 for a population like England's is staggering. Mr. Gladstone's budgets were around $350,000,000. Lord Salisbury's were around $450,000,000. Lloyd George's approach the round £200,000,000, which makes England a billion-dollar country. This is made possible through his famous budget which collected last year $125,000,000 in death duties, $220,000,000 on property and in income taxes, and sundry millions too numerous to specify.

Truly, it is necessary for the taxpayers to suffer in order that others may be happy. Nor is there any visible check to such happiness, so long as the taxes grow, and money will be lent. If the taxes should decrease, or if lenders should become shy, it might be different. But why borrow trouble? His British critics say he is merely piling up trouble for his successors by what they call, with malicious intention, his gamble in futures. But he is a man of the present. There is complaint that living is high, but consols are cheap enough. The tax-gatherer never was busier, and British credit is impregnable. These are the facts of to-day, not of to-morrow. They are, moreover, in essentials the conditions in Germany, and in France, and even in the United States. Lloyd George is essentially a man of the present, not of the future, and there are many in the same class and condition with him.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

The decision published last week annulling a commitment for alleged contempt of court is far from authorizing contempts, or preventing their punishment. The decision is merely that contempts of plaintiffs, or plaintiffs' interests, are not contempts of court, and that when they become contempts of court their punishment is a matter for the courts to punish, and not for the plaintiffs to prosecute. If a refusal to answer questions in a receivership proceeding were contempt of court punishable by a term in jail, there would be a criminal punishment in a civil proceeding.

This was the ground of the annulment of Mr. Gompers's sentence in the Bucks stove case. He is now awaiting the result of the inquiry into the same acts on the motion of the court, instead of the motion of the plaintiff. There is not yet authority for saying that Mr. Gompers was guilty of contempt in disregarding the injunction of the court, but in the case just decided there was no injunction, and therefore the less justification for the commitment for contempt. The process for contempt is too valuable to be frittered away by extensions of it to doubtful cases, and it is well that Judges should be warned against a too free use of their power.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

She Doesn't Even Mind-Read.

Nothing can be more dangerous to the life and growth of such stories as those recently circulated about Beulah Miller, the little Rhode Island girl who has been astonishing certain estimable people by displays of a power to them obviously "psychic," than to let a man like Dr. Hugo Munsterberg apply to them his coldly scientific methods of investigation.

Hitherto the child has been examined by only people with a love of the marvelous for its own sake—who start with something more than willingness to be convinced that what they see requires for its explanation a resort, if not to the outright supernatural, at least to the supernormal. Less successful than the miracle hunters who had preceded him in the study of this "case," Dr. Munsterberg found in the little girl only an unusual facility in interpreting minute signs—made quite unintentionally, he is kind enough to admit—by the relatives with whom she has been in longest and closest association.

When her mother or sister, he says, knows some very simple secret, like the denomination of a card lying back up on the table, Beulah can name it without seeing its face—she can, that is, if she has an opportunity to observe their motions, expressions and sensations as she struggles with the enigma. If the mother or sister is not present, or if Beulah is blindfolded, she has as little "X-ray vision" as any other child. Dr. Munsterberg denies to her, therefore, even the power to "read the thoughts" of another—that power the possibility of which is so glibly asserted by those who think thus to keep credulity within decent bounds and still to admit that the dreams of philosophy are not all-inclusive. He does not quite identify Beulah's performances with those of the learned horses that have astonished Germany of late, for he excludes the theory of intentional deception on the part of anybody concerned. He does, however, insist that the child works her marvels exactly as the horses do—that is, information is signaled to her by those who have acquired it in perfectly normal and commonplace ways.

Of course, this will not satisfy the confirmed and initiated psychical researchers. They all recoil from using the laboratory methods of Dr. Munsterberg for the—to them—excellent reason that when such methods are used the desired results are never obtained.

Famine Can Be Avoided.

It will probably be news to most people, as it was to us, to learn that of the ice used in this city considerably more, even in normal seasons, is of the so-called artificial than of the so-called natural kind. Such, however, is the statement made by Cold Storage and Ice, the periodical devoted to the refrigerating industries.

New York's total annual consumption of ice, it says, is now about 5,000,000 tons, and of these 2,754,000 tons are manufactured. This year there is a shortage in the natural ice crop, and the available supply is 1,202,000 tons instead of the required 2,246,000. Much increased prices are therefore threatened unless something can be done to relieve the situation. The remedy most often proposed is the hasty building of new ice plants and enlarging those now in existence, but that is declared impracticable and unwise by this authority, and as an alternative plan it suggests that, instead of waiting, as usual, for the hottest months to come before running the existing ice plants to their full capacity, it be done now, and the product used instead of natural ice. The latter, the writer of the article says, should be saved while the ice plants can meet the whole demand, and brought into the market only when they cannot.

This suggestion seems to be entirely reasonable, but action on it must be by the big companies, the public being helpless in the matter. We understood the companies to announce, however, that there was no intention of raising prices, even if the supply gave out, and that the only escape from an ice famine lay in the exercise of rigid economy by the consumers. That sounded well, but it is not easy to see how much ice can be saved by economical use, for the amount required to make a refrigerator serve its designed purpose is practically fixed, and most will use that amount as long as they can afford to have any ice at all. Necessity, rather than price, controls the greater part of private consumption, at least, and ice would have to be very high indeed to make anybody not desperately poor cut down his accustomed order.

According to the figures given by the authority quoted, from October to February inclusive the entire dependence has been on natural ice, the production of the artificial sort beginning in March, reaching its maximum in July and August, and ceasing in September. For five months the plants are credited with no output. The reason usually assigned for this is that artificial ice, because of peculiarities in its formation, cannot be stored. The validity of that reason, however, is denied, apparently with truth.

Men Bear Wrongs Patiently.

A correspondent, indubitably masculine, sends to The Chicago Tribune the truly pathetic plaint of a tortured and helpless soul. On moving into his present house, he says, a whole closet was assigned to him for his very own—by whom can easily be imagined—and as the closet has twenty-three hooks he was simple enough to hope and even believe that great happiness was in store for him. He soon found, however, that he had a recognized right to the use of only one of the twenty-three hooks, and though he has since built an addition to that closet, he is still obliged to resort to the bedpost as the point of suspension for whatever of his "duds," as he calls them, cannot be hung on the single hook.

Incidentally, he remarks that "it's no joy to find one's fancy weskit way back on the last hook, covered deep by petticoats and combinations."

He should think on his mercies. More fortunate than some, he admits the finding. For many a man these sequestrations are permanent.

This matter of closets has not received the attention it deserved. In discussions of divorce and of wife-desertion it is almost never mentioned, and yet it is probably the greatest one influence in wrecking domestic harmony.

The wonder is that this common and long-standing wrong has not led to activities on the part of men that would rival in violence those to which the British militants have let themselves be driven by the mere lack of a vote.

ALIENS IN CALIFORNIA.

Does Superior Industry and Skill Make Them Unpopular?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a late resident of California (and, incidentally, as an Englishman,) I beg to contribute my quota to the discussion which has arisen as a result of the proposed alien land bill.

Does not the introduction of this bill almost point to an admission of inferiority on the part of our own race? Is it possible that we fear the encroachment of the Oriental? Yet I never heard this fear expressed, and I do not believe that it exists. Moreover, if Mr. Kawakami's figures in your to-day's issue are correct, viz: that in the whole State the Japanese own but 17,000 acres out of a total area of 12,000,000, I do not see how there can be any foundation for such fear.

My own experience has taught me that the percentage of undesirables from Japan is less than from other emigrant nations—also that the average of intelligence and thrift is higher—notwithstanding which, paradoxically, they mostly occupy positions which call for unskilled labor, working as hotel and domestic servants, pickers of fruit, gardeners, &c.—in fact, they largely take the place on the Pacific Coast of the negro in the South and East.

While, to some extent, they come into competition with white labor during the fruit picking season, the demand for "hands" is generally so great for the gathering of the citrus fruits of the South in Winter and those of the North in their season that the price of labor is little affected by the inroads of the Japanese. Preference is also invariably given to white labor, and it is always taken, when obtainable. On my own ranch in the San Bernardino Valley I never employed a Japanese for any purpose whatsoever—partly because of the general prejudice that on account of their short stature they are not so physically capable of doing the heavier kinds of ranch work, but, mostly, because having the Mexicans always with us we prefer to employ them, notwithstanding that they are both indolent and stupid by comparison.

The prejudice against the Japanese is wholly racial, political demagogues and the labor unions being responsible for the introduction of the bill in question.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Commenting on the Japanese in California, you say: "Perhaps if they were less industrious and efficient they would be more popular." That is just the trouble—the "natives" are outclassed. However, it is dangerous to advance this idea on the Coast.

PROF. EHRLICH DEFENDED.

Profits from Salvarsan Devoted to Further Research Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your recent Berlin dispatch entitled "Ehrlich Making Profits" does a great injustice to Prof. Paul Ehrlich, and it does not seem fair to permit such a faulty impression as that given by the message to go by unchallenged. The message reads: "There is said to be no foundation for the statement that Ehrlich devoted the profits from salvarsan to charitable purposes. On the contrary, he profited materially from the discovery of '606,' and so have several of his coworkers." The facts, however, do not agree with this statement. It has been stated repeatedly by Prof. Ehrlich and others in touch with his work that the profits on "606" were to be divided between Ehrlich and the manufacturers of the drug. That the latter were entitled to a profit no one can deny. But Ehrlich has stated publicly, and in the writer's hearing as well, that his share of the profits would be devoted toward further research work in the laboratory in which "606" was developed. Surely this must be considered an ideal application of his share of the profits, as a result of which the entire world is being benefited.

Those who know Ehrlich and have had the privilege of visiting his home must be amused at the last part of the dispatch, in which it is intimated that his purchase of an automobile was made possible by the enormous profits accruing from the sale of salvarsan. The writer of that dispatch, if he ever visited the palatial home of Ehrlich in Frankfurt, must have seen at a glance that he is a man of wealth, and that he had been such for many years before salvarsan was ever dreamed of.

Lastly, the sub-title of the article reads, "Comparisons between him [Ehrlich] and Friedmann unfair to the latter." The writer does not see the reason for this statement in any ground mentioned in the dispatch, but if a word of comment is permissible he would suggest that, even if Ehrlich were making a profit on the sale of his remedy, (which is not true,) it should be remembered that salvarsan is an accomplished fact, a veritable godsend to thousands innumerable, while Friedmann's remedy is still a matter of speculation. If Friedmann were to show results with his remedy comparable to those achieved by Ehrlich, no man could find fault with his desire to profit by his efforts.

Another Coffee Recipe.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is an Oriental custom to heat coffee, keeping it dry, before the boiling water is poured over it. This method more readily extracts the coffee essentials. The freshly ground coffee (not pulverized) should be placed in the percolator of the coffee pot, and heated with the coffee pot, the latter placed on the stove in a saucepan of hot water. If the coffee is hot in the hot coffee pot when boiling water is poured through it, given good coffee, very satisfactory results must follow.

"FOLDING BED LEGISLATION"

Attributed to Our System of Inelastic Constitutions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Times's witty editorial on "Folding Bed Legislation" suggests the inquiry why so many of our laws are framed to accomplish by indirection what the legislator does not attempt to attain frankly and directly. The phenomenon you describe has frequently been observed by foreigners, and they plausibly attribute it to our written constitutions; that is, to the necessity for such devious methods imposed by rigid limitations in the fundamental law. For example, our Federal Constitution prohibits impairing the obligation of contracts; so, to cut in two debts that were felt by a large class to be burdensome, it was proposed to make them payable in money worth only half the gold standard, without reducing the number of lawful dollars owed.

In reviewing Mr. Alger's "The old law and the new order" to-day, The Times says: "Legislation as regards hours of labor, for example, is hampered by the decisions of the courts resting * * * upon the persistence of theoretical notions of liberty," &c. It would be better to say that these decisions rest upon positive limitations in the Constitution as interpreted by a long course of judicial constructions running back to the notions of liberty, &c., entertained by the framers of the Constitution.

A Canadian member of Parliament has often declared that the radical legislation that has been going on under our eyes in England with no warfare more serious than that of words can only be obtained in the United States, with their inelastic constitutions, after a bloody revolution. But we have seen in these last couple of years how easily the Constitution of the United States itself can be changed. It was unchangeable so long as we thought it unchangeable. Now we are wondering why we thought so. But the habit of legislating after the folding bed model has been formed; and the process is even easier than amending the Constitution.

TAX ON CARTRIDGES

Would Make Easier the Enforcement of Migratory Bird Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of W. Lee White, in which he says that 50 per cent. of shotgun shells are used in trap shooting, will require further authority before gaining general acceptance. No such mortality of clay pigeons as would balance the activities of 3,000,000 licensed and unlicensed hunters can possibly be a matter of belief. If the barbarity of live-pigeon trap shooting still exists anywhere its votaries are not objects of particular sympathy. As to rifle cartridges used in target practice, it would be an easy matter to exempt those used by the National Guard, and reputable rifle clubs might secure a like exemption. As to the "shooting galleries," where young toughs are graduated into "gunmen," the tax paid by the proprietors would not constitute the kind of injustice which provokes revolution.

Mr. White's demand for a better enforcement of the game laws calls for universal approval. Especially is needed proper Federal action for the enforcement of the new migratory bird law. To secure this action will require money. Now, who should better pay to protect the birds from the users of cartridges than those users themselves? It is the use and misuse of cartridges which calls for 99 per cent. of the expenditures under the game laws. Why should they not pay part of the cost of the havoc they make?

As Dr. Hornaday has clearly pointed out, the wild birds belong to the 95 per cent. of the people who do not kill them as well as to the 5 per cent. who do. It is not too much to ask that those who profit exclusively by the killing of birds which belong to all the people should pay a small tax to help provide the admittedly necessary check on their own destructive work. Cartridges make necessary game wardens and game laws. Let cartridges help pay.

The New-Fashioned Woman.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter to The Times calling for the return of the "old-fashioned woman" is not the voice of all bachelors, as I for one firmly believe that the new-fashioned woman has all the advantages of the old plus those of the new. Their influence to-day is greater than ever before. Marriage statistics do not show any alarming falling off of marriages and I know of several "advanced" women who have made extremely happy mates to those lucky yet deserving men who were successful in obtaining their affirmative to the all-important question.

Marriages to-day are, as a rule, happier than ever, for men and women who are true are becoming more and more refined through the cumulative forces of love and reason. The masculine needs the feminine and the feminine needs the masculine to round out their characters. Some men have always been free to do what they will with their lives, and I do not see that in their ideals or character they have improved on the "old-fashioned gentleman," whereas the true nature of woman is only beginning to come to the front, as she has been in a state of evolution. The masculine nature lacks the intuitive sympathy and tenderness that make a woman such a source of help and strength. Woman has uplifted everything she has taken an interest in, and most likely she will have that influence on politics as well.

Inebriate Home Near Warwick.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a letter published in The Times "Tuxedo" appears peeved because New York City paid "$40,000 for a $20,000 farm in Orange County" for a home for inebriates, and states that the market value of all adjacent property will be practically eliminated.

"Tuxedo's" premises are as erroneous as his information. The city paid about $75,000, or approximately $100 per acre, for what was, after long search, decided to be the best and cheapest property for the purpose within equal distance of New York, and having the greatest accessibility without intrusion upon any interests in its vicinity. Far from impairing the market value of adjacent property, it seems to have had the opposite effect, as several sales made in the immediate vicinity since the city's purchase will attest.

"Tuxedo" need have no fear that the beautiful colony to which he belongs will be affected, and should bear in mind that there are others in the world to be considered and provided for besides that few who believe that all else is unimportant compared with their undisturbed pursuit of happiness and exclusiveness.

The thanks of the community are certainly due The Times for the vigorous crusade it is keeping up to protect our parks for us. Your efforts have my heartiest commendation. DEMOCRACY UP-STATE

The Backbone of the Party and Steadfast for Its Good.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How shall the Governor of New York best ascertain the opinion of the majority of his party associates in this State as to primary reform? How shall the President of the United States best be advised of the convictions of the majority of his supporters here as to appointment to office in this State? These questions at first seem unrelated. In fact, they are the same inquiry. By the action of recent National and State Conventions these Executives are also party leaders. Both are not only desirous of the elevation of party standards, but also they realize that leadership to be sustained must be representative of the informed judgment of the majority of the members of the party by which they have been elected.

That party ties hold men lightly today and that political affiliations are in a state of readjustment are so obvious as not to need discussion. Panta rei. Yet consideration of recent voting figures and a survey of historic political facts may give a good foundation for reasoning, and afford considerable security for conclusions.

No one can have been at the two conferences for Statewide primary reform in the Governor's room, Albany, April 11 and 18, and not have perceived that up-State Democracy was the actual inspiration of the movement. There were there, it is true, a welcome few of Bull Moose and old line Republicans, and a fair representation of Progressive New York City Democrats, but the great strength clearly came from up-State Democracy. This was to be expected in any meeting of men truly representative of the State in such a matter.

For where is the majority of the Democratic vote of New York State cast? Decidedly not in Manhattan; not in Manhattan, with the Bronx added; not in New York and Queens and Richmond Counties all combined; not even if to all these be added the 100,000 homes of Kings County. The Democratic vote in all these put together is less by many thousands than the total Democratic vote of the New York up-State counties. Here are the figures:

	Dem. Vote 1912.
	Gov.	Pres.
N. Y. County (Manhattan and Bronx)	159,690	166,157
Kings County (Brooklyn)	106,657	109,748
Queens County (L. I. City)	29,114	28,044
Richmond Co. (Staten Isl.)	8,230	8,437
Total for N. Y. City	304,000	312,386
Total for up-State counties	345,539	343,089
Dem. vote up-State over that of the city	41,539	30,703

These facts and figures lodged in the mind give a foundation for reaching sound conclusions in New York State affairs, and the history of the Democratic Party shows that the men who reasoned from these premises have been those who made Democracy in New York State both elevated in character and militant in procedure.

Of the Albany Regency, formed largely of up-State men, William Allen Butler, in his "Retrospect of Forty Years," says:

> They have been maligned as the prototype of machine politicians, but there never was a more groundless charge. They were associated not only for the promotion of party interest, but mainly for the sake of the principles which their party represented. They reaped no pecuniary advantages for themselves from their combination touching public affairs. No one of them grew rich or advanced his personal fortune by his connection with the affairs of State. I believe that the unifying force which held them together and made them a power in the State was the identity of their views as to the true principles of government and the duties imposed upon citizens.

And Mr. Butler's opinion is substantiated in Alexander's "Political History of the State of New York," recently published, where I find this:

> The appointment of Talcott, Marcy, and Butler changed the existing political system. Prior to their activity the distribution of patronage depended largely upon the local boss. His needs determined the men who, regardless of their personal fitness, should be given office. But Talcott and his colleagues introduced new methods, with a higher standard of political morality, and a better system of party discipline. They refused to tolerate unworthy men, and when the little souls stormed and raged their wise counsels silenced the selfish and staggered the boss. Gradually their control of patronage and of the party's policy became so absolute that they were called the "Albany Regency." It was, at first, simply a name given them by Thurlow Weed; there was neither organization nor legal authority. Power came from their great ability and high purpose.

Gov. Tilden staked and won his political life on the dominance of up-State Democratic ideals; Gov. Cleveland gained unparalleled hold upon our people in his recognition of where real party strength lay, and Gov. Dix, possessed of attractive personality and of highest personal integrity, failed, I believe, chiefly because he never gave time to a comprehension of New York State political history.

To carry the figures given above a step further, let Kings County be taken away from what is really an unnatural, unstable, and misrepresentative affiliation with New York County. I say unnatural because for Kings County independence of New York in Democratic Party affairs has been many times shown to be its proper existence, and never more conclusively shown than by the late distinguished Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn. Take away the vote of Kings County from the New York City total and place it where unrepressed and autonomously it properly belongs, namely, in party relationship with up-State counties, and then these are the figures:

	Dem. Vote, 1912, for Governor.	Dem. Vote, 1912, for President.
N. Y., Queens, and Richmond Counties	197,043	202,638
Up-State counties and Kings County	446,216	452,837
Up State and Kings over New York, Queens, and Richmond Counties	249,173	250,199

It is because party ties hold loosely and realignments are the order of the day that the Governor of New York wisely looks more and more up-State for the indication of what is true party policy in primary and other reform. Review of the past and analysis of the present I believe will tend to convince both him and every other executive officer of our party that there has always existed and exists now above the Bronx a body of steadfast, thoughtful, sincere Democrats representing the majority of the people in the State. These men are for Democracy, not because it can line their pockets, but because it expresses their inmost political belief. They look upon office holding not as a piece of machinery for obtaining or bestowing canal or highway contracts but as a means to elevate and exhibit the standards of administration. They seek party organization not as a club for the control of conventions, but as an approved method for united and effective action among men of like attitude toward public questions.

Sometimes these up-State men as a majority have rightly dominated the party organization; more often of late years by devious means they have been cheated of this political right. But it is only when the moral forces which these men represent have prevailed in Democratic councils that the party has been successful in accomplishing any constructive political work.

TREATY BILL WORSE THAN CALIFORNIA'S

Proposal to Abrogate Canal Agreement Baser Than State's Action, Says Corea.

COMPLAINS OF BLACK SHEEP

Only Americans Known in Costa Rica, Consul General Tells Pan-American Meeting.

The trouble California is having just at present with the Japanese question will stir a chord of deep sympathy in all Latin American republics, and most of this sympathy, according to Luis F. Corea of the Pan-American States Association, will be emphatically on the side of California.

Mr. Corea presided at a meeting of business men of South America, said to represent nearly $1,000,000,000 in invested capital, at the clubrooms of the Pan-American States Association in West Thirty-second Street last night. About 250 representatives of Latin American countries were present, and they applauded the expressions of sympathy for California's plight expressed by their presiding officer.

"We have had this Japanese question to handle in South America," said Mr. Corea, "and we handled it by debarring the Japanese from the right to own land in the Argentine and in several other States. After we debarred the Japanese a commission came from the Japanese Government asking the Argentine to recede from the radical position taken.

"The Argentine officials shook their heads. The Japanese commission went home. And that was the end of the matter. The Japanese sought to colonize the country. The problem never assumed anything like the proportions it has in California, and yet it was large enough to cause decisive action. Those people know how to sympathize with California.

"There is great need that Japan should now know how different from the centralized monarchy of Japan is the American Government, in which the central authority is helpless in the face of the determination of one State to exercise its powers of sovereignty.

"You Americans expect Japan to find out about your complicated system of State jurisdictions and may blame them if they don't. At the same time you blame California for making trouble for the rest of the States.

"Yet one of your Senators stands up in the Senate and proposes an infamous resolution that will shock the whole civilized world—a resolution calling for the abrogation of a treaty concerning the Panama Canal on which the good faith of the United States has been pledged. And no contempt you can have for California can approach the contempt the world at large will have for the United States if this Senator's outrageous view should prevail."

Manuel Gonzales, Consul General of Costa Rica, outlined some of the things he thought it imperative for New York people to learn at once about the people south of the Rio Grande.

"While Germany has sent us honest men who have won our trade by fair means and dealt with us fairly," he said, "the United States had sent us her black sheep. The black sheep of America are about all we have known. They have not kept their promises. They have introduced graft. They have tried to corrupt our officials. They have obtained concessions and broken all promises to get them, and then when we have risen to a man to hurl these grafters off our shoulders they have asked, and have have even obtained, United States warships to enforce upon us conditions the Germans have gladly been afforded because they asked honestly and gave honest returns.

"We want no more American black sheep. We want some real North Americans. We want the kind of Americans who gave us the wonder of a sanitary Cuba, and the marvel of the healthful Canal Zone. We stand with arms outstretched for friendship. We know that for building the greatest highway the world has ever known you deserve a reward, and we are anxious to throw our bits of payment into your market basket. But we want you to build crates for your goods that will hold up till they arrive and not fall to pieces en route.

"And we want you to send us bankers, so that you may be reliably informed as to our individual credits.

"The North Americans we have known have tried to impose their taste upon us and to boss us. We want your wise men to come and advise us and counsel us and we want you to call your bosses off. You must plant the seed of commercial relations in our land. You expect to harvest from the seeds the Germans have planted, and so you fool yourselves and get no crop.

"Your commerce needs the forerunners of engineers capable of building docks. We are ready to pay. You shall not do it gratis. And it needs the forerunners of marine engineers to teach us how to use your wonderful cement and concrete in building breakwaters. We need your experts in fireproofing. We need to be taught, and instead of sending us teachers you send us black sheep and grafters. It is surely time for a new kind of fellowship and understanding."

IN THE SUBWAY EXPRESS.

Clanking doors; a sing-song calling;
An alert exodus, and then,
With a scurry of feet, a throng
Of isolate women and men * * *
Clanking doors; the sing-song calling;
Darting forms from lighted spaces,
Then clear against the running black
A zigzag row of new faces * * *
Within, untenanted silence;
Without, sudden garish places,
Blurred, phantom, and ever a-crowd
With watchful and waiting faces.

Without, the garish blurred spaces
Leaping by in the vacant dark;
Within, the insulate human
Biding, patient, the silence stark * *
Opposite me, on the level
Of tired, lowered eyes half at rest,
A bunch of wildwood violets
Lying close on a woman's breast * *,
Clanking doors; the strident calling;
New faces, and that elder guest—
The bunch of wildwood violets
Breathing deep on a woman's breast.

Scudding through monotone darkness,
Where, brilliant, the phantom spots leap,
And parallels of still faces
Unremembering vigil keep * * *
Clanking doors, and that worn calling * * *
Silence keen, indifferent, aware,
And stealing from the violets
The gentlest sigh of homesick air!
Faces with grief over-written,
Faces blank with a lost despair—
And from the wildwood violets
That gentlest sigh of homesick air!

MISS MARGARET HAYS WEDS.

One of the Survivors of the Titanic Disaster Marries at St. Thomas's.

St. Thomas's Church at Fifty-third Street and Fifth Avenue was filled to the doors yesterday with guests for the wedding of Dr. Charles D. Easton of Newport, R. I., and Miss Margaret Hays, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hays of this city. Miss Hays was one of the survivors of the Titanic tragedy, and her care for the two small children, Edmond and Michel Navratil, filled columns in the newspapers after that disaster. Her engagement to Dr. Easton was announced several months ago.

The ceremony took place at 5 o'clock. The church was decorated with masses of huge palms in the chancel and bunches and vases of daisies decorated the altar.

The officiating clergymen were the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of the church, and the Rev. John B. Diman of St. George's School, Middleton, R. I.

The bride, who walked up the nave with her father, Mr. Hays, wore a white satin gown completely covered with old point lace, worn by her mother at her wedding. The bodice of point lace was cut low, and the long sleeves were one thickness of tulle. A court train of white satin fell from the shoulders to the end of the narrow square train and was held with a frill of point lace over the forehead with orange blossoms. It was caught to the skirt below the waist with sprays of orange blossoms. She carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Mildred I. Stewart, and the bridesmaids, the Misses Gladys Stout, Margaret Lowe, Margaret Fabern, and Gertrude Smith, were gowned alike in yellow satin frocks topped by moderately large dark-brown hats trimmed with large high bows of brown tulle placed at the back.

The gowns were short enough to show the bronze slippers, and had overdresses of shadow lace and a drapery of yellow tulle at the back. From just below the neck of the gowns a ten-inch-wide panel of yellow satin hung in a straight line to the bottom of the shadow lace overdress and was caught under and to the drapery at that point. Each girl carried a basket filled with marguerites.

The most picturesque of the bride's attendants was her niece, Grace Hays, a little maid of perhaps 4 years of age, who looked as though she had stepped from a painting by Sir Joshua Reynolds, even to the little cap. Her frock of soft white silk was figured in tiny yellow flowers, and it almost touched the floor; it was finished by two deep tucks. It was held in at a high waist line by a full, soft sash of yellow satin with long ends at the back. The top was cut out in a rounded U shape and finished by an upstanding frill of white mull. The straight, elbow-length sleeves were also finished with fine white frills and white lace mitts partially covered her tiny hands, which held a round white wicker basket brimming over with daisies. Her blonde hair was done up in quaint fashion, and a small round cap of white tulle was tied with a bit of yellow ribbon terminating in a bow directly in front, the tulle forming a narrow frill all the way around.

This small flower girl walked with her cousin, the page, Hays Browning, perhaps two years older, who wore an Eton Suit with the regulation turned-down white linen collar, and who carried a small high-crowned silk hat. As they came down from the altar his tiny cousin had her left hand slipped under his arm.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Frank H. Hays, wore a gown of brocaded chiffon combined with violet and blue chiffon, topped by a violet tulle hat with violet bird of paradise plumes.

The bridal procession was headed by the ushers when going up to the altar and coming back they closed the line of attendants. They were William McLeod, the Mayor of Newport, R. I.; Dr. Marshall Fabyan of Harvard, Charles R. Easton of Providence, Ernest Howe of Newport, Dr. Fritz Talbot of Boston, and Thomas H. Bauchle of New York. Dr. Frank B. Easton of Laconia, N. H., was the best man.

There was no reception after the wedding, but a dinner was served to the bridal party only in a private room at Delmonico's.

Dr. Easton and his bride, after their honeymon trip, will live in Newport.

I. T. BURDEN DIES, VICTIM OF APOPLEXY

Well-Known Figure in New York and Newport Passes Away at Age of 75.

FATHER OF BAILEY'S BEACH

Son of Famous "Ironmaster of Troy," and Himself an Iron Capitalist.

Isaiah Townsend Burden of 2 East Ninety-second Street, capitalist and ironmaster, died suddenly at 5 o'clock yesterday morning at his home, as the result of a stroke of apoplexy he had suffered shortly after midnight on Wednesday.

Mr. Burden had been in excellent health, and had spent all of Monday downtown in the business section. He retired early on Tuesday night, still in the best of health. Shortly after midnight his wife heard him moaning as if in distress, and on trying to rouse him, found that he was unconscious. A physician was hastily called, but Mr. Burden continued in a state of half-coma and unclear mind till early yesterday morning, when the end came.

Mr. Burden was born in Troy, N. Y., Feb. 21, 1838. He was a son of Henry Burden, known as the "Ironmaster of Troy," who was the inventor of the first horseshoeing machine. Through this, turning out sixty horseshoes an hour, he accumulated a fortune during the civil war. It was frequently said that but for his activities a majority of the horses in the Union Army would have had to go unshod. Isaiah Townsend Burden's mother was Helen McOuet Burden. He was educated in the common schools of Troy and at Russell's Academy, at New Haven, Conn. He began his business career as a partner with Henry Burden & Sons, at Troy, manufacturers of iron, horseshoes, and rivets. In 1881, with his brother, James A. Burden, he organized the Burden Iron Company, in which he held a half interest.

Mr. Burden was once President of the Port Henry Iron Ore Company, and at the time of his death was a Trustee of the Lake Champlain & Moriah Railway Co., and a Director of the Burden Iron Company. He was a member of the Union Club of this city, the Newport Casino, and President of the Spouting Rock Beach Association of Newport. He had a Summer home, Fairlawn, at Newport, where he entertained extensively. He was one of the organizers of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, and retained a large interest in that institution.

On April 18, 1871, he married Miss Evelyn Byrd Moale at Baltimore. Besides his widow, Mr. Burden leaves one son, I. Townsend Burden, Jr., and two daughters, Miss Evelyn B. Burden and Mrs. David Dows, who, before her marriage in December, 1911, was Miss Gwendolyn Burden. I. Townsend Burden, Jr., married Miss Florence Sheedy of Denver in June, 1911. Another son of Mr. Burden, William A. M. Burden, who married Miss Florence V. Twombly, died in February, 1909. Mr. Burden leaves also two sisters, Mrs. E. Proudfit of Troy and Mrs. Charles F. Wadsworth of Geneseo, N. Y.

The funeral services will take place at Grace Church at 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, and interment will be in the Albany Rural Cemetery, between Albany and Troy, where the Burden family tomb is located. A special train will leave Grand Central Station at 12:40 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The pallbearers at the funeral will be Frank S. Witherbee, George L. Rives, Stuyvesant Fish, H. Mortimer Brooks, Judge John Clinton Gray, Judge John G. Milburn, Col. William Jay, and E. H. Berwind.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., April 23.—Mr. Burden was always looked upon as the father of Bailey's Beach. He had been its president since its organization, and was deeply interested in its growth and improvement. The beach was his hobby, and through his efforts the place became noted. Mr. Burden bought Fairlawn on Bellevue Avenue from Levi P. Morton, improved it largely, and the residence was one of the social centres of Newport. Mr. Burden was absent last season and rented the place to Mrs. William B. Leeds.

FUNERAL OF MISS VON WAHL

Young Girl Who Died Won Success in Barnard College Plays.

The funeral of Miss Constance Von Wahl of 22 East 120th Street, whose popularity caused her to be elected President of the undergraduates of Barnard College in 1911, and whose talent as an actress, exhibited in plays produced by the students of that institution, won for her the admiration and support of such men as Otto H. Kahn, Winthrop Ames, and Percy Mackaye, the poet and playwright, was held on Monday in Holy Trinity Church, Lenox Avenue and 122d Street. Classes at Barnard were suspended during the hour of the funeral, and representatives of the student body and a number of the professors were in attendance at the services. The remains of Miss Von Wahl were cremated. She died on Saturday in the Presbyterian Hospital after an illness of two weeks from blood poisoning.

Miss Constance Von Wahl was the daughter of the late Hubert Von Wahl. She entered Barnard College four years ago. She was chosen for her talent to play the title rôle in Percy Mackaye's "Jeanne d'Arc" in the annual undergraduate production in 1911. On this occasion she acted her part with such realism that the author himself arose and applauded her. When her success in the production became known she was later introduced to Mr. Kahn and Mr. Ames. The former planned to assist her in obtaining instruction in one of the best dramatic schools in the country. Miss Von Wahl was graduated from Barnard last June at the age of twenty-two.

In the interval before she had planned to begin her course of dramatic instruction she entered the employ of the Borden Milk Company at 108 Hudson Street. She was fitted for work with that company by her special training in chemistry and higher mathematics at Barnard. In the meantime, however, Miss Von Wahl interested herself in dramatics, and up to the time that she became ill was assisting in training some children for a play at Lenox Hall Settlement in East Seventy-second Street. She was to meet her class there on Thursday night three weeks ago, but before leaving home she complained of feeling ill. Against the advise of her mother and brother she went to the settlement. She still complained of feeling ill when she returned home. The family physician was called in the next day, and on the following Saturday had her removed to the hospital. Her condition grew worse until she died. Blood poisoning is supposed to have resulted as an infection from chemicals.

Miss Von Wahl is survived by her mother and her brother, Dr. Hubert Von Wahl, a dentist of 1,777 Broadway.

"What's Happened"

Nobody knows, precisely. It occurred two weeks ago, perhaps, or fifteen days, or a month ago; possibly three months ago. The busy man can't remember.

That is why THE NEW YORK TIMES Index, January to April, 1913—the only newspaper index published in the United States—will soon be within reach of the readers of newspapers.

It contains an accurate, orderly account of news developments, giving page and column numbers of THE NEW YORK TIMES, as well as references to subjects and dates for this and other important newspapers.

This index of the news is so edited that it is complete in itself as a guide to contemporary events.

Just what happened, who were the participants, and what was it about? For the news events of the world this is the only publication in the United States that tells.

The business man will want it on his desk. To professional men, to all public officials, to writers, to students of public affairs, the subjects, dates, brief synopses, allusions to persons, and related subjects dealt with in this work will be invaluable. No newspaper can well do without it.

What's happened—it's there.

AUTO PEACE DEAL SETTLED IN WEST

Harmony with A. A. A. Restored Now—Bridge Down on Road from Albany to Buffalo.

Whatever differences of opinion in automobile competition matters existed between the Automobile Club of Southern California and the Western Automobile Association have now been ironed out, according to advices received yesterday by the A. A. A. Contest Board from its Chairman, William Schimpf, who is on his way back to New York after having visited all the important Pacific Coast cities. In the formation of a Southern California Contest Committee, the Chairman of which is E. G. Kuster, the new member of the Contest Board of the Three A's from the Automobile Club of Southern California, ten members have been included. Five of these are from the club and five from the Western Automobile Association, which, under the agreement, gives up all further pretensions as a governing body, but will retain its name and continue as a promoting or racing organization, governed by A. A. A. rules and sanctions for all its meets.

Laurens Enos, President of the Three A's, has sent a telegram to F. L. Baker, President of the Southern California body, confirming the appointment of Mr. Kuster as a Contest Board member. Thus ends, apparently, the storm which was brewing and which was to rend the country into two sections, according to certain prophecies, concerning all questions of government, not only of automobile races, but of competitive meets of all sorts. Also, it would seem to have sounded the death knell—if that had not already been sounded by the hostile attitude of the Motor Dealers' Contest Association—of any outlaw race meet at Brighton Beach this Summer.

⁂

Franklin Butler Crosby, who was killed in an automobile accident at Taunton, Mass., last Sunday, was associated with J. W. Du B. Gould and S. G. Averell, engineers, of this city, and at the time of his death held a responsible place in the automobile department of the American Locomotive Company at Providence, R. I. Mr. Crosby was 25 years old and was unmarried. He was a graduate of Betts Academy, Stamford, Conn., and of the Stevens Institute of Technology, from which he received the degree of Mechanical Engineer in 1909. He had done exceptional work in the engineering field and was considered a man of much promise. Mr. Crosby's funeral was held yesterday at St. Bartholomew's Chapel, Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street.

⁂

When a roller was required to smooth out the wrinkles in the practice diamond of one of the ball teams in the Detroit Manufacturers' League, the other day, the experimental department of the factory devised an agricultural implement the like of which had never been seen before. An automobile axle, slipped through a row of twenty flywheels, each weighing seventy pounds, resulted in an extremely effective roller.

⁂

One of the results of the recent floods in this State was the carrying away of the steel highway bridge over West Canada Creek, at the eastern edge of Herkimer, N. Y., a short distance above the junction of the creek with the Mohawk River. This bridge was on the main line of travel between Albany and Buffalo, and was the only entrance into Herkimer from the east, by way of the State road on the north side of the Mohawk. Its destruction has interfered temporarily with road travel across the State. While the bridge is down it will be necessary for westbound travel to leave the State road on the north side of the Mohawk River at Little Falls, crossing to the south side, running along through Jacksonburg and passing the site of old Fort Herkimer, recrossing the Mohawk River and the New York Central tracks—a very dangerous grade crossing—into the centre of Herkimer, to join the usual route. Eastbound, it will be necessary to cross the New York Central and Mohawk River at Herkimer, following eastward past Fort Herkimer and through Jacksonburg, recrossing the Mohawk at Little Falls, and joining the through State road by a right turn near the centre of the city. The A. A. A. Touring Information Bureau is informed that a temporary structure has been contracted for, to be opened in May. Meanwhile the State highway authorities are planning a new bridge, not only to take the place of the old one, but also to eliminate the steep hill over the present route.

GUARD FOR SUMMONSES.

Lawyer Says Mrs. Lawrence Keeps a Butler to Defend Her.

According to a statement made yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Page, Mrs. Julia Watts Curtis Lawrence employs an extra butler, whose sole duty is to guard her from the annoyance of process servers. Frederick H. Sanborn of 37 Liberty Street told the Justice this yesterday in an attempt to have a judgment against Mrs. Lawrence set aside on the ground that she had never been served with a summons in the action. The judgment was granted by default to George Rice on a claim for sea food furnished to Mrs. Lawrence five years ago.

"I can assure your Honor that this summons was never served on Mrs. Lawrence," Mr. Sanborn said. "My client employs a butler whose sole duty is to keep her from being annoyed by the horde of process servers who have been continually trying to reach her. Mrs. Lawrence is not trying to dodge the claims of genuine creditors, and I have always had the power to accept service for her. She is devoting her income of $35,000 a year to the payment of just debts, but she doesn't want snap judgments entered against her, especially when there has been no service."

Sustains Charges Against Mrs. Mullady—Approves Charter Change.

Mrs. Mary E. Mullady, a teacher in Public School 6, Queens, was dismissed from the service by the Board of Education at its meeting yesterday on charges of gross misconduct preferred against her by District Superintendent Seth T. Stuart, who died on April 14. She was accused by the wife of Robert M. Lott, a Flushing hotel keeper, with having been intoxicated in the hotel on last Thanksgiving Eve. This charge Mrs. Mullady denied. The dismissal was by a unanimous vote.

Daniel D. Feldman, a teacher in Erasmus Hall High School, was appointed Principal of Curtis High School, New Brighton, S. I., to succeed the late Harry E. Towle. Mr. Feldman's nomination by the Board of Superintendents was rejected "without prejudice" at the last previous meeting of the Board of Education, because it was thought that in making the nomination the Superintendents had not shown proper respect to the Committee on High Schools.

An extension of the system of cheap lunches for pupils was decided upon. The Board of Estimate and the Aldermen are to be asked to appropriate revenue bonds to the amount of $2,300 to equip eight more schools so that they may also provide cheap lunches.

There was a brief but spirited debate over the report of the Committee on By-Laws and Legislation approving Assembly Bill 2,539, entitled "An act to amend the Greater New York Charter in relation to the appointment of two additional examiners."

There are now four members on the Board of Examiners. The purpose of the bill is to make the number six. Former President Winthrop wanted the committee's report laid over until the next meeting. Six members, he said, were in favor of this action. Commissioner Stern said that the Legislature would have adjourned before the next meeting of the board, and action on the report should be taken at the present time. Gen. Wingate protested against the adoption of the report. So did Commissioner Martin, who said that the passage of the bill would tend to the degradation of the school teaching staff. The new examiners would be servile to the Board of Education, and members of the board would be harassed by friends of "lame ducks who had failed to receive the necessary rating and wished to be helped over the stile." Dr. Ira S. Wile said that, in reply to Mr. Martin's "pessimistic prophecy," he would point out that the possibilities of harassment and toadying to the board existed under the present arrangement. The report was adopted by a vote of 21 to 12.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Director of Physical Training; Inspector of Ungraded Classes Elizabeth E. Farrell, and City Superintendent Maxwell were yesterday directed to attend the Fourth International Congress of School Hygiene, which will be held in Buffalo Aug. 25-30. Dr. Ira S. Wile was appointed to attend as the representative of the Board of Education.

McKIM ESTATE $35,500.

Thought to be $100,000 When Fight Was Made for Its Control.

Joseph McKim, a former builder of Far Rockaway, who died in the Rivercrest Sanitarium last July at the age of 92, following a lively controversy in which Mrs. Wilhelmina Collins, a niece, sought to obtain his release from the sanitarium on the ground that he was mentally competent to administer his own affairs, and also the discharge of former Congressman William Willett, Jr., as a committee of his person and estate, left property valued at $1,769 personal and real estate valued at $53,000, on which there are incumbrances amounting to $19,500, leaving a balance of $33,500. This accounting was filed yesterday with Philip Frank, transfer tax appraiser of Queens.

During the controversy over McKim's mental condition it was alleged that his estate was worth about $100,000. He left no will, and his widow, Mrs. Fannie McKim, has been made executrix. She and his two daughters, Miss Annie and Frances McKim, will inherit the property.

>
> Trade waste must be removed by the owner at his expense.
>
> It is against the law to throw material in the streets.
>

The notice is by order of Commissioner Lederle, Commissioner Edwards, John J. Murphy, Tenement House Commissioner, and Fire Commissioner Johnson. At the end of the notice is a blank to be filled out, which states when the wagons will call.

EULOGIZES McGOWAN.

Board of Education Holds a Special Meeting in His Honor.

A special meeting in honor of the late Patrick F. McGowan was held by the Board of Education yesterday afternoon. An eloquent tribute to his character was presented by a special committee through its Chairman, Vice President Greene. This memorial will be sent to Mr. McGowan's family. Addresses in eulogy of Mr. McGowan were made by President Thomas W. Churchill, former President Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., Abraham Stern, Chairman of the Committee on Elementary Schools; Arthur S. Somers, Chairman of the Committee on High and Trade Schools; Frank D. Wilsey, Chairman of the Committee on Buildings; Rupert B. Thomas, Chairman of the Committee on Sites, and Commissioner Joseph Barondess.

The report of the special committee was adopted unanimously by a standing vote.

STRAUS GIFT OF $5,000.

Will Inclose Educational Alliance Roof for Winter Work.

Jesse Isidor Straus has informed the Educational Alliance, East Broadway and Jefferson Street, of a gift of $5,000 to be devoted to inclosing the roof of the Alliance building for Winter use. In making the gift Mr. Straus wrote:

"In the knowledge that our mother looked upon the opportunity given mothers and children to enjoy the fresh air upon the roof as of great value, my brothers, Percy S. and Herbert N., and I will be glad to give a sum not to exceed $5,000 for the purpose of inclosing the roof. In recording this gift, please do so as of July 12, our parents' wedding day."

Several thousand cans are still available at $2.10 for a crate of twenty-four cans. Orders may be placed through Mrs. Jane McKimmon, Raleigh, N. C.

BANKS NOT SECURED BY COMMERCIAL CO.

Chairman McGarrah Says His Committee Is Acting for Unsecured Creditors.

REPLIES TO RESERVE BANK

Latter Advised Unsecured Creditors to Hang Together Against Committee in Naming Trustee.

Unsecured creditors of the New York Commercial Company received yesterday from the creditors' committee, of which Gates W. McGarrah, President of the Mechanics and Metals Bank is Chairman, a reply to the circular sent out by the National Reserve Bank suggesting that the committee did not represent unsecured creditors especially, and that the unsecured creditors should act together apart from the committee in the election of a Trustee in bankruptcy to-morrow. The reply stated that the banks of which the members of the committee are officers were not secured creditors, as stated by the National Reserve Bank circular. The secured creditors, it was submitted, were the bankers who issued letters of credit against shipments of rubber, and it was this rubber which represented the $2,500,000 of assets of which the disposition had been called in question. Speaking of the National Reserve circular, the reply says:

"It appears that the object of that letter is to give the impression that this committee does not represent unsecured creditors, and that it is necessary for creditors of that class to co-operate with that bank. The committee would not send you this communication except for the fact that the circular letter above referred to may create an entirely false impression.

"This committee is not acting for secured creditors. No institution of which the members of the committee are officers holds any collateral security for the payment of the obligation of the New York Commercial Company. Some of the institutions hold collateral as security for the obligations of third parties, which obligations are guaranteed by the Commercial Company. These institutions, however, hold no collateral for this guarantee, and all of these institutions hold unsecured notes of the Commercial Company. Some of the banks had deposits which were applied on the indebtedness of the company.

"The Old Colony Trust Company, of which Mr. Donham is an officer, is not even a creditor, and he was asked to serve on the committee because of the very large amount of claims held in and about Boston. The members of the committee represent a large number of institutions holding unsecured claims. The large majority of the secured indebtedness is due to bankers who brought rubber into this country under letters of credit, and which gave them the title to the rubber, or the proceeds. In other words, except in three instances, as the committee is informed, the security has always been in the possession of the bank that issued the letter of credit.

"The three exceptions above referred to, where the New York Commercial Company deposited collateral for their obligations, are not institutions having representation upon the committee. The committee intends vigorously and actively to co-operate with the Trustee in ascertaining whether or not any creditors claiming to be secured creditors are entitled to retain their collateral, and to take all steps that may be advisable to obtain for the unsecured creditors the largest possible dividend. The committee has been diligently engaged in ascertaining the condition of affairs, and in co-operating with the Receiver in realizing upon the assets. They will be glad at all times to answer any questions that may be asked them by any creditor."

The members of the committee besides Mr. McGarrah are Walter E. Frew, President of the Corn Exchange Bank; Robert M. Galloway, President of the Merchants' National Bank; James G. Cannon, President of the Fourth National, and Wallace B. Donham, Vice President of the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Would Not Discard Feathers.

Excepting the ribbon makers, who would profit by the change, none of the business men interested in millinery viewed with favor yesterday the attempt of English societies and individuals opposed to cruelty to animals to show, as told in a cable from London to THE TIMES, that feathers could be discarded as millinery garnitures. In the opinion of one of the principal Fifth Avenue importing retailers, the anti-featherists have little chance of success, because of the superior style and wearing qualities of these trimmings. Wholesalers of feathers and flowers, however, while apparently inclined to take the movement lightly, are not pleased with the attention it has attracted.

⁂

Aid for Japanese Silk Trade.

Japanese silk manufacturers will benefit most from the adoption of the proposed ad valorem methods of levying duty on these goods, according to G. A. Post of the Post & Sheldon Corporation, because of their low labor costs. The other foreign silk makers will benefit from it, also, in his opinion, with these benefits limited only by the differences between manufacturing costs in the various countries and the United States.

⁂

Department Stores Help Business.

A report that exclusive specialty shops would move from the vicinity of the sites selected by Stern Brothers and Lord & Taylor for their new buildings, because of their supposed inability to compete with department stores, was denied yesterday. The shopkeepers said that their customers would not be drawn away, but that business generally would be benefited by the proximity of larger competitors.

⁂

Defer Free Omnibus Plans.

The plan of the Central Mercantile Association to provide free omnibus service for shoppers this Spring, between east side transit lines and the Sixth Avenue district, between Fourteenth and Twenty-third Streets, has been deferred until Fall. An improved plan is now under consideration, and a committee report is expected in about two or three weeks.

⁂

Furs May Cost More.

It is probable that the Paterson silk strike will cause consumers to pay more than usual for furs this Winter. Many local furriers have been forced to use imported silks for lining and trimming their Fall samples because of the scarcity of domestic goods, and they will have to use imported silks for stock goods unless the trouble is ended soon.

⁂

Brazilian Tariff Action Discussed.

The American Manufacturers' Export Association held its second monthly smoker at Keene's Chop House last night. An informal discussion was held on the recent withdrawal from tariff exemption by the Brazilian Government of paints and varnishes, watches and clocks, inks, typewriters, pianos, scales, cement, corsets, and school furniture.

NEUTRAL IN RATE CASES.

Attorney General Is Not Taking Sides in Minnesota Litigation.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Attorney General McReynolds to-day told L. A. Smith, Attorney General of Minnesota, that the Federal Department of Justice was not taking sides with any one in the State rate cases now before the Supreme Court.

Mr. Smith and Thomas D. O'Brien, counsel for the State of Minnesota in the rate cases, conferred with the Attorney General and Assistant Attorney General Denison to ascertain the purpose of the Federal Government in filing a brief in the cases on Monday. Mr. McReynolds said the Government had not intervened, but had filed a brief as a "friend of the court," setting forth the facts and law involved in a Texas case now before the Commerce Court. While the issues are similar, they are based upon a different set of facts, and the Attorney General said that the department's action was simply to give the Supreme Court all information in its possession relating to the questions involved. He assured the Minnesotans that it was not his purpose to take the part of either side in the State cases.

PACIFICS SEEK MORE TIME.

Supreme Court to be Asked To-day to Extend Dissolution Limit.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The Supreme Court will be petitioned by attorneys for the Union Pacific Railroad Company to-morrow to extend the time limit for dissolving the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger until July 1, or such time as is necessary to evolve a satisfactory plan of disintegration. Attorney General McReynolds will agree to an extension until July 1, but will oppose the request for an indefinite extension.

The Supreme Court, to grant the motion, must recall and amend its mandate now in the hands of the lower court, ordering the dissolution by May 10.

It has not developed whether the railroad will ask for a definite or indefinite extension. Stewart McNamara, representing Paul D. Cravath, of counsel for the Union Pacific, conferred to-day with the Attorney General.

MUST SELL CLEAN MILK.

Lederle Says Dealers Have Had Ample Time to Reform Methods.

Health Commissioner Ernst J. Lederle denied yesterday that it was his intention, by the law which has been proposed to go into effect on June 1, to drive dealers in loose milk out of business. He said:

"We have no objection to the sale of loose milk. What we do object to is the sale of such milk in the midst of dirty conditions. The dealers can sell all the loose milk they like if they keep their places clean. They do not sell the milk for profit, anyhow. They want to keep it on hand simply as an advertisement for the other supplies in their stores. For the sake of these other supplies, at least, they should have their stores clean. An order was sent out last October relative to the milk question, and they have had ample time since to put their places in a sanitary condition."

The rules, which provide that "dipped" milk shall not be sold where groceries are handled in bulk and make many conditions for interior fittings and equipment, grocers and delicatessen dealers said would bar thousands of dealers from the business.

Will Sue for $250,000,000.

CHICAGO, April 23.—The Wirtz family Associations of America, Germany, and France, representing about 1,000 claimants for interests in the estate of Paul Wirtz, who was a Field Marshal of Holland, will consolidate and begin legal proceedings in the courts of Amsterdam, according to an announcement made by Estelle Ryan Snyder, President of the American organization, after her return from Washington, where she unsuccessfully sought to interest the State Department. The estate, it is said, amounts to about $250,000,000. It has been an object of litigation for more than 100 years.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Interest was shown yesterday in the report received in local wholesale stationery circles from Denver that the Powers National Ink Company and the J. H. Johns Photo-Chemical Company, both of that city, would be consolidated and incorporated soon under the name of the Powers National Ink Company. The new firm will be the largest of its kind in that part of the country.

Exports of domestics and cotton duck from this port last week amounted to 2,195 packages, valued at $160,686. The volume of these shipments since the beginning of the year shows a big drop when compared with that of 1912. In value, however, the current year's exports lead by a good margin.

The ninth annual convention and exhibit of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear manufacturers will be held in Philadelphia May 5 to 9.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Some of the hesitancy shown by buyers of cotton goods is attributed to the statements made in certain quarters of the market that the new cotton year will witness a sharp decline in the cost of the raw stock. In some cases it is predicted that cotton will touch the five-cent mark.

Wholesalers of underwear do not look forward to any great competition from foreign manufacturers of heavyweight goods under the proposed tariff schedule. The lighter grades of this merchandise are expected to suffer from it, however.

An improved call is reported in the ribbon trade for wide goods of the kind used as sashes and girdles. Fancy effects, principally Bulgarians, are most wanted at this time.

The large number of scientific and imitation gems in the market now makes the buying of precious stones a more difficult task than ever. Imitation rubies and sapphires are said to be especially hard to detect.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

The lack of freight routes from Sydney, Nova Scotia, to the United States results in the loss of trade to American manufacturers and exporters. There is no way of getting merchandise in other than cargo lots to Cape Breton Island from the United States except over the Government-owned Intercolonial Railway.

Automobiles sold abroad by Italian firms last year numbered 8,567, having an average value of nearly $2,000. Exports in 1911 and 1910 numbered 2,918 and 2,120, respectively.

Cuttlefish, dried, shipped from Japan last year weighed [illegible] pounds, worth $1,500,000, an increase of [illegible] pounds and $500,000 over 1912.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

UNION GAS AND ELECTRIC FIXTURE COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Union Gas and Electric Fixture Company, manufacturer of gas and electric fixtures, at 142 West Eighteenth Street, by these creditors: Acme Gas and Electric Fixture Company, $1,424; Progress Brass Fitting Company, $149, and Universal Metal Spinning Company, $264. It is alleged that the company is insolvent, and has made preferential payments of $500, and transferred merchandise and accounts to the value of $1,500. The company was incorporated in August, 1901, with capital stock of $6,000, and Jacob N. Ehrlich as President and Treasurer. The company's plant was destroyed by fire in January, 1910, and again in January, 1911, and it is said that the insurance was adjusted at $40,000 and $50,000, respectively. A financial statement of the company in February, 1912, showed assets $77,655 and liabilities $19,450. Judge Hazel appointed Walter C. Low receiver; bond, $1,000.

Yawger receiver; bond, $2,000. The Sheriff has levied on the stock, which is valued at $3,000. The outstanding accounts are estimated at $500.

GEORGE P. SHARKEY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against George P. Sharkey, residing at 351 Second Avenue, by these creditors: Mary O'Beirne, $669; Edward C. Weissman, $467, and Patrick Keenan, $46. It is alleged that he is insolvent, and on Dec. 26 transferred by bill of sale some horses and vehicles in the stable at 239 East Twentieth Street to Margaret Nixon to prefer her.

THE B. & R. CIGAR MANUFACTURING COMPANY, (Inc.,) of 177 East Eighty-seventh Street, has made an assignment to Adolph Guttman. The company was incorporated on Dec. 12, 1912, with a capital stock of $1,000, and Isaac Rabinowitz as President.

AUTO LAW TO STAND WITH TWO CHANGES

Amendments as to Registration and Revocation of Licenses Are Likely to Pass.

NO INCREASE IN THE TAX

Some Way to Control Taxicab Bandits in This City Demanded at Committee Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 23.—Senator Loren H. White, Chairman of the Internal Affairs Committee of the Senate, at a public hearing to-day said that he and the other members of the committee were opposed to all the bills affecting the operation of automobiles which have been introduced thus far in the Legislature. This means that there well be no increase in the automobile tax, and no appointment of special Inspectors to see that the motor law is enforced.

"Motorists and chauffeurs in New York City may cut off a few heads once in a while," said Senator White, adding that he was an undertaker. His own measure providing for a commission to confer with representatives of neighboring States with a view to drafting uniform automobile legislation he naturally favored. Senator White complained that he could not get the members of the committee to attend the Automobile bill hearing.

Chairman White also said that the reason many of his party leaders favored the enactment of the McClelland-McGrath bill was because it provided for what he called a "State Constabulary," otherwise Inspectors, to detect violations of the law.

"It is obvious," he said, "that this provision will be a helpful agency in building up a political machine."

The measure, which is favored by Secretary of State May, was not produced at the hearing, as it had not been received from the printer, and those who attended said that they preferred to be heard on the amendments in their final form. The hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday afternoon. There are two amendments to the existing law that have the support of Gov. Sulzer, which are likely to pass. One requires the registration of all operators of automobiles, and the other gives the Secretary of State power to revoke licenses for cause.

Mr. May made a strong appeal for these two amendments, which, he says, are necessary to protect the public from irresponsible and criminal drivers. The Secretary of State said he did not care to have the automobile bureau in his department, but that while it was there he would do all he could to obtain legislation looking to the safety of the public.

Assemblyman Ulrich spoke in favor of restrictions that would give the State control over the taxicab bandits who are operating in New York City. Under the present law a license of a chauffeur may be taken from him and he may at once register his car as an owner and the privilege of registering cannot be taken from him.

Mr. Terry said that the Secretary of State's amendment did not specify the causes for which licenses could be revoked. Mr. May said that this was impracticable, and contended that no interests would be injured, as the license could not be taken away without a hearing. Provision was made, he said, for a court review.

As final adjournment of the Legislature is only ten days away, any serious opposition to the bill of the Secretary of State in its final form may defeat automobile legislation at this session.

SULZER BILLS HANG FIRE.

Cold Comfort for Governor in Conference of Senators.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 23.—Anticipating the hurly-burly of the closing days of the session of the Legislature, the Republican minority of both Houses held a caucus to-night to determine the attitude the Republicans should take on the Governor's Direct Nomination bill. Only five of the fifty-nine members of the Senate and Assembly minority dissented from the action of the joint caucus, which decided to oppose the Sulzer plan of abolishing State Conventions. The five dissenters, however, did not intimate that they were going to stand with Gov. Sulzer.

Senator Elon R. Brown of Watertown and Assemblyman Harold J. Hinman, the two minority leaders of the Legislature, received full power from the caucus to draft an address to the people of the State setting forth the attitude of the Republican Party on primary and election matters generally.

The important measures that will be considered by the Legislature in the closing week, which begins on Monday, were discussed at a conference of the Democratic Senators to-night. These are the Direct Primary bill, the Workmen's Compensation bills, the reorganization of the State Health Department, and the Appropriation bills. The Governor is vitally interested in the fate of all these measures. He will not get much comfort out of what happened at the conference of the Senators of his own party this evening.

Owing to differences that have arisen on the question of a workable workmen's compensation system between the advocates of the Murtaugh-Jackson bill, which is favored by the labor organizations and has the support of Gov. Sulzer, and those favoring the Foley bill, which comes before the Legislature with the official backing of the State Insurance Department and the support of nearly all the large employers in the State, final action on that important measure has been deferred until next week. In the meantime a sub-committee composed of Senators Griffin of the Bronx, Foley of New York, Blauvelt of Rockland, and Wheeler of Delaware, will try to bring the advocates of the two measures together and arrange a compromise.

Senator Wagner said after the conference that the outlook for a workmen's compensation law at this session while not promising was not altogether hopeless.

The Democratic Senate conference did not take any action on Gov. Sulzer's Direct Nomination bill, which will have a public hearing on Saturday, nor on the Stock Exchange Incorporation bill. The Incorporation bill was discussed at a secret meeting of the Senate Judiciary Committee to-night. Almost unanimous opposition developed, and Leader Wagner, who is about the only supporter of the bill on the committee, did not dare to move it. The bill will come up again before the committee next week.

An indication of the view taken by the Assembly leaders with regard to the Governor's Direct Nomination bill was given to-day when Mr. Levy, leader of the Assembly, at the request of Assemblyman Schaap, leader of the Progressives in the lower house, introduced a bill providing for a Progressive Party enrollment to give the followers of the Bull Moose cause an opportunity to vote at the primaries next Fall.

Provisions for such enrollment is made both in the Governor's Direct Nomination bill and in the Blauvelt Primary bill, which has passed both houses. The Assembly leaders assented to Mr. Schaap's request in the belief that the Sulzer bill is doomed to defeat and that the Blauvelt bill will be vetoed by the Governor.

As predicted, the Senate at a secret meeting late this afternoon decided not to report any of the important nominations made by Gov. Sulzer until next week, when the Governor will be compelled to submit all the appointments he has in view before the session closes.

Favor Weeks and Philbin.

ALBANY, April 23.—The Senate Finance Committee to-day voted to report to the Senate to-morrow Gov. Sulzer's nominations of Bartow S. Weeks and Eugene M. Philbin of New York as Supreme Court Justices. No action was taken on the other nominations before the committee.

BRYAN RELATIVE SHUTS MILL

Father-in-Law of Secretary's Son Fears Effect of Tariff.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 23.—Uncertainty of the milling interests regarding the effect of the new tariff of the Democratic Administration has caused the Berger Crittenden Milling Company, headed by Alexander Berger, whose daughter married William Jennings Bryan, Jr., to retire from business.

Harry Berger, Treasurer of the company, said to-day that this uncertainty had caused the firm to halt plans for the construction of a mill to replace one destroyed by fire.

He predicted that the milling industry would be seriously affected by the contemplated abolition of the tariff on flour and the retention of the tariff on wheat, which would bar United States millers from making flour out of imported wheat with which to compete with the flour sent in free of duty.

"While the placing of flour on the free list will be a detriment to millers, millions will be benefitted by the reduction in the cost of food," said Mr. Berger. "Although the reduction may be small, it must be remembered that dollars are made from the pennies and that there are thousands in this country who will appreciate the reduction in the cost of food."

STILWELL BREAKS SILENCE.

Takes Floor in Senate to Favor a Stock Exchange Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 23.—Senator Stilwell made his first fight for a bill to-day since he asked to be excused from the Senate's sessions pending the result of an investigation by the Senate of the charge of attempted extortion made against him by George H. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company. Although the Senate, by a vote of 28 to 21, found him not guilty of official misconduct more than a week ago, he had sat in his seat in silence until to-day.

Senator Stilwell asked the Senate to-day to advance out of its order the Governor's bill which would prevent the New York Stock Exchange from making rules prohibiting business relations between its members and members of the Consolidated Exchange.

The measure was on the general calendar, which will not be reached again this session, and bills in that order can only be advanced by unanimous consent. Several Senators objected when Senator Stilwell made his request, but Senator Pollock of New York induced the hostile Senators to withdraw their objections. The bill may be called up on its passage to-morrow.

NEW KIND OF SEGREGATION.

Miss Davis Might Favor a Fenced-In District, with Visitors Registered.

ALBANY, April 23.—"I would be willing to have a segregated district in New York if there was a fence around it and a gate through which every man would have to pass and register."

This was the answer of Miss Katherine Bement Davis, Superintendent of the Bedford State Reformatory for Women, to a question of Gov. Sulzer to-day as to whether she favored segregation of vice.

Miss Davis was appealing to the Governor and the Chairmen of the Senate and Assembly Committees on Finance for funds to enlarge the Bedford Institution, which is overcrowded.

William McAdoo, Chief of the New York City Magistrates' Court, said there were twenty women in prison cells in New York City who would have to be sent to Blackwell's Island, "the worst institution in the United States," unless the Bedford Reformatory was enlarged. He characterized the physical and moral progress of the women sent to Bedford as "miraculous."

Managers and Superintendents of other State institutions were present at the conference to-day to explain their financial needs.

In determining the qualifications and fitness for these positions the following factors will be taken into consideration: Business ability, tact, and fitness; education with particular reference to that received in agricultural and technical schools; experience in the responsible management of irrigation work; experience in either engineering or supervising clerical duties in connection with irrigation work, and ability to prepare suitable reports.

CHEMICAL PRODUCTS.—An American Consular officer in a Mediterranean country reports that a resident of his district desires to represent American manufacturers of all classes of chemical products. References can be furnished, and correspondence should be in French, German, Italian, or English. Prices free on board New York are requested.

10,813. RAILWAY SUPPLIES OF ALL KINDS.—An American Consular officer in the Levant reports that a merchant in that region is desirous of getting in touch with American manufacturers of all kinds of articles used by railways, as follows: Locomotives, cars, and accessories, lathes, shaping machines, boring machines, shears, screw stocks, punches, spiral borers, wrenches, files, hammers, axes, saws, tongs, shovels, spades, pickaxes, steel for stone boring purposes, implement steel, screws and nuts, rivets, wire nails, telegraph and barbed wire, wire ropes and cables, telegraphic insulators, tackles and pulleys (for locomotives,) pumps, gas pipes and fittings, armatures of cast iron and brass, upright cylinder stoves and hearths, iron bars, iron and iron sheeting, iron push cars, iron and brass fittings for construction work, tin-plated metal pails, emery stones and grinders, tape measures and measuring rods (metric and inch system,) fire extinguishers, galvanic cells, tents and canvas, tent lanterns, asbestos, belting, hose, roping and string, torches, machine and lubricating oils, jackscrews, preservatives for ties and other wood, and any other materials that would be used by railways. Correspondence may be in English.

10,814. HARDWARE AND CONSTRUCTION MATERIALS.—A resident of a Canadian city has informed an American Consular officer that he would like to be put in touch with dealers in and manufacturers of hardware and construction materials, such as the following: Ice boxes, interior and exterior hard finish, hardwood flooring, terra cotta, glazed facing brick, flexible ceiling, doors, shutters, metal-covered doors and trim, automatic fireproof windows, metal lath, ornamental iron, iron stairways, sidewalk lights, corned bead, sound deafeners, interlocking rubber tiles, &c. As the price of teak, the only wood capable of resisting deterioration from vermin and rot, is rapidly rising, there seems to be a favorable opportunity of introducing the steel building material above referred to. Correspondence may be in English.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Wheat developed pronounced strength and closed at the top, showing net advances of ⅞ to 1⅛c. Corn prices closed barely steady at partial ⅜c net decline. Oats prices rallied from the early decline and closed ⅛ to ⅜c net higher. Cotton again reached new low ground on this movement and closed within a point or two of the lowest. Final prices showed a net loss of 3 to 14 points.

WHEAT.

The character of buying in the wheat market yesterday was unusually good, and, notwithstanding the fact that good rains relieved the drought situation in Kansas and Oklahoma, the market developed pronounced strength, and closed at the top, or ⅞ to 1⅛c over the previous night. Traders who have watched the market closely for the last few days were somewhat puzzled over the demand and were inclined to think that it reflected some news, either domestic or foreign, that the general market was not yet in possession of. Yesterday's upturn was led by Northwest markets, which showed the effects of a good cash demand, partly for export account, and light receipts. The cables also contributed to the day's bullishness, particularly Liverpool's advance of ¼ to ½d, and the opening advance of ⅜ to ⅞c in Buenos Aires, coupled with prospects for lighter Argentine shipments this week. Paris markets were irregular, but April there came 1⅜c higher. It was evident early in the day that export business was again being worked, but the details were withheld, although 40 loads were mentioned by some in the afternoon as near the figure, in addition to about 75 loads worked Tuesday. Crop reports by Snow and the Price Current were bearish, but a late private wire said wheat was being bought in the Southwest on some unfavorable crop reports, assumed to refer to insect trouble. Advices regarding the Soo said that about thirty boats were working down with the help of the ice-breaker, and were expected to reach Buffalo Thursday or Friday. A cold wave following present rains in the Southwest was expected to bring temperatures near the freezing point by night. Crop advices from the Northwest continued very favorable, and said that prospects for a bumper crop this year were highly satisfactory. The cash market here was firm, on the basis of $1.14½ nominal for No. 2 red, elevator, and $1.16, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.02½, free on board, afloat, opening navigation.

CORN.

Some heavy selling of July corn by elevator people in connection with generally favorable weather over the belt, and offerings from commission houses, prevented corn from sharing the wheat strength yesterday, and the market closed no more than steady at a partial ⅜c net decline. At its lowest point the market was ⅝c to ⅞c under the previous night. The offerings were absorbed by room traders, who bought on the continued light receipts and fair cash demand, although it was said that country offerings had increased somewhat. The Liverpool market came ⅛d net lower. Export corn in New York was quoted at 63¼c, free on board, afloat.

OATS.

At first oats were a trifle easier on the rains, which will help the crop already planted, but as the storm was likely to become general it would check farm work elsewhere, and this started buying in the afternoon on which the market rallied, closing ⅛ to ⅜c net higher. Export common continued, involving sales of 40,000 bushels white clipped, making 140,000 bushels in two days. Standard white in New York was quoted at 41c nominal; No. 3, 40 to 40½c; No. 4, 39 to 39½c; natural white, 38 to 41c; white clipped, 39 to 45c, all track.

PROVISIONS.

Further big hog receipts, aggregating 95,000 at the West in connection with lower hogs, had a depressing effect on provisions all day and inspired considerable liquidation, partly through commission houses. The arrivals at Chicago were 32,000 hogs, Kansas City had 12,000, and Omaha 9,000. Chicago expected 23,000 hogs on Thursday.

COTTON.

The cotton market made new low ground again yesterday under continued heavy selling, which was doubtless for both accounts. May contracts sold at 11.36, reaching a level of 9 points under July and about 15 points under the closing figures of Tuesday. This is the lowest price at which May has sold since last Autumn. About the middle of last October May contracts changed hands at a low price of 10.57, and last December they sold at 13 cents. There was heavy covering on yesterday's break, and the market closed steady, but within a point or two of the lowest, with last prices showing a net loss of 3 to 14 point. It was rumored at times during the day that some of the interests credited with owning part of the local stock were buyers of May against sales of later months, and there were reports of relatively steady Southern spot markets, but the talk around the local ring reflected apprehensions of old crop liquidation and bearishly disposed traders were again predicting that May would sell at a carrying charge under July before an adequate outlet could be provided for the local stock.

The market opened steady at a decline of 2 to 7 points under overnight selling orders and fresh pressure inspired by reports of beneficial rains in the Southwest and easy late cables. Houses with foreign connections and old shorts were big buyers at the decline, and after the publication of the official forecast suggesting that a cold wave would follow the rains prices rallied to a shade over Wednesday's closing figures. Demand became less active after the close of Liverpool, however, while offerings increased during the afternoon and the market reached the lowest point of the day in the late trading.

Reports that exporters were offering 12⅜c for average middling cotton in New Orleans were received during the afternoon. Southern spot markets were unchanged to ¼ lower, generally 1-16 to ⅛c lower. Private cables reported that the Continent had been a free buyer in Liverpool early, and also expressed an optimistic view of the Manchester labor disputes, which have not yet been settled.

The local market for spot cotton was quiet and 5 points lower at 12.00 for middling upland; sales none.

COTTONSEED OIL.

There was more activity in the oil market yesterday, attended by early weakness under liquidation for both Western and local account, due to the lower lard market. Efforts by July shorts to cover rallied the afternoon market, however, and, with support from refiners also a feature, the undertone became quite steady, with last prices near the best point of the day, although still 1 to 5 points under the previous night.

Feature of Ely Pittsburgh Plan.

Daniel B. Ely, who has worked out a plan for the reorganization of the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal and Wheeling & Lake Erie independently of the bondholders' protective committees, has decided to include in the plan an offering of $21,000,000 of three-year 6 per cent. collateral notes secured by the deposit of $30,000,000 new first and refunding fifty-year bonds. This issue will reduce the total secured debt to about $40,000,000 against property said to be worth twice that amount. The Ely plan will be made public next week.

San Francisco Bonds Awarded.

San Francisco has awarded an issue of $5,104,000 of 5 per cent. bonds to a syndicate composed of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, N. W. Halsey & Co., and E. H. Rollins & Co., who bid par and interest. This same syndicate bid 101.02 for the bonds when they were first offered on March 3, but no award was made at that time, the city authorities believing that they could get a better price by re-advertising. At the second sale only a few bids were received, and these were on a lower basis than before.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stock Trading Drifts into Extreme Idleness—Bonds Improve Further.

In two days of trading the general level of prices has shown a net change of less than an eighth. Trading on the Stock Exchange ceased entirely at times yesterday and the total for the day represented no more than a good half hour's business in times of active speculation. Under the circumstances the fact that the small net change in the general level of prices the past two days has been on the side of decline hardly carries any special significance. More perhaps might be attached to the dullness itself, which became so great as to suggest to many traders the probability that for a time at least the Stock Exchange had seen the maximum of idleness. One thing which contributed to yesterday's increased dullness was the fact that the award in the firemen's wage arbitration was expected to be filed late in the afternnon, but that after all was nothing more than one phase of a situation in which a number of factors had been making for restricted stock trading.

In some directions further improvement was noted yesterday in the bond market this being true among others of New York City issues. Readjustment which involved declines from previous quotations was still under way in some other sections of the bond list, but the events of the day as a whole bore out the signs previously afforded that selling pressure had been lightened. Reports circulated that a sale of New York City bonds, which has been much talked of recently, might be postponed for some months and it was said of some other expected issues also that they would not be placed on the market for some time to come. The effect of this upon prices went hand in hand with that of the quiet absorption which has been going on by those investors, including institutions, investors and individuals, who have regarded the recent declines in bond quotations as offering opportunities which they should not neglect for the sake of obtaining a further advantage in price which might or might not be afforded. Undoubtedly one of the influences which has been putting a check on the stock market has been doubt over the maintenance of undiminished activity in trade in the face of tariff revision and other broad influences of the present time. If it be assumed that events justify the present doubt on this score it would seem to follow that the demand for bonds would grow as the money released from trade sought employment in the securities market as it is wont to do. Even now there is a good deal of investing which is attributed to the placing temporarily of funds which merchants are possessed of but which they are not for the time being inclined to use in an extension of their commercial commitments. Funds of this kind are seeking employment, however, not in the bond market but in the purchase of short term securities, which in effect are time loans. The money thus being employed represents no doubt in many cases funds which merchants themselves have borrowed, and the release of money from trade will have to go much further than is suggested by such operations as these to create a surplus from this source for investment in bonds. The point that it is meant to emphasize is that if the stock market be right about the view which it takes of the general business outlook the bond market should be in a position to profit by the very conditions which are holding the stock market in check.

The Governing Committee of the Stock Exchange disposed yesterday of the controversy which had arisen between a member of the Exchange and one of the banking houses which acted as bankers in the organization of the Rumely Company. The Law Committee to which the complaint that the status of this company had been misrepresented was referred found that the banking house in the representations which it made had relied on official reports of the company and upon additional reports of chartered accountants. The Governing Committee disposed of the case on these findings. The Stock Exchange's investigation of this matter will be accepted as confirming the contention that the representations complained of were made in good faith. The incident received more attention than it otherwise would by reason of the fact that the stock directly concerned in this controversy was one of a number of recently floated stock issues which in the markets of recent months had suffered very severe contraction in price. A too large measure of hopefulness, including too great reliance on continued expansion in the business of the concerns organized into these new companies, no doubt entered largely into the fact that they attained prices in the market which seem very high by comparison with the figures to which they have lately declined. The experience which has been encountered in respect to this group of stocks will not be without its lesson of practical advantage if it convinces all concerned of the need of a large measure of conservatism in the capitalization and financing of industrial organizations of the kind.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Dullest Day of the Year.

The turnover of stocks on the Stock Exchange yesterday was the smallest for a full session since the day after Christmas last year, when 99,085 shares changed hands. The total was 150,986 shares. There was a complete lack of influences, apparently, to shape the course of prices sufficiently to bring any besides the most alert pursuers of fractional profits into the market, and when prices eased off in the last hour they seemed to do so from their own weight. In addition to the evidence of poor business displayed by the number of sales, the dullness of the day was shown by the fact that fewer issues were traded in than in many weeks. On the Consolidated Exchange trading was, relatively, considerably more active than on the larger board. These nine stocks, which did not open at all on the New York Stock Exchange, were dealt in on the Consolidated: American Car and Foundry, American Cotton Oil, American Sugar, Central Leather, Chicago Great Western common and preferred, Distillers' Securities, Illinois Central and National Lead.

⁂

A Proof of Stagnation.

The stagnation of the stock market yesterday was illustrated clearly in the average price change from Tuesday's close as represented by fifty representative railroad and industrial shares. Twenty-five railroad stocks stood unchanged at the end of the session from the average figure of the day before. A decline of 2⅛ points was the net result of operations in twenty-five industrial stocks on the day, or, fractionally expressed, the average quotations receded .09 of 1 per cent. The average price of the aggregate of fifty shares declined .04 and the shrinkage on both Tuesday and Wednesday together amounted to .07 of 1 per cent.

⁂

New Haven Slumps Further.

Yesterday's developments in the New Haven situation carried the company's shares to another new low level at 109½, from which they rallied to 110⅝ at the close. If there are any troubles which a railroad might be afflicted with that are not camping outside Mr. Mellen's door just now it is hard to imagine their nature. The next quarterly dividend is due on June 30, and will probably be declared about three weeks in advance of that date. It is taken for granted in financial circles that the company must recognize the change in its earning power by a redution in the rate to take effect on that day.

⁂

Poor Arbitrage Business.

Two of the Stock Exchange houses which ordinarily do a considerable amount of London business executed orders for 100 shares each in yesterday's session. A third house which makes a specialty of arbitrage trading did not have an order. One large firm which keeps a man at the rail has not executed an order for London in four days. The total shares done for foreign account yesterday were estimated by arbitrage men at close to 1,000. Yesterday was the tenth anniversary of the opening of the present Stock Exchange Building, but under the circumstances there was no celebration to commemorate the event.

⁂

May Returns to Investors.

Interest and dividend disbursements scheduled for May aggregate $106,347,504, an increase of $9,327,680 over the corresponding month of last year, according to figures prepared by the Journal of Commerce. Dividends will contribute to this total $41,147,504 and interest payments $65,200,000, as compared with $36,919,824 and $60,100,000, respectively, in May, 1912. Industrial corporations and street railways will supply $27,850,131 to the amount of dividends, against $24,169,457 last year, while the railroads' share will be $13,297,373 in comparison with $12,750,367 in May, 1912.

⁂

Car Surplus Stationary.

The increase in the number of idle freight cars, which has been in progress for several weeks, was checked in the fortnight ended April 15. The statement of the American Railway Association for that period shows a net surplus of 57,498, or 490 cars less than were reported two weeks earlier. There were no pronounced changes in the demand for equipment in any section of the country. By comparison with last year's the April figures look favorable. In the corresponding fortnight of 1912 there was an increase in the number of idle cars of 60,000, making the total 79,389.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2¾@3 per cent., with the last loan at 2¾ per cent. Most of the day's business was done at 2¾ per cent.

Time money rates were 4@4¼ per cent. for sixty days to six months and 5 per cent. for eleven and twelve months.

Comercial paper was quoted at 5½@6 per cent. for the best names.

Clearing House exchanges, $296,536,600; balances, $23,741,719; Sub-Treasury credit balances, $91,362.

The local banks have lost $2,148,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations since Friday.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 3½@3 9-16 per cent. for short bills, 3⅝ per cent. for three months; Paris, 4 per cent., and Berlin, 4⅝ per cent. Money was 2½ per cent. in London and 3½@4 per cent. in Berlin.

The Paris check rate on London was 25f. 21c., and the Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 47 pfennigs.

Foreign exchange rates at the points noted were quoted as follows at the close of business yesterday:

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Fall of Scutari Has Little Effect in London, but Sends Prices Down in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 24.—The Times in its City article to-day will say:

"The supply of money was rather more restricted, further preparations for making up the monthly bank balance sheets being carried out, but terms for short loans were hardly altered. Advances to the Stock Exchange in connection with the settlement were arranged at 4 to 4¼ per cent. Discount rates rose slightly, bills becoming rather less scarce as the day progressed. The Bank received a considerable amount of bar gold.

"The fact that the settlement was in progress and many Jewish members absent tended to restrict business in the stock markets, but the tone was not unsatisfactory on the whole, although for a time prices showed a disposition to weaken, presumably on the news of the fall of Scutari. A further advance in home railway stocks was one of the features. The American market reflected the easier tone ruling the previous day in Wall Street. Foreign bonds remained dull. Foreign railway stocks were in some request, notably Sao Paulo."

PARIS, April 23.—Prices were steady on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes 86 francs 47½ centimes for account.

BERLIN, April 23.—Fears that the capture of Scutari will cause political complications weakened the Boerse today. Prices generally closed from one to two points lower.

HARLEM MINORITY PROTEST

Loophole in McCue Bill Lets Central Have Its Way.

An assertion by J. O. Hammitt, Secretary of the Citizens' Union, that the bill introduced at Albany to permit the New York Central to acquire the minority shares of the New York & Harlem had been amended in a way that was satisfactory to the Harlem shareholders, was vehemently denied by the Protective Committee representing them, yesterday.

The McCue bill, which has passed the Assembly and is now before the Senate, would permit the conveyance of the Harlem property to the New York Central by a two-thirds vote of the stockholders of both companies, and it is alleged that the Central controls the 66 2-3 per cent. of the Harlem stock necessary to take advantage of the new law. It provides that the Public Service Commission may fix proper conditions for the protection of the minority holders.

Judge William N. Cohen, counsel for the minority, insisted upon the passage of an amendment putting it within the power of a minority holder to demand an appraisal of the property, with payment for his shares based upon the findings of the appraisers. Senator Blauvelt, who is in charge of the bill, has prepared an amendment designed to cover this feature, but failing to make it mandatory upon the Commission to fix proper conditions, if called upon to do so. According to the Protective Committee, the McCue bill as amended appears to safeguard the minority shareholders, but leaves a loophole by stating that the Commission "may" impose proper conditions instead of insisting that it shall do so.

Appreciation for President Mabon.

The Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange adopted a resolution at a meeting yesterday expressing appreciation of the work of James B. Mabon, who retires as President of the Exchange in May. "In Mr. Mabon's successful efforts in behalf of his fellow-members," the resolution read, in part, "in his sacrifice of personal interests, he has established a record for unselfishness, courtesy, intelligence, and foresight which justly calls for the praise, admiration, and congratulation of his associates."

CLEAR SALOMON & CO.

Exchange Committee Finds Firm Acted in Good Faith in Rumely.

Charges recently filed with the New York Stock Exchange by J. F. A. Clark of the brokerage firm of Clark, Childs & Co. in connection with the sale to them by William P. Salomon & Co. of a block of M. Rumely Company stock were considered yesterday by the Governing Committee and dismissed without further action. The nature of the complaint was not made public, but was supposed in Wall Street to be to the effect that the brokers considered that they had been misled as to the company's earning power when they bought the shares. Salomon & Co. were the underwriters of the Rumely stock.

When the shares were listed on the Stock Exchange last year the first sale was made at 101. A protracted decline occurred in February and March, which carried the quotation down to 27. It was said that Clark, Childs & Co. paid around 95 for their shares.

The Board of Governors issued the following statement at the close of yesterday's meeting:

"In the matter of controversy between J. F. A. Clark and William Salomon & Co., as set forth in the letter of Mr. Clark to the Governing Committee under date of April 7, 1913, which letter, together with documents thereto annexed, was referred to the Law Committee for consideration and report,

"Your committee finds, after a careful examination of the testimony given by all the parties in interest at several hearings, that in making the sale of 250 shares of M. Rumely Company common stock to Mr. Clark in October, 1912, the firm of William Salomon & Co. acted in good faith, and that their representations regarding the financial status and earnings of the Rumely Company at that time were based upon official reports of the company and upon additional reports of chartered accountants whom the firm employed to make an independent examination, upon which reports William Salomon & Co. relied.

"Your committee therefore recommends that no further action be taken by the Governing Committee in this matter."

DETINNING DIVIDENDS.

All Back Payments on Preferred to be Made Out of Judgment.

The Vulcan Detinning Company has informed holders of preferred stock that the 21 per cent. of dividends in arrears will be paid in full immediately upon the collection of a judgment won against the American Can Company several years ago. The judgment, as declared in favor of the Detinning Company, after a long contest in the lower courts, amounted to approximately $670,000, and payments were ordered to be made with the addition of 6 per cent per annum interest during the period before the money should be handed over. The decision contained the provision, however, that there should be taken from the amount sufficient funds to cover depreciation to the Can Company's plants while patents were in use over which the suit arose. The Court of Appeals is expected to decide within a short time the exact amount the Detinning Company will receive.

The announcement to shareholders of the forthcoming melon was made in a letter which accompanied dividend checks for the current quarter, mailed this week. It was not known in financial circles that the Directors had met for the purpose, and the method of informing stockholders of the good thing in store for them was considered unusual. The announcement was attached to the conventional letter accompanying the check, describing the period covered by the payment, and read as follows:

> In regard to the inquiries we have received, your company wishes to state that it intends to pay the back dividends on the preferred stock, amounting to 21 per cent., as soon as the judgment against the American Can Company is collected.

The company has outstanding $1,500,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, upon which the full rate has been paid only since January, 1910. In 1902 3½ per cent. was paid, in 1903 6½ per cent., and in the next year none. Five per cent. was paid in 1905, 7½ per cent. in 1906, 5 per cent. in 1907 and 1909, and 1¼ per cent. in 1908.

A committee headed by John Muir is soliciting proxies for the annual meeting on May 1 to protest against the present management's attitude on issuing reports of operations.

STEEL BOOKINGS HEAVY.

Makers Not at All Worried by Lighter Orders Now.

Discussing current developments in the iron and steel trade, The Iron Age says in its issue of to-day:

> So much business is on their books, and specifications, though not in such volume as in the first quarter, are still so heavy, that steel manufacturers are entirely complacent under the much smaller bookings of new contracts. Buyers are no longer spurred by the probability of higher prices later, and the industry promises to work gradually into a closer connnection between mills and consumers.
>
> There is little difference in the amount of strain under which leading mills are working, yet in steel as well as in pig iron earnest consideration is being given to the question to what the present quiet conditions will lead. It is recognized that the pig iron market cannot remain stagnant long, in the increase of uncertainty about general business, without affecting finished lines, even though the two departments of the market have for a good while been out of step.
>
> While pig iron buyers have waited, prices have worked lower, and the descent in the last two weeks has been rapid, so much so as to furnish buyers fresh reasons for holding off. They are not moved, moreover, by the possibilities of a rebound due to scores of consumers rushing in at once when an attractive level has been reached.
>
> That there is some need of buying for early delivery and that deliveries on contracts have been so large as to reduce stocks in some districts are grounds for the belief expressed by sellers that a buying movement is not far ahead. It is urged also that cost has been closely appproached in some recent offers.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Transactions were registered on the Consolidated Stock Exchange in nine different stocks for which there was no market elsewhere in Wall Street during the day. The transactions were in odd lot amounts, in which there was a good market throughout the session, with commission houses handling a fairly large volume of orders. So far as the standard stocks were concerned there was hesitation about the trading most of the day. Prices reflected firmness at first, but showed a sagging tendency in the afternoon.

SHERMAN LAW CITED FOR CLEARING HOUSE

Hartford Bankers Ask Attorney General to Investigate Rule for Out-of-Town Collections.

FIND SUPPORTERS HERE

One Calls New Rule Intolerable to City and Country and "Monstrously Unreasonable."

Seven Hartford banks, through their Presidents, have suggested to Attorney General McReynolds that the New York Clearing House arrangement governing the free-collection zone for out-of-town checks, with its lack of attention to the requirements of the out-of-town banks, be investigated with reference to the Sherman act. The Clearing House recently extended the free zone to include the States of New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, which was quite satisfactory to most of the country bankers, except that many of them insisted that before they would agree to this the Clearing House must establish a country-check department, which should forward to each country bank all the checks held against it by all the New York banks belonging to the Clearing House Association, so that they could make one daily remittance to the Clearing House in payment of the aggregate amount instead of being compelled to mail a separate check each day to each New York bank holding a check drawn against them. This the Clearing House refused to do. The result was that only about a fourth of the banks in the five States came into the free-collection system.

The action of the Hartford bankers was made known to members of the Clearing House yesterday through James C. Hallock of Brooklyn, who was a pioneer in the movement for the country clearing-house system and has been active recently in opposition to the new rules. Mr. Hallock showed the letter to the Attorney General, signed by the seven Hartford bankers, and in letters received from him yesterday he gave the text of it as follows:

> Hon. James C. McReynolds, Attorney General of the United States, Washington, D. C.
>
> Sir:—In the judgment of the undersigned, the rules and regulations of the New York Clearing House Association regarding collections outside of the City of New York, which were put into effect on March 1, 1913, are so unsatisfactory that they might well be investigated by the Department of Justice, because we believe that if any portion were found to be of doubtful legality the Clearing House Committee would modify these rules and regulations in a manner to remove all doubt of their regularity as legal and business propositions, thereby conferring a public benefit.

About one-fourth of the banks in the five States have agreed to the terms imposed by the Clearing House for the abolition of charges on the collection of checks drawn on them, namely that they shall remit at par in New York funds on the day of receipt. The checks of banks that have not come into the arrangement are still subject to the collection charge of 1-10 of 1 per cent. Most of these have held off because the Clearing House would not handle the collections for all the New York member banks in bulk instead of making it necessary for them to remit separately to each bank. Some of the New Haven banks came in, but all of the Hartford banks have stayed out.

In his letter to the members of the Clearing House, Mr. Hallock says:

"Two years ago Attorney General Wickersham permitted James M. Beck, in behalf of the New York Clearing House Association, to file with him at Washington a brief in the matter of its 'rules and regulations imposing uniform charges for members on collections outside of the City of New York.' Your counsel contended that 'there would be no justification for the Federal Government, either proceeding civilly or criminally, to prohibit a local regulation for a local facility.' He assumed that 'few, if any, individuals will be found who will quarrel with so reasonable a regulation.'

"The Hartford banks do not contest the principle that the Clearing House may regulate its own business, and subject any member to 'a reasonable regulation imposed not upon banks generally, but only upon its own members.' They complain that the New York Clearing House is not 'a local aid or facility' in the collection of out-of-town checks. It collects none. The collection of such checks is at present no part of its business. Surely, until it handles them or they pass through it, the Clearing House cannot lawfully regulate charges on their collection. This fact emasculates the brief, strips the rules of all defense, and leaves the Clearing House without way of escape from punishment, should justice be demanded and obtained.

"The new rule establishes discriminations, worse than ever, in favor of certain localities and against the rest. All items payable in Boston or Providence are unconditionally made receivable at par in New York at the discretion of the banks or trust companies here; whereas all items payable elsewhere in Massachusetts or Rhode Island, or anywhere in Connecticut, are receivable at par by members only on condition that the paying bank or company has agreed to remit at par to all members of the Clearing House, or nonmembers clearing through members; an impracticable condition. Thus, since March 1, 1913, the Clearing House not only does not handle out-of-town checks, but also imposes a monstrously unreasonable regulation on the business of its members with which business it has nothing to do as yet.

"As a business proposition the rule put into effect on March 1 is simply intolerable to both city and country. Some New York banks, while collecting without charge to customers cheks on all of the 298 banks in the disretionary list, are not sending a check for direct remittance under the rule; thus they abolish charges on checks which it costs them as much as before to collect. Some send for remittance under the rule only checks over a certain amount, as $400. A bank having 3,000 foreign items daily sends out a dozen letters in this way. One city bank, as a matter of loyalty to the rule, sends direct every check received by it and drawn on any bank agreeing to remit at par in New York funds. The other day in Massachusetts a cashier exclaimed angrily that his company would not long continue sending New York thirty or forty letters daily in this useless fashion.

"Before the end of March Walter E. Frew, Chairman of the Clearing House Committee, told me that the existing rule would be rescinded in sixty days unless a compromise was effected by which the Clearing House should organize and conduct a department for out-of-town collections, while the country banks, for their part, should agree to remit to the manager as well as to members and non-members clearing through members.

"The Hartford bankers who signed the letter to the Attorney General were impressed by my assurances (1) that a large majority of your membership approved of out-of-town collections through the Clearing House as a facility which each member would be free to use more or less, at pleasure, as needed or preferrd; and (2) that the Department of Justie would, if called upon, determine with intelligence and impartiality whether the change in your rules and regulations was violative of the anti-trust law, and act with resoluteness, if the Clearing House Committee neglected to make proper modifications."

Plan for International Cotton.

A headline in THE TIMES of yesterday seemed to imply that the Continental Trust Company of Baltimore was being reorganized, such reference being made to its "plan." The fact was that the Continental Trust Company, or rather its President, S. Davies Warfield, had merely announced a plan for the reorganization of the International Cotton Mills Corporation.

Are You Satisfied with Your Present Income?

A safe and logical method that an investor can employ at this time to make his money earn more is to purchase the preferred stocks which some of our strongest corporations have issued during the past few years. The preferred stocks we suggest not only yield 7% or even better, but are secured by tangible assets in much the same way as mortgage bonds. These preferred stocks are as attractive to the man with $100 to invest as the one with $10,000. Let us send you circular LT.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Buyers for Washington Heights Properties—Big Park Avenue Deal Pending—Activity in the Bronx—Commission Firm Moves Uptown—Fair Leasing Market.

The Washington Heights section furnished the bulk of the activity in the realty market yesterday. Among a few good deals there the leading transaction involved a deal by Lowenfeld & Prager, whereby the latter acquired from the Patrick Skelly estate the vacant plot on the northeast corner of 149th Street and Bradhurst Avenue, and also, from the same estate, a vacant plot in the Bronx, on the southeast corner of Washington Avenue and 165th Street, being 96 by 96 feet. The Washington Heights plot consists of two lots, 50 by 100 feet. In exchange, Lowenfeld & Prager gave two six-story apartments on the northwest corner of Central Park West and Ninety-ninth Street, being 391 and 393 Central Park West, a plot 78 by 100, adjoining the Red Cross Hospital.

A sale in 145th Street was made by Hayden & Co., who sold for the Clover Construction Company the two three-story dwellings, at 346 and 348 West 145th Street, between St. Nicholas and Edgecombe Avenues, covering a plot 32.5 by 106 and irregular. The buyer will alter the building into stores and a moving-picture theatre.

In the upper Fort Washington section of the west side, a plot of seven lots were sold on the north side of 183d Street, beginning 100 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue. They were sold by George Ranger for Mrs. Alice Eaton, and form part of a farm purchased by her father over sixty years ago. The buyer was John Katzman, and he intends to improve the property with two apartment houses.

Park Avenue Deal Pending.

A deal is about to be closed, it was stated yesterday, for the sale by Marcus M. Marks of 1,049, 1,051 and 1,053 Park Avenue and by Thomas Hammill of 1,055 Park Avenue, forming a plot 100.2 by 102.2 on the southeast corner of the avenue and Eighty-seventh Street. Mr. Marks declined to affirm or deny the proposed deal. The buyer is said to be a syndicate headed by Henry L. Brant, a lawyer. If the sale is effected a big apartment house will be erected.

The Private Dwelling Market.

The three-story dwelling 659 West 178th Street, on a lot 16.8 by 100, has been sold to an investor. Charles Meisel is the owner of record.

The lease is for a long term of years, and the space was held at a rental of $21,000 a year. Frederick Fox & Co. negotiated the lease.

Lease to Protect Light.

For the purpose of protecting the southerly light and air of the twenty-story building at the southwest corner of Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue the Johnson-Billings-Brady syndicate have leased the four-story dwelling 306 Madison Avenue.

The structure, which is owned by J. H. Mahan, occupies a lot 16.5 by 100 and is leased for a period of nineteen years and three months at a yearly rental of $6,607.

The parcel is separated from the new structure by an eighteen-foot house at 308, which was recently leased by Pease & Elliman for twenty-one years to Maxwell & Co. of London at an aggregate rental of nearly $200,000. A six-story building is planned for the site.

Miller, McMann & Donley, who negotiated the lease, report that the Mahan lot—306—is to be improved with a six-story building.

PRESS OF AMERICA BEST, SAYS GAYNOR

He Admits This City Has Newspapers of the First Order.

THEY MUST HAVE FREEDOM

Mayor Thinks It Wouldn't Do to Curb Them—Optimistic About Country's Journalism.

As a guest and the first speaker at the fifth annual dinner of the Daily Newspaper Association in the Waldorf-Astoria last night Mayor Gaynor had his supreme opportunity to meet members of the profession face to face and tell them what he thought of them. The Mayor, while he was being introduced by the President of the Association, Louis Wiley, who was toastmaster, perused the pages of his menu card. Only those sitting near him were able to discern the gleam of satisfaction in his eye as the toastmaster remarked that the gathering was not composed of such newspaper men as recently had been characterized publicly as "scamps and scoundrels." Mayor Gaynor then was presented to the gathering as "the greatest Magistrate the City ever had," in the knowledge of the toastmaster, and "the editor our esteemed contemporary, The City Record."

"Your President has tried to do justice to me in introducing me," said the Mayor. "He says I am the editor of The City Record. I disavow that. I guess as it is now it is hardly as interesting as some other papers that I might mention.

"You are an association of newspaper people. I have only one feeling with regard to you, and that is the less I say about the newspapers the better for you. I suppose it may be the better for some others who are not here, because your President has said that the ragbag newspapers are not represented here. I wonder if that is so. I have a notion if I looked around a little that I might disprove that statement.

Pokes Fun at Local Men.

"You have men from Albany and Buffalo and Milwaukee and Cincinnati, Fort Worth and Montgomery, and I see also somebody from The New York World [Laughter] and The Evening Post [Laughter]—and, just think of it, The Brooklyn Eagle! It adds a new terror to death to see some of these representatives. However, I am satisfied with the company if you are. They are all good after their kind. I am not going to sit in judgment on them to-night."

As the Street Cleaning Department has been mentioned, however, as an illustration of the Mayor's policy of appointing only such men as he considered fit for such places, Mr. Gaynor paused long enough to say that the chief job of the Street Cleaning Department, of "Big Bill" Edwards, was to keep the gutters clear of some of the newspapers published in this city.

"I had the hardest task of my life a week ago," continued the Mayor. "I issued that proclamation to the people of the city that they must cease throwing paper and other material into the street, and then ordered the police to summon all such offenders. And yet I felt at the same time that I was doing a wrong thing. There are certain newspapers in this town which do much less harm in the gutter than they do in the household. It is only an expense to clean the gutters of them, but to fine a man for throwing certain of those red-headline newspapers into the gutters is something monstrous. I think I shall have to wink both eyes if the police don't carry out that order faithfully.

"Now, you are from all over the United States, and you represent a press that I undertake to say is not surpassed in any nation in Europe. I have done some traveling in Europe for twenty years or more, and I have observed the English press, the German press, and the French press. But I undertake to say that, take the press of this country as a whole, there is not a cleaner or better press in the world, nor a more enlightened press.

"We have some splendid newspapers here, too," observed Mayor Gaynor, "but they are all stricken more or less with the infirmity of imitating the other kind. They think their circulation will slip away from them if they do not have suitable headlines and suitable exaggerations and suitable falsehoods, and editorials that are more smart than truthful. But we have papers here that are of the first order.

"I have a small notion that I have added to the circulation of them somewhat. I think in some of the greatest affairs of this city, where I have deprecated the rag-bag and infamous methods of some of the papers here, that it has had some little effect, and the number that they have lost in readers must have gone to some other papers. Why, I think Wiley's paper has increased its circulation since I became Mayor by about 100,000. [Laughter.] Editorially, they don't give any credit to me for that, but I think it is about time they should do so." [Laughter.]

Praises Outside Newspapers.

The press of New York City was not to be imitated by the press of the country, was the advice of Mayor Gaynor. He told the men and women from the South that their press was excellent because controversies in that section easily could be settled on street corners. He believed it a good thing for the editor to have to be decent. Consequently, the Mayor said, as one proceeded to Albany, to Utica, and Syracuse, and so on through Buffalo to Chicago and Kansas City, he found an "excellent press." A trip across the continent five years ago convinced Mr. Gaynor that every city he visited, with the exception of "those cities which were infected by two newspaper proprietors, had absolutely correct and honorable newspapers."

"No man in public life, no writer of books, no artist, nobody who invites public attention deprecates that the newspapers should discuss what he says and does," the Mayor said. "That is legitimate and leads to enlightment. But when, instead of doing that, the newspapers simply denounce and abuse those who are obliged to come before the public, then they degrade themselves and the community.

"The newspaper proprietor is the root of all evil," asserted Mayor Gaynor, when he recalled that his toast was The Newspaper Proprietor. "If you leave the news reporter and the editor alone, they will do all right. They will do nobody an injustice.

"The press is the greatest force that we have in this country. It may be the force of good and it may be the force of evil. Those who try to make it a force of evil do not usually succeed. As a whole the press is a force for good.

"It is better to leave the press, with all its lowbred proprietorship, alone than to attempt to curb it. It is better to leave the press entirely free, with only the exception that the proprietors be held accountable for whatever they may say. But I reiterate that the condition of the press in this country is not grave. The journalists and the newspaper proprietors are on the eve of reclaiming themselves, and then journalism is to be brought back."

Miss Inez Milholland, responding to the toast, "The Psychology of Advertising," amended by her to read further, "As Applied to the Cause of Woman Suffrage," said the suffragettes long since had learned that the best way of "presenting their commodity" to the people was by attracting attention, or by advertising. Among the other speakers were Prof. Paul T. Cherington of the Graduate School of Business Administration of Harvard, and James Schermerhorn, publisher of the Detroit Times, who said, "If you're going to run your newspaper in accordance with the Beatitudes, it is best to get your subscriptions in advance."

ASSOCIATION'S GOOD YEAR.

Progress in Censoring Advertisements and Free Publicity.

The Twenty-seventh Annual Convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association was opened in the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, and 181 members from all parts of the country had signed the register at 10 A. M., when Elbert H. Baker of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, President, called the session to order. The first business was the address of the President, in which he said:

"The association has had a busy and a worth-while year, closing this period with the largest membership in its history, and I am sure that our members may look forward confidently to a still broader activity and a larger usefulness in the coming year." Expressing appreciation of the work done in the New York office under L. B. Palmer, General Manager, Mr. Baker continued:

"Members often might save themselves annoyance and money if they would avail themselves more extensively of the credit ratings, the collection department, and the general information at command of the New York office. I cannot too strongly urge our members to treat all information coming from the central office as strictly confidential, and especially to see that code books are not permitted to fall into hands other than those for whom they are intended."

President Baker outlined the chief events of the year with the work of the Special Standing Committee, the Paper Committee, the Press Agents' Committee, and the Advertising Agents' Committee, after which the session was ended with the reports of the Treasurer, the General Manager, and the Advertising Agents' Committee. There was much discussion of the topic, "Is the question of uniform rate cards and uniform discount date submitted by the Advertising Agents' Committee for discussion of interest to members?"

Another topic discussed without action was "What has been done by members in the line of editing, restricting, or eliminating the advertising of medicines and remedies?" The discussion showed there was a strong and growing tendency to cleanse advertising columns. Many members said their papers were not printing advertisements of medicines known to be fraudulent.

The afternoon's session was devoted to the reading and discussion of committee reports, all of which were accepted as read. H. L. Rogers of the Chicago News, Chairman of the Committee on Co-operative Fire Insurance, stated such a department had been established and was a success. He added the outlook for mutual insurance among publishers was hopeful.

Don C. Seitz of the New York World, Chairman of the Committee on Second-class Postage, appointed to safeguard the rights of members in connection with the rider to the Postal Associations Act, reported a test suit was pending. John Norris, Chairman of the Committee on Paper, told of efforts to get cheaper paper, which seemed likely to be realized in the Underwood bill. It was decided the work of that committee should be continued until the Tariff bill had been passed.

Interesting discussion followed Mr. Seitz's report as Chairman of the Committee on Press Agents, in which he showed free publicity had been reduced greatly in the year. The committee was appointed four years ago to expose the sources and objects of many uninvited contributions.

Another step in the amalgamation of the Daily Newspaper Association, The National Newspapers, and The United Newspapers, three organizations having the same object, to spread the gospel of newspaper advertising, was taken when a committee composed of Louis Wiley of THE NEW YORK TIMES, President of the Daily Newspaper Association; Hopewell L. Rogers of the Chicago Daily News, President of the National Newspapers, and Jason Rogers of the New York Globe, President of the United Newspapers, waited on the Publishers' Association and requested that a special committee be appointed to confer with it, to see whether the work done by the first three organizations could be taken up by the Publishers' Association and performed by a special bureau.

A special committee was appointed by the publishers as follows: E. V. Alley, New Bedford, Mass., Standard and Mercury; H. C. Adler, Chattanooga Times; C. C. Marquis, Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph, and J. F. McKay, Toronto Globe.

The programme for this morning consists of the reports of the Special Standing Committee and the Committee on Educational funds, and the discussion of labor topics. Presidents of international unions will address the convention. The annual meeting of stockholders will take place in the afternoon, to be continued to-morrow morning, when the election of officers is to be held. The convention will close to-morrow afternoon.

The Board of Directors of The Associated Press at a meeting yesterday morning re-elected all officers as follows: President—Frank B. Noyes of the Washington, D. C., Star; First Vice President—Gen. Charles H. Taylor, Boston Globe; Second Vice President—Crawford Hill, Denver Republican; Secretary and General Manager—Melville E. Stone; Assistant Secretary and Assistant General Manager—Frederick Roy Martin; Treasurer—J. R. Youatt; Executive Committee—Frank B. Noyes, Washington Star; Victor F. Lawson, Chicago Daily News; Charles W. Knapp, St. Louis Republic; Charles A. Rook, Pittsburgh Dispatch; Charles Hopkins Clark, Hartford Courant; W. L. McLean, Philadelphia Bulletin, and Adolph S. Ochs, NEW YORK TIMES.

MRS. TRUFANT LOSES SUIT.

Justice Characterizes Her Relations with Williams as Highly Improper.

After deliberating for two hours and a half, the jury under Supreme Court Justice Davis, which for the past two days has been listening to evidence in the suit of Mrs. Ruth L. Trufant to recover $50,000 damages from Henry G. Williams, proprietor of the Hotel York, for breach of promise to marry, returned a verdict yesterday afternoon at 8:45 in favor of the defendant. In charging the jury Justice Davis characterized the relations between the defendant and the plaintiff as "improper and highly immoral."

Need $3,000 for Social Work.

The Friendly Aid Society, which maintains the Warren Goddard Settlement House, 246 East Thirty-fourth Street; the Hayden Housekeeping Centre, 325 East Thirty-first Street, and Spring Farm, Greens Farms, Conn., has issued a special appeal for $3,000, without which many of its activities will have to be abandoned. Girls are taught dressmaking, millinery, lacemaking, cooking, and other useful occupations, and there are social and civic clubs for mothers, boys and girls. On the farm is a model cottage, where girls are taught to keep house, and there is a camp for boys. The expenditure of the institution is more than $15,000 a year. George McAneny is President of the society, and Henry D. Plant, Treasurer, will receive subscriptions at 361 Broadway.

BURGLAR A DREAM, MISS LEARY THINKS

Papal Countess Now Believes Her Maid Imagined She Saw Man Flee.

HETTY GREEN SEES POLICE

Rich Woman Supposed to Have Discussed Mysterious Incident in Her Friend's Home.

When Mrs. Charlotte Cahill, a maid in the home of Miss Annie Leary, the Papal Countess, reported to her employer at 11:30 o'clock last Tuesday night that she had seen a burglar escaping from the Leary house, 1,032 Fifth Avenue, by climbing out of a front bedroom window, she threw the household of women and the neighborhood into great excitement. The police, after an investigation, reported they could find no evidence that an intruder had been in the house. Miss Leary said last night she now was inclined to believe her maid's imagination was playing a trick. The employer said she preferred to think her maid had imagined she saw a burglar rather than believe a housebreaker had gained an entrance to her home, one of the best protected against burglars in the city.

Miss Leary was indisposed on Tuesday night, so she remained at home instead of attending the Catholic Fair in the Twelfth Regiment Armory, where she had a booth. She sent Mrs. Cahill to the fair. When the maid returned she complained of being tired. Miss Leary and her household started to retire shortly after 11 o'clock.

The servants' rooms are on the top floor. The cook, an elderly woman, told Mrs. Cahill she heard footsteps in a bedroom across the hall. Mrs. Cahill decided to go to her bedroom to see if things were all right. When she entered the room, which was in darkness, she began to scream. She cried out that she had seen a man in overalls climbing out of her bedroom window. She did not look from the window to see what became of the intruder, but ran downstairs to tell her employer.

Miss Leary at once reported the incident to Police Headquarters. Acting Capt. Tycho, Chief of Detectives of the Eighty-eighth Street Police Station; Detective Denfer, and a dozen patrolmen ran to the house. The policemen surrounded the block on Fifth Avenue, between Eighty-fourth and Eighty-fifth Streets, and the detectives went into the Leary house. Miss Leary was cool, but the servants were excited. The detectives searched the house, but found no sign that a door or window had been forced. No. 1,033, next door, was vacant. The thief, if there was one, might have gained the roof of the Leary residence by getting into the next house, but the police found no mark showing the scuttle of the empty dwelling had been touched.

How a thief, if he climbed out the front window, could have walked along the narrow ledge to the other house puzzled the police. They searched the courtyards behind the dwellings and carried their hunt into Central Park. At Eighty-third and Eighty-sixth Streets there are fixed posts. The patrolmen there saw no one coming from the Leary house.

Mrs. Hetty Green, known as the richest woman in the world, who is a friend of Miss Leary, visited the Eighty-eighth Street Station yesterday afternoon. She had a private talk with Acting Capt. Tycho. The police refused to divulge the reason for Mrs. Green's visit, but it was understood she went to the station to discuss the incident in Miss Leary's house.

Miss Leary said last night that Mrs. Green was not in her house at the time of the burglar scare. It was then she admitted she was inclined to believe there had not been a thief in her home. She said nothing in the house had been disturbed. She had been too busy she added to go over her belongings, but she felt sure none of her jewels was missing.

To Play for the Blind.

Arrangements have been made to give a special performance of "Within the Law" at the Eltinge Theatre on Monday afternoon, May 5, at which time the whole house will be given up to the blind of the city. A. H. Woods has given the use of the theatre, and Jane Cowl and the members of the cast have volunteered their services. The seating has been turned over to the Matilda Ziegler Magazine for the Blind, at 250 West Fifty-fourth Street, and the publication is sending out notices to all the blind persons it can reach. Carfare will be provided for those who need it, and the magazine requests that owners will give the services of automobiles. The management has arranged to have a synopsis of each act read in advance to the audience, and as each character appears he or she will be described.

New Play for Comedy Theatre.

The complete cast includes Walter Jones, Nannette Comstock, Millicent Evans, Kevitt Manton, Charles Brown, Tom Graves, Ritchie Ling, Dorothea Sadlier, Robert Payton Gibbs, Jay Wilson, E. D. Coe, Stephen Gillis, Florine Arnold, Henry Bergman, and Raymond Smith.

MME. NORDICA IN RECITAL.

Singer Gives a Programme Somewhat Out of the Ordinary.

Mme. Lillian Nordica appeared again as a concert singer in New York yesterday afternoon, when she gave a song recital at Carnegie Hall, a song recital which contained much that was novel to those who ordinarily attend these entertainments in New York.

The stage was decorated to represent a garden with trees and palms and daisies. The footlights were obscured by primroses in pots. Down the centre of the stage garden a white carpet led, and after the audience had mostly assembled the singer made her appearance. The applause which greeted her was long and hearty and was mingled with cries of amazement at the singer's figure, for the newspaper stories to the effect that Mme. Nordica had become thin proved to be correct. She wore a striking white gown, over which black voile had been draped, and with this a picturesque head dress of black aigrettes. Around her throat were chains of diamonds.

The programme began with Schubert's "An die Musik." In the second group four songs were sung in English, Wakefield-Cadman's "When Cherries Bloomed" and "At the Feast of the Dead," Arensky's "Lately in Dance," and Stange's "Damon." When Mme. Nordica next appeared it was to sing with a horn obligato, played by Carl Heinrich, an air from Handel's "Samson." The first half of the programme ended with Faure's "Nell," Leroux's "Le Nil," with the violin obligato played by Franklin Holding, and Vidal's "Ariette." Then the ushers rushed to the front with floral contributions. There was much applause, and Mme. Nordica added Mrs. Beach's "The Year's at the Spring."

The second part of the programme began with an air from "Madama Butterfly" and included Erich Wolf's "Fäden," Bleichmann's "Komm lass uns spielen," Jensen's "Am Mazanares," and Schubert's "Erl König." The programme was concluded by Bemberg's strange setting of Henri Murger's "Ballade du Désespéré," in which the words of the Poet are spoken and the words of the Voice are sung. In this the singer was accompanied by Mr. Holding, violinist; William Durieux, 'cellist, and Romayne Simmons, pianist, who played all of the accompaniments. The reader, M. Rousseau, spoke the words of the Poet. Before the concert began Frank L. Sealy played the organ.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

MUSIC NOTES.

YOUNG INNOCENT OF FRAUD.

Mme. Nordica's Husband Acquitted by Court's Direction.

George W. Young, banker, husband of Mme. Nordica, the singer, was acquitted in the Court of Common Pleas, Jersey City, yesterday, of a charge of conspiracy to defraud. Prior to the acquittal, George T. Vickers, Assistant Prosecutor, offered to enter a nolle pros, but that was rejected by Merritt Lane, counsel to Mr. Young, who wished the record cleared. Judge Mark A. Sullivan then directed a verdict of acquittal.

Mr. Young at one time was an officer of the Port Au Peck Realty Company. Recently he was indicted with other Directors, T. J. Von Schleik, W. H. Cooper, E. W. Sharpe and Alvin Young, on allegations that there had been a conspiracy to defraud the public by selling land as free and clear when it carried a mortgage of $300,000. Alvin Young was freed of the charge by a nolle pros. He is not a relative of George W. Young. The latter man obtained a severance and elected trial in Common Pleas.

It was shown that Mr. Young's connection with the company ceased October, 1909, whereas the indictment charged the conspiracy was formed in March, 1911. Mr. Vickers contended that Mr. Young remained a bondholder and there was implied knowledge of what was going on in the company. Mr. Lane insisted there was nothing to show Mr. Young knew anything of what was occurring, even if the charge against the others had foundation.

Sydney Rosenfeld Writing a Play.

Sydney Rosenfeld is writing a play for William A. Brady, which he is under contract to deliver next Fall. The piece is called "An Unpublished Scandal," and deals with the social life of Washington. It is believed the play may be intended for the use of Grace George.

How to Judge a Piano
Booklet Free

There are two ways to choose a piano and be certain of getting value received. ¶The first is to go to an old established concern which is willing to stand back of its product with the strongest guarantee it knows how to make (the Sohmer is known as "The Piano with the Life Time Guarantee.") ¶The second way to fortify yourself against disappointment is to apply a few simple tests which we have outlined in our new booklet "The Pith of the Piano Problem." By following the instructions set forth in this book, any one can quickly distinguish the good from bad in pianos. ¶Remember, the case of a piano is the least important part—the inside is what really counts. "The Pith of the Piano Problem" goes beneath the surface to the very heart of the question, yet it is written in such an easy, chatty style that you cannot help finding it interesting.
